e-Discover the Classics

Colorado Library Consortium
(<http://www.clicweb.org/e-discover-home>)

- Nearly 500 Downloadable Classics from Project Gutenberg through your Library Catalog.
- Includes the most popular downloaded e-books such as Pride and Prejudice, The Time Machine, A Christmas Carol, Jane Eyre and many more!
- Both MARC records and e-book files are in the public domain.

The Audio Books Project

From Project Gutenberg, the first producer of free eBooks.

Project Gutenberg makes audio eBooks available for some of the same great literature available in plain text. Our listings are divided into two categories: Human-read and computer-generated audio books. for people using a modem or other low-speed connection.

Human-read Audio Books

Thanks to AudioBooksForFree.com for our Arthur Conan Doyle series of human readings, and to LiteralSystems.org for work on new readings by volunteers. We are also working with Librivox, a site we consider joining them!

We are still adding new audio eBooks read by people, primarily through work by LiteralSystems.org and Librivox.

Browse our list of human-read audio books.

Readings by Computers

The computer-generated voices used in these books are similar to those on automated systems used by the blind, as well as some telephone automation systems.

Most of these titles were generated by Mike Eschman, but a few were made by other people. Over time, the procedures used to generate the audio eBooks changed, so not all audio eBooks have the same sound quality.

We have stopped adding computer-generated eBooks. Instead, we are working on methods to automatically make computer-generated eBooks on demand (that is, by choosing options, then getting the file via a download).

We are aware of numerous anomalies in the computer-generated eBooks, and working to resolve them (slowly!). It turned out that many files were broken and lost: most of Jack London's works are missing the "small print" license, but no actual eBook. We are regenerating some, removing others, and fixing what we can. If you find something wrong with one of the audio eBooks, chances are it's already on the list.

Browse our list of computer-generated audio books.

Thanks to Mike Eschman for most computer-generated eBooks.

The Process

- Select audiobooks that will be of use to the student body.
- Catalog titles to fully integrate them into the OPAC.
- Create a LibGuide to explain how students can get the audiobooks to their electronic devices.
- Create another LibGuide that will allow other libraries to get and use the MARC records.

No 100 field or 245 $c

This 500 is not really needed

Isn't "Fictitious Character $v Fiction" kinda redundant?

Using the 700 field instead of 100

Cataloging of Materials

EMU Cataloging Guide

eAudio Cataloging Guide

1. Correct fixed fields to read as follows:

MARC field LDR 01280cim\ a2200373La\4500

MARC field 006 __ m\ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ h

MARC field 007 __ cr\ \ na\ \ \ muaua

MARC field 008 __ 101213s2006\ \ \ \ utu\ \ \ \ o\ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ \ eng\ d

2. Check for 041 field for translated titles.

041 __ |a eng |h fre (ger,rus,etc.)

3. Add or reformat the title as needed for English versions of works originally in a foreign language or the English title will not be searchable.

For example:

245 00 Vingt mille lieues sous les mers. English |h [electronic resource]

Corrected to:

240 10 Vingt mille lieues sous les mers. |l English

245 10 Twenty thousand leagues under the sea |h [electronic resource]

246 3_ 20,000 leagues under the sea

4. Check that MARC field 245 includes |h [electronic resource].

5. Check MARC field 300 is |a 1 online resource : |b digital, multiple file formats.

6. Check for MARC 5xx fields:

500 __ |a Records generated from Project Gutenberg RDF data.
