MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF STATE
The area of this survey is located on the Northwest side of Ann Arbor, Michigan undertaken in the late fall of 1991. The area in question is roughly bounded by I-94 on the east, Jackson Rd. to the north, Dolph Park and First Sister Lake on the west and Liberty Rd. to the south. The actual block surveyed is immediately west of Bethlehem Cemetery directly south of Jackson Ave, containing the east side of Mason Ave, the north side of Sunnywood, west side of Highlake and finally the south side of Lakeview.

The neighborhood is modest and middle class in makeup. There is a definite uniformity of scale in the area immediately surrounding the survey block. The housing stock is that of the 20th century. It isn't until you get closer to First Sister Lake, directly west of the survey block that you find larger, more substantial upper middle class residential structures. The street patterns tend to be more curvilinear, not gridlike, indicating its later development as well as conforming to the slight undulation of the terrain. Dolph Park, First Sister Lake and Bethlehem Cemetery provide open spaces to the neighborhood. The area immediately east of the survey block is intensely developed. The Westgate and Maple Village shopping centers are part of this development as well as the intrusion of the Interstate Highway. However, Bethlehem Cemetery tends to buffer this influence and the neighborhood in general is quiet and residential in character.
The survey block is made up of single family dwellings. With few exceptions (5 out of 29) the structures are one story, side-gabled with detached garages slightly to the rear of the house. The homes are set an equal distance from the street, centered squarely on the lot. The lots are a uniform size on Mason Ave. and Hihlake, rectangular, with the short side fronting the street. Sunnywood and Lakeview streets form the corners of the block, with those lots being irregular in shape. Sidewalks are present, providing a typical strip of grass between them and the street. Curbs are also part of the streetscape. Mature, deciduous trees are located on the individual lots, with an occasional fur tree for variety. Landscaping around the homes is minimal, however most have shrubbery of some type at the foundation.

The predominance of the single story, side-gabled homes create a sense of uniformity of size and scale. The structures are almost identical, each having the front entrance slightly off center, flanked often by a picture window varying in size, as well as a smaller window (probably a bedroom) on the longer side from the door. Where there is an attached garage, it is located on the short side of the facade to the right of the entrance. The roof gable is low pitched, lending more horizontality to what is basically a squat profile.

The exceptions to the standard house type are few. The most notable are two Tudor Revival homes built as most of the others are of wood. One is located at 2907 Lakeview and the other at 231 Mason. Both are two story, with the tall, steeply pitched front-gabled roof forming the principal facade feature (McAlester p.368). This house type was popular in the late 1920's and 1930's, and it is obvious that these homes existed on this block long before the others. The lots they occupy are larger also, and their presence speaks of another time and place. Despite the fact that there is a certain level of uniformity in Tudor Revival houses, the uniqueness of these homes, the obvious craftsmanship, and substantial appearance and scale tend to dwarf the others on the block. The two other two story houses are located at 272 Highlake and 292 Lakeview. Both are unremarkable in design, more than likely vernacular 1960's with the home at 272 Highlake being the latest to be built.

It appears that the initial development of this neighborhood in general took place during the 1920's and 1930's. This is evidenced by the previously described Tudor Revival homes on the survey block, as well as the housing stock throughout the area, especially those located closer to the First Sister Lake and Dolph Park. The survey block itself, however, reflects later, post-war development, typified by single story, side-gabled nearly identical homes. These early ranch type homes became the dominant style throughout the country during the decades of the 1950's and 1960's (McAlester p.479). It would appear that the homes on the survey block that reflect this type, were built by a developer, probably as a speculative venture. The uniformity would signal this type of development, the variations being only slight to avoid monotony.
Due to the peripheral location of this neighborhood, it tends to reflect a different sense of place than what is usually considered a typical Ann Arbor Townscape. The more sprawling nature of the development contrasts with the more tightly packed, urban density of central Ann Arbor. I suspect that the location of First Sister Lake was sufficiently west of the city originally, to be considered a recreation/resort area some distance away. As the city of Ann Arbor expanded, the area between First Sister Lake and the city began to be filled in. Hence the strip mall development and the Interstate Highway. Similarly, that would account for the variety of 20th century housing stock, the oldest usually occurring closest to First Sister Lake, the prime location. None of the properties I observed is unusual or distinct in its own right to be considered for the State or National Register. However, the neighborhood exists as a enclave, complete with a neighborhood feeling, nearly surrounded by intense commercial development. As the city continues to expand, it is likely that pressure will be exerted on this community also. Perhaps the boundaries of the Old West Side Extension should include this area in anticipation of more development.
MASON,295 Single story, side-gabled, low pitched roof. Frame construction. Facade is pierced by the entrance on the far left, a three bay picture window, and three smaller windows. A deck-like slab protrudes from the entrance. (McAlester p.479)

MASON,291 Single story, side-gabled, low pitched roof. Frame construction. Facade is pierced by 4 bays. The entrance is located off-center to the right. The bowed picture window is to the right of the door. Two small windows complete the facade. (McAlester p.479)

MASON,281 Single story, low-pitched hipped roof. Frame construction. Entrance is slightly off-center. Two, small casement windows flank the door to the left. A picture window is located to the right of the entrance. (McAlester p.479)
