A Communication To The Alumni

(The following communication has been prepared by the editors of the ALUMNI NEWSLETTER for the general information of the alumni on an important proposed change in Eastern's status.)

A bill to change the name of Eastern Michigan College to Eastern Michigan University has been introduced in the State Legislature by James F. Warner, Representative of the Second Legislative District of Washtenaw County which includes the college.

The requested change in name is based on and is a reflection of the rapid growth in size, both in enrollment and physical plant, and the increasing complexity of the academic programs being offered by Eastern.

The growth of the institution has come primarily from the educational demands of the area (southeastern Michigan) from which it draws the majority of its students. While it might be said that size alone does not make a university program, Eastern Michigan College is, at present, larger than some fourteen state universities. They are: the Universities of Wyoming, Delaware, Rhode Island, Mississippi, New Mexico, Nevada, New Hampshire, Virginia, North Dakota, South Dakota, South Carolina, Vermont, Idaho, and Montana State University.

Eastern Michigan College has been in the vanguard of the development of institutions established initially for the primary purpose of educating teachers into multi-purpose institutions since the turn of the century. An increasing complexity in the educational programs, both in numbers and kinds, offered by the college has been evident for some years.

It is the feeling of college officials that the tremendous population concentration in southeastern Michigan can and must support many multi-purpose institutions if educational needs are to be met. Teacher education will continue to remain a strong part of the college program. However, an increasing and continuing emphasis will be placed on the expansion of the liberal arts, business administration and pre-professional programs.

Eastern Michigan College was founded in 1849. In the 1890's, it began offering the bachelor's degree. Since 1953, the college has had an independent graduate program which this February will have awarded its 500th master's degree. While a major function of the program is, and will continue to be, teacher education and the development of the master teacher, the present school programs which the college serves demand more and different graduate programs. These programs and others presently under discussion may serve others than teachers.

The institution's division of field services has, in recent years, doubled its direct services to school systems through credit courses and consultative services (curriculum workshops, consultants to boards of education, area study committees and PTA workshops).

The growth in enrollments and educational programs has brought about a reorganization of the administrative structure at the college. This was begun in 1955. The present state of this administrative reorganization is in the category normally associated with a university, and further administrative development as the institution grows should logically follow the same pattern.

The development of institutions originating as teacher education institutions into multi-purpose institutions with a university educational organization and administrative structure has been taking place on a nation-wide basis for many years. Examples of this trend are to be found in the states of Illinois, Ohio and, in the case of Western Michigan University, in Michigan.

President Elliott and the college staff have always been opposed to the creation of a university by fiat. It is their collective judgment that the growth in size, number, and complexity of educational programs has reached the point where a change in name, meaningless in itself, will affect the necessary growth and change at Eastern Michigan.

The State Board of Education, governing body of state supported institutions in Michigan, approved the action and said it felt there was sound and ample reason for the change in title for Eastern Michigan College.

The State Board of Education in approving the action said, "Eastern Michigan College has planned its administrative reorganization in such a way that the next logical step would be to go to university status." On campus enrollment at Eastern Michigan College is currently 4,900. An additional 1,600 students are enrolled in 29 off-campus instructional centers.

A similar bill has been introduced to provide Central Michigan College with university status. Most of the reasons and justifications cited above with reference to Eastern Michigan College are equally applicable to Central Michigan College.

It is the feeling of legislators that the name change should be accomplished for the two institutions at the same time. Western Michigan University received university status two years ago. Northern Michigan College is not seeking university status at the present time but expects to do so in the not too distant future.

Albert A. Riddering

Albert A. Riddering passed away November 3, 1958 as a result of a heart condition. He was about to address a Bible-study class at the Fisher YMCA in Detroit when stricken. He died before reaching Ford Hospital.

He was moderator of the Detroit-Presbytery and had served at the Redford Presbyterian Church for eleven years.

"Dutch", as he was familiarly known by many, was one of the few laymen to hold the moderator's post which usually goes to an ordained minister. He is survived by his wife, Annette, who teaches in the Melvindale High School, three sons, a sister and thirteen grandchildren.

Dutch was born in the small Michigan town of Drenthe. Shortly after high school he received a limited teaching certificate and his illustrious career began.

Clarke Davis recalls: "We first met in high school in 1900 and two years later he started teaching in a country school. From him I got the inspiration to become a teacher. Accordingly, in 1905, I entered Michigan State Normal College and in 1907 I had convinced him to come and arm himself with a life certificate. This he earned in 1910 and was continuously active in school work until 1947. He taught in the school systems of Deerfield, Dundee, Marysville, and Melvindale where he served as superintendent of schools for 19 years. He retired from this position to enter the ministry. He completed his college work at the University of Michigan.

"He was a wonderful teacher and a friend of everyone. His one idea was to provide all his students with a good basic education and sow in their minds a desire to go to college.

"President Elliott has said that Dutch had sent or brought more students to Eastern than any other one person. They literally numbered in the hundreds. He brought them to the campus, introduced them and followed through to advise and encourage them. He kept in touch with them after college and continued to be a guiding influence in their lives.

"His faith in humanity was endless. Dutch spent more time thinking of his students than of himself. He was completely unselfish and his thousands of former students are as loyal to him today as the day they left the classroom. His influence will be felt for decades to come.

"He was, in my opinion, one of the greatest men to be graduated from Eastern and I count it as one of my chief blessings to have been his closest friend and confidant for more than half a century."

Mr. Riddering was president of the Alumni Association for five years and was responsible for the Pierce Hall chimes which add so much to our campus. He was awarded a honorary Master of Arts in Education degree in 1941 by Eastern Michigan College in recognition of his outstanding work.

The Albert A. Riddering Memorial Scholarship has been established at his alma mater.

Carl Hood

Eastern Michigan College and the Ypsilanti community lost a leading citizen in the sudden passing of Professor Carl Hood on November 12, 1958.

His contributions to the campus and to the community were many and varied. At the time of his death, he served as professor of education, a position which he held with distinction for the past six years. Prior to that time, he served the college as director of field services. His professional activities in recent years have been particularly in connection with the Comparative Education Society. His membership in that organization caused Professor and Mrs. Hood to travel very extensively in recent years in Europe and South America. In mid-September of this year he returned from a study tour of educational institutions in the Soviet Union.

An alumnus of the old Michigan State Normal College in 1924, he completed the master's degree at the University of Michigan in 1928. He was born in 1895 at Hart, and began his teaching career in a one-room country school in Oakland County in 1914. He taught later at Highland, and served as superintendent of schools at McBain and at Clarkston. In 1925, he joined the staff of the Dearborn Public Schools and assumed the principalship of the Dearborn High School in 1928.

In 1936 he began a ten-year period of service in which he headed the various educational enterprises of the late Henry Ford. In his role as school administrator and confidant of the late motor magnate, Professor Hood supervised educational activities in many parts of the United States, in Great Britain and in South America.

Professor Hood was held in great esteem by the thousands of students who had labored under his guidance both in college and in public school teaching. The respect of his colleagues at Eastern Michigan College was evidenced by their election of him to the position of president of the Faculty Council during the 1956-57 school year. He also served on the President's Advisory Council, the Graduate Council and the Board of the Student Aid Corporation.

He is survived by his wife, Ellen, and two daughters. Mrs. Hood is a teacher in the Ernest H. Chapelle School of Ypsilanti.

He was a Past-President of the Rotary Club of Ypsilanti, a member of the Board of Directors of the Ypsilanti Players, and a member of the Board of Commerce. He was a life member of Michigan Education Association; life member of National Education Association; member of Phi Delta Kappa, of Tau Kappa Epsilon and of the Ypsilanti Forum Club.

Of Professor Hood, President Eugene B. Elliott said: "Carl Hood was a personal friend dating from our high school days together in Pontiac, Michigan. I have admired his ability to make and keep friends. He has been a most industrious worker and one of our most outstanding scholars".

The Carl Hood Memorial Scholarship has been established at Eastern Michigan College.

Daniel L. Quirk, Jr. Dramatic Arts Building Dedicated

The January 14 dedication of the new $800,000 Daniel L. Quirk, Jr. Dramatic Arts Building heralds an expanded program in the field of speech and drama at Eastern Michigan College.

Previously such classes met at Pierce Hall and plays were presented in the Roosevelt School auditorium. Now speech and play production activities will be housed in the new Quirk Building where students will have the use of a 400-seat theatre, a professionally equipped stage, a radio-tv. studio, rehearsal areas, an outdoor amphitheatre, stagecraft shops, and classrooms.

Rehearsal in the 400-seat theatre

The dedication events at the Quirk Building included acceptance ceremonies presided over by James E. Green, Vice President and Director of Planning and Development at Eastern and included remarks by President Elliott and representatives of the State Board of Education, the architects, and college officials. A student production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible", directed by Professor William Work, Director of Theatre at EMC, was the dedication play. A general reception followed.

An oil portrait of Mr. Quirk, commissioned for the building and executed by Alice K. Reischer of Ann Arbor, hangs in the theatre lobby.

John W. Gassner, Professor of Playwriting and Dramatic Literature at Yale University, delivered the dedication address the following day.

The program in dramatic arts at Eastern Michigan College offers a wide variety of theatre-oriented courses. Major and minor sequences in dramatic arts are offered, and an active extra-curricular theatre program is maintained. While the extra-curricular program serves to provide laboratory experiences for those enrolled in dramatic arts courses, participation is open to all EMC students.

In the lounge prior to the dedication address are (l. to r.): William Work, Professor of Speech and Director of Theatre; John W. Sattler, Head, Department of English and Speech; John W. Gassner, Yale University; and James E. Green, Vice President and Director of Planning and Development at EMC.

Areas of study within the dramatic arts curriculum include acting, directing, stagecraft, scene design, theatre history, playwriting, children's theatre, and dramatic literature. Students may apply the dramatic arts major or minor toward the requirements for either the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree. The program is administered by the Department of English and Speech.

The Daniel L. Quirk, Jr. Dramatic Arts Building is one of the newest and one of the finest educational theatre facilities in the country. It has been imaginatively designed to accommodate a wide range of dramatic arts activities.

The theatre has been planned so that all spectators can see and hear in comfort. This has been achieved through special acoustic treatment, air conditioning and an unusual seating arrangement, which dispenses with the traditional center aisle.

The 35 by 20 foot proscenium opening is flanked by curtained side stages and is separated from the audience by an elevator forestage. The stage proper is equipped with forty sets of lines for flying scenery in the 65 foot high stagehouse. Flexibility in stage lighting is assured through a modern 100 circuit switchboard.

The stage area is large enough to accommodate a 175 seat theatre-in-the-round. A small studio theatre has been provided for use in experimental, student-directed productions. The classroom wing of the building surrounds an outdoor amphitheatre capable of seating 300.

Other theatre facilities in the Dramatic Arts Building include a workshop, dressing rooms, costume shop, projection booth, and storage areas. Four classrooms, and equal number of faculty offices, and an air-conditioned radio studio, designed to accommodate television in the future, complete the building.

Architects for the structure were Smith, Hinchman and Grylls of Detroit. The construction of the building was financed by bonds issued against student fees of Eastern Michigan College under the authority of the State Board of Education and the Legislature of the State of Michigan.

Goals for students in dramatic arts may include teaching in the secondary schools and graduate study. Preparation in the dramatic arts program at EMC will provide a solid background for advancement in many branches of the theatre. Although training for a career in the commercial theatre is not a primary aim of the EMC dramatic arts program, some students have used their undergraduate training as a stepping stone into the profession.

An Eastern Michigan College Dramatic Arts Scholarship has been established to assist worthy undergraduates majoring in the dramatic arts. The award, which honors Daniel L. Quirk, Jr. and J. Stuart Lathers, former Head of the Department of Speech, is granted each year to a sophomore or junior who has demonstrated an exceptional aptitude in theatre and who has compiled an excellent over-all scholastic record.

Extracurricular theatre at Eastern is centered around the EMC Players, the student dramatics organization. Each year the Players present a minimum of five public productions (including a summer play).

Alpha Psi Omega, this country's largest national honorary dramatics fraternity, is represented at Eastern by the Pi Alpha chapter. Students who have demonstrated outstanding ability in theatre are eligible for election to the organization.

The excellent facilities provided by the new Quirk Building will give new impetus to an already well-rounded educational program.

Dr. Clarke E. Davis ('08)

The President's Message

Our Alumni Association, yours and mine, has had many opportunities to do something for the college which gave us our start in life. Much remains to be done.

Here is something you can do. Help swell the student population at Eastern with students who are above the norm and whom you consider capable and willing to work to succeed.

The time has passed when colleges are interested in numbers only. What they are searching for are students of high calibre; those who can show the greatest promise of raising the educational plateau — the future teacher, the scientist, the engineer, the doctor, the mathematician, the social historian.

Perhaps we have been lulled into a false security by preaching the gospel that the student is being readied only to best meet the problems of daily life and enjoy it to the fullest extent. This is not enough in these days of rapid scientific advancement.

Possibly, the curricular structure needs a complete overhaul. The pace has quickened. We need better-trained students and we need them fast. We cannot wait lest we lose the race. Let us take out some of the lost motion and get our students ready for college at 16 instead of 18. This is not experimental, it works.

Many of our alumni have channeled outstanding students to our college classrooms. Preëminent in this work was Albert A. ("Dutch") Riddering. By following his good example, we can do much to help raise the currently high academic levels at Eastern even higher.

Our directors are also proud of the oil painting of our esteemed president, Eugene B. Elliott. This was presented to the college on Alumni Day in 1957 and now hangs in McKenny Hall.

Your Board has set up standards for the Alumni Honor Award to be given annually to an alumnus in recognition of long and distinguished service to his fellow citizens and loyalty to his alma mater.

Our association spends no money for salaries or for clerical help in its operation. Any monies contributed by you in the form of life memberships or contributing memberships are held intact in a fund securely invested and earning money. This is directed by the organizational by-laws and only the earnings are expendable, but as yet these have not been spent.

We are still campaigning for additional funds. A major campus project is now under consideration and it is our hope to complete a worthwhile project every few years.

You may become a contributing member by sending a check for $100 or more. Life memberships are a bargain at $25. Please start now always remembering that your college has done a great deal for you.

We are growing stronger in alumni support. We now hold two alumni luncheons annually; one at Homecoming and the other in June. In 1959, we will hold the June Alumni Luncheon one week before Commencement when demands on alumni time are less pressing. We are organizing more group meetings and eagerly welcome your suggestions for more.

Let me take this opportunity to send greetings from your Alumni Board and from your College. The more you help your Alumni Association, the more we can do for our college.

ALUMNIGRAMS

▶ A letter from MRS. PERRY F. TROWBRIDGE (GRACE HALL '93), of Fargo, North Dakota, reads: "I'm having quite a thrill out of the October NEWSLETTER. The first thing I saw took me back some sixty-five years. I graduated in 1893 from the Latin-German course. Professor D'Ooge was my favorite teacher, and I sat in that little classroom so many hours that it almost seemed like home. Thank you"

(Editor's Note: Professor Benjamin L. D'Ooge, professor of Latin and Head of the Department of Latin and Greek at EMC from 1886 to 1938 and well known to several generations of students, was featured on the cover of the October, 1958 issue of the NEWSLETTER.)

▶ A teaching career spanning 44 years on the University of Michigan campus and thousands of speaking engagements throughout the country, was honored by former students and colleagues of Professor WILLIAM A. PATON ('12) at a dinner held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, in Detroit in October.

Among the former students are Frederic G. Donner, new board chairman of General Motors; Ex-Cell-O Corporation president H. Glenn Bixby; and partners in virtually all major national accounting firms.

Professor Paton has won every major accolade of the accounting profession. At the age of 33, he served as president of the American Accounting Association, national organization of teachers of accounting. Since 1938 he has been a member of the Committee on Accounting Procedure of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Frequently called upon to testify in public utility rate cases and before Congressional committees, Dr. Paton has a reputation for outspokenness.

At present Dr. Paton is on pre-retirement furlough from his teaching duties and will go on emeritus status next June

▶ The 1957 recipient of the Gulick Award, the highest honor of the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, was CLAIR V. LANGTON ('16), Dean of the College of Health and Physical Education, Oregon State College, Corvallis. Dr. Langton has taught at Oregon State College since 1928. He was the college's first Director of Health and Physical Education. He has received the Honor (1940) and Anderson (1954) Awards of the AAHPER, has been made an honorary life member of the Oregon AHPER, and Honor Award Fellow, Northwest District of AAHPER. He is a Fellow in the American Academy of Physical Education and American College of Sports Medicine, and is listed in "Who's Who in America," and "Who Knows — And What." He is active in 12 professional organizations. Not only has Dr. Langton given outstanding service to the cause of health, physical education and recreation, but he has also made a considerable contribution to the literature. His books are recognized as authoritative in the field. He is author of Orientation in School Health, and co-author of Health Principles and Practice and numerous professional articles.

▶ JAMES BARCLAY ('26), supervisor of physical education in the Midland public schools, has perfected a basketball goal which is adjustable for use of elementary children and can be attached directly to the standard goals in the gymnasium. He has presented EMC with a sample of his invention.

▶ ARTHUR G. HUGHES ('36), Chairman of the Department of English at Culver Military Academy, has been appointed to the Eppley endowed chair in English. Eppley endowed chairs are financed from an endowed gift of one million dollars made by a Culver alumnus of 1901, Eugene C. Eppley, through the Eugene C. Eppley Foundation, Inc., of Omaha, Nebraska. Eppley chair holders have the dual responsibility of teaching and conducting research in their specialties to raise the quality of teaching throughout their respective departments. Mr. Hughes joined the Culver faculty in 1945 as an instructor in English. From 1950 to 1953 he was director of public relations for the Academy. He has been Chairman of the Department of English since 1954, and directs a staff of 17 teachers. Mrs. Hughes is the former BARBARA E. WHAN ('37). They are the parents of four children.

▶ We have heard recently from two of EMC's alumni families living in Pleasant Hill, California. NEVILLE R. ("SPIKE") HUGHES ('41) and Mrs. Hughes, the former HELEN VOORHEES ('41), have two children, Terry, 15 years old, and Pamela, 10 years of age. HOWARD WIGELL ('40) and Mrs. Wigell (BLANCHE KNOX '40) are the parents of Christine, 11, and Art, 4 years old. Both Helen and "Spike" Hughes teach in elementary schools in the Vallejo system, while Howard Wigell is head of the music department at the John Swett High School at Crockett, California.

▶ EDWARD L. POLY ('41), athletic director and football coach at Erie, Pennsylvania, has coached his football team to a championship for the second time.

▶ FREDERICK A. BARNEY ('48) is the director of intramural athletics at the New Trier High School at Winnetka, Illinois. Fred, who was one of the intramural managers while in school, has established an intramural publication bulletin similar to the one used in the EMC intramural department.

▶ Mr. and Mrs. Besondy Hagen (MARGARET JUNE HOFFMAN '51) announce the birth of a daughter on July 25, 1958.

▶ JAMES P. CUTHBERTSON ('51) has been named College Life's Most Valuable Agent for the second consecutive year. He also has achieved the distinction of being College Life's Leader for the third consecutive year, and for the second successive year has qualified for the Million Dollar Round Table.

▶ Mr. and Mrs. George Weigle (PEGGY IRWIN '51) announce the birth of Christine Sue on June 25, 1958.

▶ A first novel by WILLIAM HUNTSBERRY ('41) was published in October by Rinehart and Company. The book, a suspense novel, is titled Harbor of the Little Boats. The locale is Honolulu where Mr. Huntsberry now teaches in the Department of English of the University of Hawaii. An expert yachtsman, Mr. Huntsberry lives in Honolulu with his wife and small daughter.

▶ JAMES A. PHILLIPS ('53) and Mrs. Phillips (MARGARET DEAN '57) have begun their second year as employees of the Department of the Navy, Overseas Dependent Schools. Mr. Phillips is an elementary school principal and Mrs. Phillips is an elementary teacher. This year they are in the Philippines and would be happy to hear from any of the "old timers" who still remember them.

▶ MRS. LAWRENCE R. MACK (HELEN JANE FINKBEINER '54) is teaching first grade in Iowa City, Iowa.

▶ DON KOZA ('54) has completed his sales training course at Braniff Airways in Dallas, Texas, and reported to the district sales manager for his new work as Detroit sales representative. Don majored in economics at EMC, and earned his sergeant's stripes with the Army in Korea. He later returned to graduate school at Michigan State to study transportation. He has been assistant terminal manager for Darling Freight Company of Detroit, and later worked for the Edsel Division of the Ford Motor Company in the sales distribution department.

▶ ROYCE BLOOMER ('56), coach at Richmond High School, has been selected Macomb County's "Football Coach of the Year." Bloomer's team chalked up the first unbeaten, untied season at Richmond since 1940, and swept to the St. Clair Area League championship with eight straight victories. Bloomer, selected in a poll of coaches, writers, and officials, piled up a huge majority of votes in the annual balloting for the county's top grid mentor. A veteran of four years in the Air Force, Bloomer has been at Richmond since 1956.

▶ Second Lieutenant ALLAN D. JACOBS ('57) has been assigned to the Specialist Training Regiment at the US Army Training Center, Infantry, Fort Dix. Mrs. Jacobs is the former JANICE PLESS ('58), and Allan is the son of Dr. LELAND B. JACOBS ('32), Professor of Education, Teachers College, Columbia University.

▶ STUART EDMONDS, who received his master's degree from EMC in 1957, was named director of special education in the Bay City public schools last August. Mr. Edmonds received his bachelor's degree at the University of Michigan in 1950, taught three years in Sanilac County and five years in the Midland public schools. For the last several years he was associated with the Michigan Association for Better Hearing.

▶ During the Christmas holiday, WILLIAM D. ROSE ('57) and KENNETH G. SANTER ('58) visited the campus. Bill is teaching at the Highland Elementary school and lives in Milford. He was president of the 1956-57 Student Council. Ken is now stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, having received his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. He

Elliotts Meet With West Coast Alumni

At the request of many California alumni, President and Mrs. Eugene B. Elliott made a trip through California, Oregon, and Washington during the month of January. On January 18, they met with the Los Angeles area alumni at the home of Mel Caines ('31), at 18 South Old Ranch Road, Arcadia. The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of William K. Dunn ('29), Mrs. Leslie Bruckner (Joan Olds '41), and Mel Caines ('31). The alumni in the Sacramento area met with President and Mrs. Elliott at Sacramento State College on Sunday, January 25. George ('49) and Cheryl Steiner ('45) Crothers were in charge of local arrangements. On Tuesday, January 27, the Corvallis, Oregon alumni met for luncheon at Oregon State College where the Elliotts were guests of honor. Dr. Clair V. Langton ('16) was chairman of the committee in charge. Harold ('49) and Michiko Yamada ('49) Todd arranged the reception honoring President and Mrs. Elliott in Seattle. The reception was held from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. on January 28 in the Student Union building on the campus of the University of Washington.

has 21 months remaining and will enroll in Dental School in early February. Ken was president of the Student Council in 1957-58 and competed in track and cross country for four years.

▶ WILLIAM G. EMIGH ('58) is teaching physical education at the Waianae High School in Hawaii. A recent letter to Dean Brown expresses his enthusiasm for both his teaching and life in beautiful Hawaii.

▶ MARILOU TAYLOR ('58) has entered Stanford University to study English literature as a Woodrow Wilson Fellow. Miss Taylor is one of the thousand prospective college teachers in the United States and Canada who are entering graduate school this year on Woodrow Wilson National Fellowships. Recognizing the critical need for college teachers, the Ford Foundation recently gave the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation $25,000,000 to aid outstanding first-year graduate students. Each fellowship carries a living allowance of $1,400 for single students, with increments for dependents, and pays the full cost of tuition and fees.
