101 Years of Service

The three faculty members portrayed on our cover have given an aggregate total of 101 years of service to the University, and it is our serious loss that all three are to retire this year. We speak with the highest praise for three of Roosevelt Laboratory School's most respected faculty: Leonard W. Menzi, Principal; Lawrence P. De Boer, social studies and supervising teacher; and Louis A. Golczynski, general science and supervising teacher.

Leonard Menzi has been with Roosevelt School for thirty-three years, since 1928, when he began as a teacher of mathematics and science. Since 1942, he has been the school's principal. Stanley R. Gex, Dean of the University's College of Education, has said of Leonard Menzi, ". . . (he) is 'Mr. Roosevelt School' to the students, the staff, and the community."

Among his many contributions to teaching and guidance, Mr. Menzi has served as Principal of the North China America School near Peking. Also, while in Ypsilanti, he has served on many civic agencies and has been especially active in the Boy Scouts.

While at the University of Chicago in 1928, Leonard Menzi met Lawrence De Boer. Together, they came to Roosevelt School that same year. During Lawrence De Boer's thirty-three years of service, he has taught primarily American government and history. He has been the director of the Roosevelt visual aids program, and he has also been the class sponsor for a number of graduating classes. Mr. Menzi has described Mr. De Boer as a teacher who is ". . . beloved by his students and respected by his colleagues."

Having received a teacher's certificate from the University, then Michigan State Normal College, Mr. De Boer qualifies equally as an alumnus, and his son, Richard, seconds the motion by having graduated from the University.

Louis Golczynski, affectionately known as "Uncle Louie" to his students, graduated from the University in 1925, and for thirty-five years he has been teaching at Roosevelt School. Throughout the years, he has done advanced study at the University of Michigan, and he has worked on various experimental projects. In 1944, he developed a new method of extracting penicillin, one of the outstanding achievements of his career, and one that was praised throughout the United States.

Leonard Menzi has said, "(Louis) Golczynski has provided interesting and challenging work for his students, stimulating them to do creative work on natural science projects. His student teachers respect him and his high school students have long shown their feeling by affectionately addressing him as 'Uncle Louie.'"

Our Alumni Association congratulates these three distinguished faculty members for serving the cause of education and the University so ably and so untiringly throughout the years.

Alexander Dedication Ceremonies

The Frederick Alexander Memorial Organ and the Frederick Alexander Music Building were dedicated Sunday, January 15, 1961. The organ is now installed in Pease Auditorium as a tribute to the University for the 32 years (1909-1941) of "inspiration and happiness" Professor Alexander found while serving as head of the Department of Music. The newly remodeled music building was dedicated as the University's memorial to his memory and service.

Acceptance ceremonies began at 4:00 p.m., with Vice President Bruce K. Nelson presiding. The organ and building were presented by J. Robert Swanson, Swanson Associates, Inc., Architects, and Earl V. Moore, Dean Emeritus, School of Music, University of Michigan. Chris H. Magnusson, Vice President of the State Board of Education, accepted the organ and building for the University. President Eugene B. Elliott and Professor Haydn Morgan, Head of the Music Department, spoke in tribute to Professor Alexander.

At 8:00 p.m. an organ dedicatory concert was played by Russell L. Gee, Associate Professor of Music at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio. In his will, Professor Alexander requested that Professor Gee, a former pupil, play the recital, and that Robert Luscombe, a long-time friend, supervise the playings from recordings of the Michigan State Normal Choir.

Of special interest during the Sunday open house was the unveiling of a portrait of Professor Alexander. Painted by Alice K. Reischer of Ann Arbor, the portrait was a gift to the University from alumni and friends of Professor Alexander.

A LOOK INTO EASTERN'S PAST: EARLY STUDENT LIFE

The following article, which was written by Richard De Boer, graduate student at the University, derives from work he has been doing as Research Assistant to Dr. E. R. Isbell, Professor of History at the University and Chairman of the Committee on Eastern Michigan University History.

In reading the documentary evidence of the Normal School's early years, it becomes abundantly evident that strict disciplinary control over the student body was regarded as one of the important goals of the educational process. As a matter of fact, Principal [President] Welch acquired a distinguished reputation for severity in this area. When one considers that the age for admission to the Normal School was 16 years for young ladies and 18 years for the gentlemen, a partial reason can be found herein. However, the two primary grounds were that "good discipline was deemed necessary not only for the welfare of the school, but also as an example to teachers as to the kind of discipline they should enforce in their schools."<sup>1</sup>

What was early student life like at the Normal School? For the answer to this question, let us look back in time and see what we can discover. The year is 1860. On October the 20th, a Normal student, one J. O. Beale wrote the following illuminating letter to a cousin, Miss Almira Beale who was contemplating attending school at Ypsilanti:

"Dear Cousin

I believe you have something of a desire to come here to school, and if I can increase that desire so as to actually bring the thing to pass, I shall feel as though I had accomplished some good in this world . . . Three weeks of our school is just past, and every thing is going on smoothly. I suppose there are nearly three hundred students in the Normal School and over two thirds of these are ladies. We have more ladies in the winter than in the summer; and more young men in the summer than in the winter. I wish I had a catalogue to send you, but there has not been any printed since the building burned a year ago. I presume there will be one published before spring; if so I hope I may not forget to send you one. There are only two terms during the year; the winter term of twenty two weeks, and the summer term of sixteen weeks.

"There are many things required of students who attend the N. School. As the school is pretty much free, being only three dollars a year, they lay down many rules which we have to obey, or we can go home, just as we please. We must sign a declaration of the intention to teach in the schools of this state. All recitations are conducted once in a day; and that is at twenty minutes after eight, and holds four hours.

"We have to stay in our rooms two hours during the afternoon except Sundays, also after seven o'clock in the evening except the two days above mentioned when we can stay out till ten in the evening. The students room all over town just where they can get rooms and board. If you should go out of your room, during study hours, as we call them perhaps you would not be seen but if one of the teachers should happen to see you; he would probably report you to the Principal; and after you have been reported twice you are expelled from the school. We are not allowed to whisper at all in the school room except during two short recesses. We have to tell them where we board and where we live when at home, also what Church we attend while here; for they say that they do not want students who do not attend Church. The lowest class study Geography, Arithmetic and Grammar. This is called the B class; most all of the students either read, spell, draw or sing, one hour each day. If a person is possessed with common talents the second term they can study Physical Geography, Arithmetic and Grammar, this is called the C. class. They will give any one about twenty questions in each of the above studies, and if nearly all are answered correctly they can go into the next class. Only persons who have extraordinary talents can have more than three studies. Many students are partly in two classes. Algebra is called a C study, to those who are commencing it; the third term is the D class, if you have made pretty good progress in the other studies. You will finish up Algebra, Philosophy and Botany in this term. The next class is the E. Students in that class study Geometry, Rhetoric and Geology, most students get through these in one term if they do not get sick. The F or Senior Class. Trigonometry, Chemistry and Mental Philosophy, are their studies: when they are through these they are graduates. Most all students before they graduate study some other language, either Greek, Latin, French or German; but they are not obliged to study any of them . . . The higher the class the better the teacher, and the smaller the class, so the better opportunity for learning. We all have to write compositions every two or three weeks and after we get up into the E class we have to speak or read them before the whole school; I have to speak an original piece next Monday, the very first one for this term . . . The teachers are very particular about our having good lessons . . .

"You will please excuse some of my mistakes, as I have acquired a rather careless habit in writing."<sup>2</sup>

Baseballs of the winning games will also be placed in the case with the above picture. The recognition of this outstanding team after fifty-four years was made possible through the efforts of former Registrar, C. P. Steimle, and Dr. Lloyd W. Olds, present Head of the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics.

An increasing number of Alumni are backing their interest in their Alma Mater with material help. In the relatively short time since the beginning of our effort, the persons whose names are listed below have made contributions ranging from $2 to $50. Won't you fill in the pledge form on the back of this page and send it to the Alumni Office here at Ypsilanti. "Old Ypsi" needs your interest and your help. Every contribution, large or small, is needed.

An Honored Alumnus

Last June marked the retirement of the Honorable Arthur F. Lederle as a Federal Judge, ending 24 years of judicial service of one of our most distinguished alumni. He was a member of the 1909 graduating class.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Mr. Lederle a Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan. Later Judge Lederle became Chief Judge of the Court, serving in this position until his retirement; he is now a Senior United States District Judge.

Judge Lederle has received numerous citations and honors for his many years of devoted service to the judiciary. On his 70th birthday, in 1957, his friends established The Arthur F. Lederle Scholarship Fund at Wayne State University Law School. We are proud that he was the first winner of our Alumni Honors Award.

In June of 1960, a program took place in Detroit's Federal Building for the presentation of a portrait of Judge Lederle. The portrait was presented by Mr. Fred Walker, President of the Federal Bar Association, and it was accepted by the Honorable Theodore Levin, Chief Judge of the United States District Court, Eastern District of Michigan. Clarke Davis, former president of the Alumni Association, said of the presentation program, "A fine program I should say, and I am proud that he is one of our alumni."

His many articles in professional journals have won Judge Lederle a name for himself beyond the confines of his own city and state.

Alumnigrams

... FRANK E. CREASEY ('93) has written us from Los Angeles where he says he dreams of Michigan, but prefers to live in a milder climate. Mr. Creasey, although 93 years of age, is in good health, does all his own housework and cooks three meals a day.

... MARY M. MOULTON ('04), has retired from teaching and now lives in the Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids, where she continues to take an active interest in alumni affairs and life in general. Miss Moulton taught in Albion for 11 years and for 31 years in Detroit in the Junior High Division of the Department of Education. Miss Moulton received her Life Certificate from EMU in 1904 and her B. A. and M. E. degrees from Wayne State University.

... The distinguished Milton scholar, HARRIS FRANCIS FLETCHER ('12) will retire this year from the teaching faculty of the University of Illinois. Professor Fletcher came to the University in 1926 when there were only a few scattered Milton items in the library, with no first editions. Today, largely due to his efforts, the University Library has one of the world's great collections of Miltoniana, a collection which is the envy of scholars. It includes some 3,000 volumes of texts, a complete collection of first editions of all Milton's writings published in his lifetime, multiple copies of most of them and, the largest collection in the world of editions of Paradise Lost. Professor Fletcher was honored last year by the Milton Society of America when he received its highest accolade — Honored American Scholar.

... GEORGE SPENCER ('12), now retired as state manager of the Security Mutual Life Insurance Company, recently visited the campus. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer spend their winters at their home in Miami, Florida, and their summers at Cornwall Beach, Harrow, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Spencer made one of the outstanding records in the insurance world, leading his company in sales for 22 straight years. On his visit to the campus he was amazed at the growth of the institution since 1912. He was a member of the varsity football and baseball teams and was active in the Arm of Honor fraternity while on campus. ... EARL C. WEBB ('22) will retire from teaching in the South Bend, Indiana public schools on July 9, 1961, after 30 years of service. He has accepted a position with a travel bureau and will begin his "active" retirement sometime in late June.

... ALBERT E. LUMLEY ('25), chairman of the Department of Physical Education and Athletics at Amherst College, has accepted a U. S. State Department assignment to spend the spring and summer of 1961 in Africa as an adviser to the government of Sudan on education and physical training. Professor Lumley, working under the State Department Division of Educational and Cultural Relations, will spend one month touring the Sudan. The remainder of the spring he will be in Khartoum, the capital city, concentrating on three major areas: the status of education in general; the status of health in the Sudanese schools, and the status of physical education in the city. He is also to advise the Sudanese government on the establishment of an olympic team for the 1964 games in Tokyo. Professor Lumley has been a member of the Amherst faculty since 1928 and Chairman of the Department since 1958.

... The Alumni Office was happy to welcome Mrs. Lawrence Hill (ERRAL MARJORIE DEAN '25), of Ishpeming, Michigan, when she visited the campus on March 21 for the first time in 32 years. Mrs. Hill stopped in Ypsilanti after attending a DAR convention in St. Joseph. While here she called on Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Saari who are graduate students at Eastern. Mr. Saari was a student in the high school in Ishpeming when Mrs. Hill taught there.
