Sherzer Hall — Home of many graduate classes

Published in the interests of the Alumni at intervals during the school year by the Division of Field Services, Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, Michigan. PUBLICATION COMMITTEE: Earl K. Report from the Graduate School

In this brief but informative account, James H. Glasgow, Dean of the EMU Graduate School, sketches a history of the Graduate School and relates current developments in the program, paying special attention to the advising system.

During the fall semester of 1961, the number of students registered in the Graduate School at Eastern Michigan University passed the 2000 mark. This milestone seems an appropriate place to report to the 1300 Alumni who have received master's degrees and the many thousands who hold bachelor's degrees.

The Graduate School is completing its ninth year of independent existence. Although graduate courses were first offered on the campus in 1939, until 1953 Eastern Michigan University offered graduate work in cooperation with the University of Michigan.

Graduate adviser Prof. Duane G. Chamberlain of the Industrial Education department advises a student. Other graduate advisers (not shown) are: Professors Hoover Jordan, Donald Drummond, James Gallagher, Richard Giles, Frank Wawrzaszek, George Brower, and Calvin Michael.

The Dean of the Graduate School is in charge of: (1) admissions; (2) advising students, with the assistance of Graduate Advisers in each curriculum; (3) registration of students, with the assistance of the University Controller; (4) keeping records, with the assistance of the Tabulating Office; and (5) preparing schedules, with the assistance of College Deans and Department Heads.

Perhaps the Alumni might have some interest in number two above. The Graduate School is proud of the advising system which it is developing. An applicant, after an initial screening, is assigned to a Graduate Adviser, who studies the student's records and teaching goals. In one or more conferences with the student, a "tailor-made" program of courses is prepared; there are no published curricula, although certain courses may appear on most of the programs for a particular curriculum. No core of courses is required of all graduate students.

When changes in a "tailor-made" program are indicated, the Graduate Adviser makes a recommendation to the Graduate Office. The importance of flexibility in programs is stressed, although students are not granted the freedom of "cafeteria" choices.

Currently, master's degrees are awarded in thirteen departments and areas, and additional departments are studying master's programs. It is interesting to note that more than ninety per cent of the enrollment in the Graduate School is composed of classroom teachers. During the fall and spring semesters, only evening and Saturday courses are available on the graduate level.

For the Graduate School, the number of enrollments in off-campus classes is almost as large as in on-campus classes. Off-campus courses are usually taught by the same instructors who teach them on campus.

There will be another important milestone soon. The Graduate Council at Eastern Michigan University has approved the Ed. S. (Specialist in Education) degree. Following its approval by President Eugene B. Elliott and the State Board of Education, hundreds of Alumni of Eastern will be returning to the campus to earn this new degree.

Professor Herbert H. Caswell, Jr., of the Biology department teaches both undergraduates and graduates.

PROPOSAL FOR SEPARATE GOVERNING BOARD FOR EMU

The Education Committee of the Constitutional Convention had, as this issue of the Alumni Newsletter went to press, reported a recommendation that Eastern Michigan University, along with the other institutions currently under the State Board of Education, have its own governing board with constitutional status.

The Board would consist of eight members appointed by the Governor with approval by the Senate. The plan is essentially that recommended by President Eugene B. Elliott in his appearance before the Education Committee of the Michigan Constitutional Convention on November 20, 1961. The following is the President's statement.

In discussing Proposal No. 1071, "A Proposal to Establish a Separate Governing Board for Eastern Michigan University," submitted by Mr. J. Don Lawrence, I should like to look briefly at the related but separate problems of the governance of higher education and the coordination of higher education. A governing board for any institution of higher education is a legal entity charged with the general responsibility for determining the policies, naming the staff, and managing the property of a college or university. It makes decisions for the institution. It must represent and be responsible to the people of the State. It functions best when it is concerned with the management of a single institution.

The coordination of higher education, on the other hand, is concerned with the relationships among institutions of higher education. It is concerned with determining which institutions shall offer which programs and at what levels. It is concerned with the wise stewardship of a state's tax dollars that will be expended for higher education. Coordination can be arrived at by many means — different states have different solutions. Everyone in higher education feels that coordination is necessary. To the extent, however, that the problems of coordinating higher education get mixed up with the problems of properly governing higher education, the cause of coordination suffers and poor government may result.

Proposal No. 1071, which I wish to discuss, is concerned with the control of one institution of higher education — Eastern Michigan University. This responsibility is now vested in the State Board of Education, as it is also for Western Michigan University, Central Michigan University, and Northern Michigan College (as well as the School for the Deaf, the School for the Blind, and the Pine Lake Rehabilitation Center). I would not want any of these remarks concerning the State Board of Education to be construed as a criticism of its membership — either present or past. Michigan has been extremely well served by its State Board of Education. The problems that exist would be much greater if it were not for the dedicated service the State has received from its Board members, past and present.

The State Board of Education was originally established as a body having general supervision of the State Normal School (now Eastern Michigan University) and a general concern with the proper training and certification of teachers in the State. It was, may I point out, established as a single governing board for a single school. Its membership from its beginning has consisted of three members elected for six-year terms and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as an ex officio voting member. This body now has the responsibility for the control and governance of four rapidly expanding institutions of higher education with many programs not related to teacher education. As noted above, it is responsible as well for the School for the Deaf, the School for the Blind, and the Pine Lake Rehabilitation Center. Its responsibilities in reference to teacher certification and allied areas have multiplied many times. Much of its energies must go into the detailed concerns of teacher certification and settling of school district boundary disputes. The interests of the Board members are dedicated to the institutions of higher education under the Board's jurisdiction, but they work under great difficulties with many competing demands for their time. They do not have the time to actively and intimately concern themselves with the affairs of the growing institutions of higher education under their control.

Another important factor that has multiplied the problems of the present State Board of Education has been the rapid growth of the institutions under its direction. A look at fall semester enrollment figures for the last twenty years illustrates this graphically.

Year	Count	Year	Count
1941	1739	1951	2278
1942	1189	1952	2338
1943	695	1953	2443
1944	776	1954	2796
1945	954	1955	3397
1946	2225	1956	4024
1947	2459	1957	4510
1948	2426	1958	4920
1949	2693	1959	4769
1950	2636	1960	5133
		1961	5299

At the time of its founding, the Michigan State Normal School, now Eastern Michigan University, was a single-purpose institution. Its function was to provide teachers for "the common schools of Michigan." There was a direct and immediate connection between the responsibilities of the State Board of Education to the State's public school system and its responsibilities for an institution which was a primary source of the teachers for that system. The same can be said for the other three institutions subsequently placed under the direction of the Board. Today, however, the picture is much changed. Teacher education is still a primary function, but many additional educational programs are provided by what is now a multipurpose institution. Almost one-fifth of the present enrollment is at the graduate level and beyond the level of initial certification. A large number of Eastern's students do not expect to receive teacher's certificates, and many work for certificates as a secondary rather than a primary educational objective. The complexity of the educational program produces a comparable complexity in the governing of the institution. In my judgment, only a board with time to immerse itself in the problems of a single institution can provide the kind of government that Eastern needs.

It is desirable and necessary that the public institutions of higher education in Michigan be operated for the public's benefit and welfare. Perhaps the best means of assuring this is a governing board of an adequate size with sufficient time to devote to the affairs of its particular institution. Whether the members of such a governing board are elected or appointed does not, to me, seem material.

Except for the four institutions presently under the State Board of Education, it has been the pattern in Michigan that each institution of higher education have its own governing board. Both in those institutions established by constitution and those established by law (two of them recently) such provision has been made.

Eastern Michigan University, when it was established as State Normal School, was under a single governing board. Most of the recent discussions of the possible advantages of a single governing board or a superimposed board for institutions of higher education in the State have been concerned with the problems of coordinating rather than governing. Proposal No. 1071, referred to this committee, would establish a board of governors consisting of eight members. I do not think nor do I believe that Mr. Lawrence thinks that eight is a magic number. Certainly the board should be large enough to make it genuinely representative and large enough to enable it to get easily a working quorum. Members of governing boards are usually busy men. It would seem, to me, that perhaps six members would be a minimum. This board of governors would be a corporate entity charged with full responsibility for governing the University, controlling its expenditures, and managing its property. It would have the autonomy necessary to an institution of higher education. At the same time, the proposal would require an annual accounting to the Legislature. This seems, to me, to be a desirable provision. It judicially combines autonomy and responsibility to the legislative authority of the State.

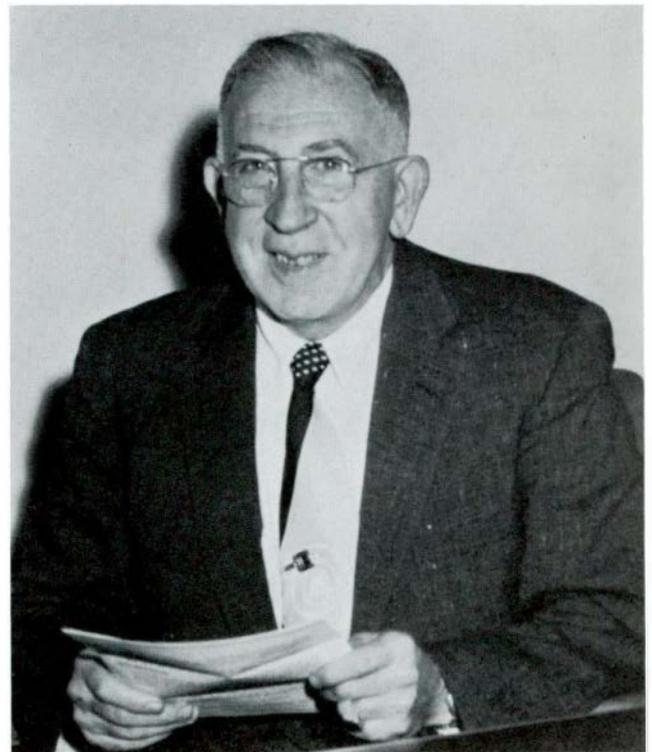

The naming of the president of the university as the presiding officer of the board was a common practice in earlier years. I think better practice is to enable the board to name its own presiding officer with the president of the university sitting in as an ex officio, but non-voting member of the board. It is my strong belief, based on a lifetime of work in Michigan's public education at all levels, that the Michigan system and pattern of education is a good one. It provides, particularly in higher education, a diversity that is necessary in a highly technical society, and in a state which presents a real cross-section of that society. We are completely wrong in our world struggle if competition is a bad thing. Healthy competition among educational systems strengthens them. Different educational institutions serve different regions of the state and different strata of the state's population. A single governing board for each institution can measure and judge and accommodate the educational programs of the institution to the people who must be served. I would also agree that there must be coordination, but this should come from outside of the day-to-day pattern of university life with which a governing board is concerned. I personally feel that the best and most effective coordination will be voluntary. A governing board must have power to make decisions and to carry them out. It is necessary that it be held accountable to the Legislature and to the people for those decisions.

In conclusion, I would like to indicate my conviction that the establishment of a separate governing board for Eastern Michigan University would best enable it to meet the educational needs of the state and region it serves. It would enable it to plan better and carry out its plans on both a short and long term basis. The Legislature would properly exercise its control over a higher education in the State through its power to make appropriations. There can be better coordination of higher education in the State with nine strong institutions with widely varying roles but with equal status. Whether the coordination comes, as at present, through voluntary inter-action among the institutions or through some superimposed system, the real strength of higher education is in the strength of the individual colleges and universities.

Eastern Michigan University does not see the establishment of a separate governing board as an invitation to change substantially its educational program. Now and into the future, as far as we can see, the primary role of the University will remain what it is now. One of the greatest strengths of any institution is to have its programs and decisions under perpetual review by a group outside of the day-to-day administration of the institution. This function has been traditionally performed in the United States by a college or university governing board. In this fashion, the citizens of Michigan can continuously review the plans and programs, and, in this fashion, the institution has the flexibility to review and meet new needs that may arise.

ALUMNIGRAMS

... ROLPH S. PATRICK ('88) of Des Moines, Iowa, recently wrote to Registrar Everett Marshall requesting a catalog. Mr. Patrick is 91 years of age. He has a son, a former Rhodes scholar, who is Vice President and on the Board of Directors of the Bankers Life Insurance Company of Des Moines, a grandson who was recently graduated from Harvard and is presently a Rhodes scholar, and another grandson who teaches economics and sociology in a small college in California.

... Mrs. ZELMA TROWBRIDGE ROESELER ('94) recently wrote from Windham, Montana, to tell us she enjoys the Alumni Newsletter.

... Dr. and Mrs. Robert Gray Henderson of Claremont, California, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last summer. Mrs. Henderson is the former SUSAN SMITH ('06).

... Mrs. JUNIA LATHERS KIDD ('09) is now living in San Diego, California. Mrs. Kidd and her husband lived in Utica, Michigan, for many years until his death in 1951.

... Mrs. EMILY KNOX BEARDSLEE ('14, '42) retired this year after 36 years in Michigan public schools. For the past 17 years she has taught in the Lake Shore schools of St. Clair Shores.

... On January 17, EDMUND M. CONKLIN ('12, '18) was honored by the Hamtramck Board of Education and school personnel at an afternoon reception at the Copernicus School in Hamtramck. That evening the Board of Commerce and the Hamtramck Council sponsored a dinner at the Knights of Columbus Hall and presented Mr. Conklin with a huge portrait of himself. Mr. Conklin has been an educator for nearly a half century, most of it with the Hamtramck schools. Called an "institution" in Hamtramck education, Mr. Conklin retired as superintendent of schools in June, 1961. Immediately after his "retirement," he took a part-time counseling job with the school system, concentrating on dropouts and student job placement.

... EDMUND HAUG BREMER ('17) has written from Douglas, Michigan to notify us of the death of his wife, the former RACHEL GROFF ('16). Mr. Bremer's mother, KATE HAUG BREMER, and her sisters graduated from "Ypsilanti Normal" between 1882 and 1887, and his three daughters also attended MSNC, two of them graduating. He is now hopefully waiting for one of his granddaughters to enter EMU, rounding out four generations of Bremers to attend.

... GERALD OSBORN ('27), professor of chemistry and former acting president of Western Michigan University, will spend a year in the Philippine Islands as a teacher and lecturer at the University of Santo Tomas. While in the Philippines, Dr. Osborn also will serve as a consultant to the Philippine National Science and Development Board.

... DORIS M. SMITH ('28), a teacher whose 43-year career spans from the one-room school to the highly-specialized field of reading consultation and diagnostics, is retiring from the Livonia Public Schools. Miss Smith, who has been with Livonia schools for 33 years, was a teaching principal at Cady School in Wayne before going to Livonia in 1928. The Livonia Board of Education accepted her retirement with regret and commended her for her dedicated, loyal, and outstanding service.

... ETHEL DROSCHA LOOMIS ('28) has been teaching in the public schools of Philadelphia for 17 years. She received a B.S. degree from Temple University in 1954 and has since earned the Master's equivalent in Philadelphia.

... Dr. GERALD P. COOPER ('31) of Ann Arbor, head of the Michigan Institute for Fisheries Research, a branch of the Conservation Department, is the new president of the north-central division of the American Fisheries Society. He was elected head of the 12-state group at Lincoln, Nebraska.

... Following the customary procedure at Ferris Institute of naming residence halls after persons who have played significant roles in the development of Ferris, one of the new dormitories bears the name of KARL G. MERRILL ('33), now serving as Vice President Emeritus. In 1956, at the time of his retirement from active service, Dr. Merrill had completed his thirty-sixth year on the Ferris staff and his fifty-second in education.

... For the past six years JAMES MCKINLEY ('33) has been with the Veterans Administration in hospital work. He is now Administrative Assistant to the Chief of Staff of the Veterans Administration Hospital at San Fernando, California.

... JANE-ADDAMS GROH SCHMIDT ('35) is teaching in secondary education in Boalsburg, Pennsylvania. Her husband is an associate professor at Penn State.

... EVA BELLE GLASSFORD ('36) was recently married to Dr. Richard Pomeroy, who is president of Pomeroy and Associates, a consulting civil and chemical engineering firm in Pasadena, California.

... LOMA MAY ('38) recently spoke at the Amelia Earhart dinner given by the Ann Arbor Zonta Club. Her topic was "Twenty-five Years After Amelia Earhart." Miss May is senior planner for the Jam Handy Organization of Detroit. She is immediate past president of the Detroit Zonta Club, a member of the Ninety-Niners, and has been a licensed pilot since 1941. She was selected as one of the Top Ten Women in Business in Detroit in 1961. Amelia Earhart was a member of Zonta, and, after her death in 1937, Zonta International established a scholarship fund as a memorial to her. The scholarships, which now amount to $2,500 each, are granted to qualified students in the aeronautic sciences.

... ESTHER HUETER ('39) is now Mrs. Robert Wirschem, whose husband teaches music at East High in Rochester, New York. They have a son in his second year at Western Michigan University, four teenagers at East High, two children in elementary school, and two pre-schoolers.

... During his tour of duty in Stuttgart, Germany, Captain OREN DeHAVEN ('48) was coach of the Army Overseas football champion Stuttgart Stallions, who won the U. S. Army Europe title after an undefeated 8-0 regular season, and then added the Overseas title by beating the U. S. Army Far East champions with a victory in the Freedom Bowl game at Frankfurt.

... WILLIAM G. WERT ('49) is now

assistant professor in the Science Department at Indiana State College, Terre Haute, Indiana.

... ROBERT J. SIMPSON ('49) has been appointed assistant professor for courses in school administration at Miami University. Dr. Simpson has been a teacher, assistant superintendent, and superintendent in Michigan public schools. He holds a master's degree from the University of Michigan and the Doctor of Education degree from Wayne State University.

* ... LOUIS A. WILLIAMS ('49-'50), senior grade lieutenant in the Navy, has received a commendation from the Chief of Naval Air Training for his outstanding work as a flight instructor. During his three-year tour of duty, Lieutenant Williams has accumulated more than 1700 accident-free hours of teaching about 100 students to fly the T-34 primary trainer. Lieutenant Williams was the subject of a three-page picture story in a recent issue of the magazine, Sepia.

... Mr. and Mrs. Ian H. Brown, Jr., of Farmington, Michigan, announce the birth of a daughter, Rebecca, on October 22. They have two other children, Danny, 6, and Larry, 3½. Mrs. Brown was JOAN SMALLIDGE ('51).

... JAMES M. MESSMORE ('51) was recently transferred from the Chevrolet Frame and Stamping Plant to the Assistant Personnel Director's job at Chevrolet-Flint Manufacturing Plant.

... ROSEMARIE ABER VAN INGEN ('52) reports that her husband has a new position this year as Junior-High principal in Northville, Michigan. The Van Ingens have two children, Lisa and Mark.

... HENRY L. GOTTWALD ('52) has been appointed assistant professor of special education at Michigan State University. In this capacity Dr. Gottwald will do research and train future teachers in special education.

... CLARENCE E. GERRISH ('53) has been appointed to the faculty of Rhode Island College as assistant professor of industrial arts.

... Mrs. DOROTHY BROWN AINSLIE ('55) published an article entitled "What's In the Post Office for Second Grade?" in the December issue of The Instructor. Mrs. Ainslie is a second grade teacher at Lincoln School in Monroe, Michigan.

... Since her graduation, DORIS TERRY MARTIN ('56) has been married and has had three children. Mrs. Martin's teaching experience has been two and one-half years of first grade and one-half year of second grade. At the present time, she is doing substitute work in Monroe County.

... Mrs. Leonard Schweitzer (ROSEMARIE GUSTAFSON '57) has been on the teaching staff at the Ohio School for the Deaf since graduation. The Schweitzers live in Columbus, Ohio. They have a son, Jordan Leonard, born in 1960.

... SHELVA JEAN BAUGHMAN ('58) was married in June, 1961, to John F. Wessel in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Mrs. Wessel flew as a stewardess for Eastern Air Lines from February, 1959, until September, 1960, when she was promoted to, and is presently employed as, instructor at Eastern Air Stewardess School in Miami Springs, Florida.

... MARLENE WHITE REIN ('58) received a Master of Arts degree from Ohio State University on December 15.

... First Lieutenant JOHN D. MICHAEL

('58) is serving with the 3d armored Division's 503d Aviation Company in Germany. The 3d, which is known as the "Spearhead" division, is one of five U.S. divisions in NATO's "Pyramid of Power" in Europe.

... DON ALCHIN ('59) is teaching in Medellin, Colombia, South America for two years. After two years of teaching experience in Florida, Don secured the job in South America through the Inter-American Schools Service of the American Council on Education in Washington, D. C. The school in which Don teaches is privately owned by the American Oil Company for the education of their employees' children. His students are mainly Colombian and North American, but all classes are taught in English.

... ANDREW C. MACDONALD ('59) has been named assistant professor in the department of intercollegiate athletics at the State University of Iowa, Iowa City. MacDonald holds the B.S. degree from Central Michigan University and the M.A. degree from EMU. Since 1953, he has been a teacher-coach in a Flint, Michigan high school.

... WILLIAM HARVEY POIRIER ('60) received the Master of Arts degree from the George Peabody College for Teachers on August 18, 1961.

... In recent ceremonies on Okinawa, CHARLES T. CRICKMORE ('60) received the silver bar, signifying his new rank as First Lieutenant in the 65th Artillery's Battery D.

... Second Lieutenant PAUL T. WICKLIFFE ('60) has completed the 16-week officer rotary wing aviator course at the U. S. Army Primary Helicopter School, Camp Wolters, Texas. He is scheduled to report to the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Alabama, for 14 weeks of advanced helicopter flight training.

... Second Lieutenant NORVILLE H. SCHOCK ('60) completed the airborne course at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, on December 15. Lieutenant Schock received his paratrooper wings after completing four weeks of intensive ground and aerial training and instruction in the techniques of air transportation and delivery.

... SUSAN M. CASSELL ('60) was recently appointed to the staff at Casa Colina Rehabilitation Center at Pomona, California, as a registered occupational therapist. Prior to coming to Casa Colina, Miss Cassell worked at Camp Paivika, Crestline camp for handicapped children.

... The following members of the 1961 class are serving their country in various branches of the Army: Second Lieutenant PATRICK L. BARNEY completed the eight-week officer orientation course at The Provost Marshal General's School, Fort Gordon, Georgia, on December 14. During the course Lieutenant Barney received instruction in police investigation, handling prisoners of war, actions to be taken in civil emergencies, traffic control, military leadership, and battle indoctrination; Second Lieutenant WILLIAM A. BLASHFIELD completed the eight-week officer orientation course at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia, on December 14. The course is designed to familiarize newly-commissioned officers with the duties and responsibilities of an infantry unit commander; Second Lieutenant PHILLIP L. ECKMAN completed the officer orientation course at The Infantry School at Fort Benning on October 11. Lieutenant Eckman was trained in the duties and responsibilities of an officer in an Army infantry unit; Second Lieutenant EDWARD W. JAKIEL completed the eight-week officer orientation course at the Army Chemical Corps Training Center. Fort McClellan, Alabama, on November 4. The course provides branch training for newly commissioned Chemical Corps officers; Second Lieutenant RICHARD H. LEAR completed the eight-week officer orientation course at The Chemical Corps School at Fort McClellan on December 16. Lieutenant Lear was trained in the duties of a Chemical Corps officer, and received instruction in the tactics, techniques, and material used in chemical-biological-radiological operations and defense; Army Private RAINER E. NAUS recently was assigned to the 46th Chemical Company at Dugway Proving Ground, Utah. Naus, a chemical warfare specialist in the company, entered the Army in July of last year and received basic training at Fort Ord, California; Second Lieutenant PETER J. SAPUTO, JR. completed the ten-week officer orientation course at The Signal School, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, on December 20. He received instruction in military leadership, atomic warfare, small unit tactics, staff and command procedures, and communication systems and equipment; Second Lieutenant PAUL L. SCHULTZ recently completed the eight-week orientation course for Medical Service Corps Officers at Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Lieutenant Schultz received training in administration, medical supply procedures, sanitary engineering, and the action to be taken in disaster situations; Second Lieutenant EDWARD D. URSEL completed the officer orientation course at The Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Virginia, on December 5. Designed for newly-commissioned officers, the course instructed Lieutenant Ursel in the mission and organization of the Transportation Corps and in the responsibilities of military leadership.
