Michigan Health Endowment Fund, Behavioral Health

Behavioral health is crucial to physical health and overall wellness, yet tremendous barriers to treatment remain. Challenges like a lack of providers, insurance restrictions, stigma, and uncoordinated delivery of services mean that too many suffer without appropriate care. To effectively treat individuals with complex healthcare needs we must break down silos and integrate behavioral healthcare with primary care and other community-based supports. The Health Fund's Behavioral Health program supports innovative and patient-centered integration models, projects that increase capacity of an existing workforce, and other evidence-based behavioral health programs. Our grantees in this area are creating lifelines and transforming the healthcare landscape to propel Michigan as a leader in behavioral health.
