Scout Day Observed

This Saturday's grid battle against CMU has been designated "Scout Day" by the athletic department. Nearly 2,000 Boy and Girl Scouts from the Wolverine and Huron Valley Councils will be guests at the game. A pre-game ceremony will honor those scouts who have received the Eagle and First Class rank during the past year.

Application for Promotion

The deadline for submitting application for promotion to your department head is Thursday, Dec. 14. Applications are available in the Office of the Vice-President for Academic Affairs, 146 Pierce, or may be obtained from your department head.

NSF Fellowships

The Graduate Fellowship and the Minority Graduate Fellowship are being offered by the National Science Foundation for the 1979-80 academic year. The fellowships are being awarded for study or work leading to a master's or doctoral degrees in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering and social sciences and in the history and philosophy of science. Nov. 30 is the application deadline for the Graduate Fellowship while Dec. 8 is the application deadline for the Minority Graduate Fellowship. Applications are in the Office of Financial Aid, 208 Pierce.

Satellite Orbits

Dr. P. Daniel Trochet, assistant professor in the Department of Physics and Astronomy, will discuss "Satellite Orbits and the 4062 Flatbed Plotter" at a seminar in room 300 of Strong on Monday, Nov. 13 at 4 p.m. Several computer programs which simulate orbiting satellites will be run and the plotter demonstrated.

Two Extra Sections Offered

The Department of Military Science is offering two additional sections of Military Science 100, to run from Nov. 9 to Dec. 15. The course includes instruction in wilderness survival and marksmanship, and examination of the arms race and an introduction to the theory and practice of leadership. This class is open to all students on campus and the two semester hours of credit may be applied alternatively as activity credit, elective credit or as part of a military science minor. Meeting times are 3-5 p.m. MWF or 5:15-6:55 p.m. MWTh. Interested students may register in Briggs Hall or contact Captain Joel Williamson in room 18 Roosevelt, 7-1020.

Open House

The Department of Industrial Technology and Industrial Education will sponsor an open house Wednesday, Nov. 8, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the lobby of Sill Hall.

Contemporary Parenting Project Aimed at Helping Parents Cope

"Contemporary Parenting: A Community Approach" is the title of a new demonstration project directed by Dr. Bruce Warren of the Sociology Department.

Classes and workshops in three communities are scheduled to begin near the end of January and will last for eight weeks. Programs in Jackson will be held in conjunction with Jackson Community College; in Grand Rapids they are to be sponsored by Grand Rapids Junior College; while the Wayne-Westland Public Schools will be providing classes in that area.

Classes will be for all parents, with an "emphasis" on adoptive parents, single parents, step-parents, foster parents and parents of handicapped children.

Subject matter of the classes and workshops will vary in the three communities and will be based on a needs assessment which is now being conducted.

Warren states that there will be an advisory board in each community which will ensure that the content will match the parents' needs.

"We want parents in the community to have input into the curriculum," he emphasizes.

Each of the three areas has a field coordinator, with Cherry Adams in Jackson County, Judy Visser in Kent County and Angie Laycock in Wayne County.

The field coordinators currently are working on the all-important needs assessment. "In talking to churches, schools and various other community agencies, they tell us that people are coming to them and seeking resources to improve their parenting," Warren explained.

Warren hopes that one outgrowth of the parenting project will be a greater awareness of what each agency is doing for parents. "We hope to form a coalition of groups and organizations that are involved in parent education. We are attempting to assess what gaps exist that need to be filled. Parents need to be able to find the information they need," he said.

"We want to build on what is already there. In each of these three communities there are already some existing parent courses," he went on.

The purpose of the program is to provide a means for parents to meet and discuss the problems of parenting. In addition, they would be able to increase their knowledge about normal child development, increase their skills in managing behavior and increase their awareness of existing community resources.

Warren states, "We are aiming at good parents who want to do even better at raising their children rather than parents who have been labeled as needy. All parents have strengths and weaknesses and want to do a good job raising their kids. There are not enough parents out there getting their questions answered."

Dr. Bruce Warren, Hannelore Rader and Keith Stanger are conducting a computer search for resources to be used in the Contemporary Parenting project coordinated by Warren.

He explains why such classes and workshops are necessary. "A few decades ago, most people married in their late teens or early 20's. They tended to stay married and live near their relatives and were close to their neighbors.

Career Symposium Nov. 13-17

Several experts from around the nation will be featured speakers at a symposium titled "Today's Career Marketplace" Nov. 13-17.

The symposium is part of the Career Horizons program which has been exploring the world of work and career selection this fall at EMU.

The symposium begins on Monday, Nov. 13, in Pease Auditorium when Ellen Perry will discuss "Finding an Occupation."

Perry is one of the nation's leading career consultants. She is a long-time associate and student of Tom Jackson—one of the nation's top experts on manpower and employment.

Perry's background includes a master's degree from Stanford University, extensive business and commercial experience in the financial and advertising areas and a long history of work with women's groups, consciousness-raising and career/life planning programs.

Perry currently is researching material for a book on job power for women and lecturing to college students and adults enrolled in continuing education.

She will speak from 7-9 p.m. on Monday.

On Tuesday, Nov. 14, from 7-9 p.m. in Pease Auditorium, Dr. James Comer will speak on "The Skills and Knowledge Needed in

Women's Studies Week Nov. 6-10

A variety of activities are planned for Women's Studies Week on the campus of EMU Nov. 6-10.

The purpose of Women's Studies Week, in the words of chairperson for the week Nina Contis, is "to make students, faculty and others aware that there is a Women's Studies Program on campus."

Dr. Marie Richmond-Abbott's class, "The Sociology of Sex Roles," will be one of eight Women's Studies classes open for visitation by anyone during Women's Studies Week.

The Women's Studies Program began during the academic year 1973-74 with just two courses. This fall, approximately 250 students are enrolled in the eight courses offered. Twenty-two courses in all comprise the Women's Studies Program.

In 1975, Eastern became the first university in the state to offer a minor in women's studies.

Graduate courses are also offered.

Women's Studies Week began on Monday, Nov. 6, when a consciousness-raising program titled "A New Way To Look at Yourself" was offered in McKenny Union at 5 p.m. EMU student Annita List-Tomecek acted as the facilitator.

On Tuesday, Nov. 7, there will be a film titled "Emerging Women: Women in the U.S." at noon in the Burson Room of Roosevelt Hall. The film and brown bag lunch meeting is sponsored by the Free To Be Lunch Bunch.

On Wednesday, Nov. 8, there will be an all-day display of women's studies student projects in the McKenny Union lobby.

At noon on Wednesday, women's studies faculty will discuss courses being offered in the program for the winter 1979 term in the Alumni Lounge of McKenny Union.

From 5 to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, a potluck supper and discussion will take place in the Jones Hall recreation room. Discussion will center around the short story by Tillie Olsen titled "Tell Me a Riddle." The story depicts aging through the eyes of a grandmother approaching death.

On Thursday, Nov. 9, there will be a brown bag lunch and talk by Mary Vielhaber, an instructor in EMU's Department of Management, on "Communication for the Career Woman." The program is sponsored by the EMU Women's Association and will be held at noon in the Alumni Lounge of McKenny Union.

From 2 to 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, there will be a discussion on "Thoughts About Women and Assertiveness," led by Maryanne Raynor, from Holy Trinity Chapel, and Glenna Frank, area manager in EMU's residence hall program.

From 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. that

Harry Bowen Studies Communication

Dr. Harry Bowen can speak for hours about speech.

Bowen has been at EMU for 11 years and is a professor in the University's Department of Speech and Dramatic Arts.

During the 1976-77 school year, Bowen himself became a student attending the University of Michigan on sabbatical leave.

Bowen went to the U of M "to study interpersonal and group communication, rhetorical theory and public address to update my knowledge of the second area and to take beginning course work in the first and third areas."

Previous to his sabbatical, Bowen taught traditional speech, rhetorical theory and some small group communication. After the year of study, "I was able to add to that at least two courses, one in interpersonal communication and one in non-verbal communication," Bowen explained.

Bowen feels that one of the most pressing problems in interpersonal communication is the "vital need to read each other's signals accurately," he says.

"You have to learn to recognize various cues and learn combinations and the rhythm of various cues."

Bowen goes on to explain that everyone gives cues while trying to communicate. These vary from eye movements to a gesture using the hands or the way something is said.

"We have to put these cues into context and respond appropriately."

Bowen is of the opinion that the better able someone is in responding appropriately during interpersonal communication, the better he or she gets along in life.

"There are a lot of people who go through life creating a lot of unhappiness," he says. "A lot of times it isn't done deliberately. They are just not conscious that they are creating a different impression."

It's also important for people to filter the cues they are given, Bowen adds. Not all cues are important or significant. "When people don't pick up on obvious cues, that can really mess things up."

Bowen continues to say that oftentimes people don't even realize why they have given a wrong impression.

Bowen said previous to the sabbatical, "All I knew (about interpersonal communication) is what I had read in books. I hadn't formally studied it. I was in a group at the U of M and we analyzed each other's interpersonal communication. That's easy to say but it took half of a semester to be able to share one's reactions and not worry about being stomped into the ground."

"I learned a great deal about myself, I learned things that I didn't know and therefore I became a more honest communicator I think."

As much as Bowen loves the field of communication, his interests include other areas as well.

He and his family are members of the St. Clare of Assisi Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor. Bowen is a lay-reader in the church and also belongs to the choir. He is also a member of the U of M Choral Union.

In addition, Bowen hosts a radio show on WEMU on Monday nights at 9 p.m. titled "It Sounded Like This." The show examines jazz and Bowen has presented it since 1971.

Harry Bowen

"I've been interested in jazz since I was a teenager and played the sax and clarinet—not very well," he noted.

When he was a little older, Bowen announced jazz shows on remote for a radio station in Youngstown, Ohio.

"Idora Park was one of the main and very lush places where bands stopped in the 1940's and '50's. They used to get Tommy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Billy Mays, Vaughn Monroe, really class outfits plus good regional bands."

By handling the announcing chores, Bowen was able to meet many of the jazz greats like Monroe, Eddie Sauter, Bill Finegan and others.

He says of his current radio show, "I like to accurately recreate an era both for the people who lived it and for those younger people who didn't but might find it interesting."

Bowen received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Westminster College in Pennsylvania, a Master of Arts degree from Ohio State University and a doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh.

Women's Studies Week

evening, there will be a panel discussion moderated by Dr. Sally McCracken, associate professor of speech and dramatic arts at EMU. The discussion will center around "Women at the Bargaining Table." On the panel will be Dr. Kaye Baughman, the union negotiator for the Van Buren Schools and also an English teacher in the Van Buren Schools; Carolyn Forest, who is associated with the non-teaching union at the University of Michigan; and Ethel Howard, who will represent the industrial side of labor-management relations.

The panel discussion will be held in Guild Hall of McKenny Union.

On Friday, Nov. 10, there will be a reception and party from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Jones Hall Lounge co-sponsored by the Women's Commission. Refreshments and entertainment will be offered.

At 8 p.m. the Big Mama Poetry Troupe will perform in Roosevelt Auditorium. The troupe is co-sponsored by the Office of Campus Life and the Division of Student Affairs.

Big Mama is a Cleveland, Ohio-based ensemble of seven members, including a director and musician, that performs its own material.

The group consists of Barbara Angell, Marguerite Beck-Rex, Meredith Holmes, MaryAnn Larkin, Sally Pirtle and Betsy Reeves. Dorothy Boroush acts as director.

Running through the entire week will be a continuation of Judy Loeb's painting exhibition in the Sill Gallery titled "Flora." Hours at the gallery are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. A women's studies book exhibit will run through the week in the library lobby during regular library hours.

In addition, those interested will be able to attend the eight women's studies courses being taught this term during the week.

Classes include "Psychology of Women" taught by Dr. Barbara Brackney in 123 Mark Jefferson from 1 to 1:50 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; "The Sociology of Sex Roles" taught by Dr. Marie Richmond-Abbott in 414 Pray-Harold from 1 to 1:50 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday; "The History of Women in Europe" taught by Dr. Margaret Rossiter in 417 Pray-Harold from 2 to 3:15 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday; "Women in Literature" taught by Dr. Nadean Bishop in

Second Faculty Recital To Be Held Nov. 7

The second program of the Faculty Recital Series will be held in Pease Auditorium on Tuesday, Nov. 7 at 8 p.m.

The program will consist of the Quintet for Piano, Oboe, Clarinet, Horn and Bassoon by W. A. Mozart; the Nachtwandler for Soprano, Piccolo, Trumpet, Snare Drum and Piano by Arnold Schoenberg; the Nocturnes for Soprano, Horn and Piano by Arnold Cooke; and the Septet for Wind Instruments by Paul Hindemith.

The recital will feature Armand Abramson on clarinet, Holly Barrett on oboe, Carter Eggers on trumpet, John Ginther on bass clarinet, Dr. Rodney Hill on flute, Dr. Marvin Howe on horn, Elaine Jacobson on piano, Michael Jameson on percussion, soprano Emily Lowe, Dady Mehta on piano and Robert Quayle on bassoon.

The performance is free and open to the public.

Play Pokes Fun at College Life

A comedy play about the college experience will be presented Wednesday, Nov. 8, at noon on the EMU campus.

"Is There Life After College," featuring Boston comedian Bill Alexander, will be presented in the McKenny Union Ballroom.

Each of the play's four acts corresponds to a year in school and is a blend of one-man theater and stand-up comedy.

Alexander is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and worked as a speech writer for U.S. Senator John Heinz.

He now resides in Boston, Mass., where he administers his own production company and also owns a nightclub called The Comedy Shoppe. He also has a comedy show on a radio station in Boston and stars in and co-produces a cable television program.

The play is free and open to the public.

15th Annual Turkey Shoot Nov. 13-17

The 15th Annual EMU Turkey Shoot, hosted by the ROTC Cadet Battalion at Eastern, will be held Nov. 13-17.

Prizes, including trophies and turkeys, will be awarded for the highest scored target for male and female staff/faculty and students as well as for dorms, fraternities, sororities and organizations.

Competition will be held on the Roosevelt Hall rifle range between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Thursday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday.

Last year 400 participated in the competition.

Rick Ward's sculpture and art, such as the above drawing called "Glass-Mind," will be shown in the Intermedia Gallery through Nov. 17.

Inmate's Art Featured at Intermedia Gallery

The paintings and sculpture of Rick Ward, an inmate at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, will continue on exhibit in Eastern's Intermedia Gallery, located in McKenny Union, through Nov. 17.

Rick Ward has served 14 years in prison for armed robbery. He has spent the last three years in the psychiatric ward after several suicide attempts.

A psychotherapist introduced art to help Ward communicate his feelings. Ward's only materials were crayons, oil pastels and clay.

The resultant art work has led Ward to achieve what he calls a 'rebirth' providing a change from self destruction to living.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and admission is free.

Television Workshop Changed to Nov. 27-28

A workshop with two West Coast television directors has been postponed until Nov. 27-28.

Originally, Jack Shea and Bob Lally were scheduled to spend Nov. 5, 6 and 7 on the EMU campus conducting seminars and workshops for students and teachers in a television curriculum from EMU and other area universities.

Although most of the activities are limited to students and teachers, there will be a special program for the public on Monday, Nov. 27, at 8 p.m. in 216 Pray-Harold titled "An Evening With..."

There will also be a reception on Monday from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The program has been made possible through a series of grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Office of Campus Life.

Rev. Charles Irvin Addresses Faculty Luncheon-Discussion

by Tim McBride

"The move toward traditionalism in religion is reflected in and partially caused by the move toward traditionalism in the culture," said Reverend Charles Irvin. Irvin, who serves as chaplain at St. Mary's Student Chapel in Ann Arbor, spoke at the faculty Luncheon-Discussion on Wednesday, Oct. 25, at the University Lutheran Chapel. His topic was "The Move Toward Traditionalism in Religion."

"We can look at traditionalism as conservatism, then you get into an analysis of it and you see it's multi-caused," said Irvin. He went on to say "Conservatism today, as I see it, is a self interest movement. For instance, you have the self awareness sessions, the touching-feeling theology sessions, the guru, assertiveness training, self development programs; all of that in the so-called religious sphere is very, very self-interested, self-directed and self-centered for the most part."

"Another factor in the equation is we're into a crowd kind of organization; church council meetings, city council meetings, political assemblies, committee meetings. They're all based on the 'crowd principle.' And the 'crowd principle' is this: A crowd moves as quickly as it can to dispersal. It wants to get out of the meeting as best as possible and it doesn't want to hold anybody accountable. it appeals to the self-interest of all of the participants. It's a very conservative power structure," said Irvin. He also explained that "team ministry" today is very difficult because it's up against the conservative crowd movement.

Irvin also discussed what he calls "bomb shelter" theology. "Bomb shelter" theology, Irvin says, is based on the belief that "we're approaching the end of time and that doom is just around the corner." The resulting effect, he says, is that "we sit like birds on the edge of the cliff waiting for the sun to set, the lights to go out and darkness to settle on the face of the earth. There's a whole tradition in the new stream of Christian thinking and teachings that support these ideas."

"It seems to me there's another kind of traditionalism," Irvin said. "It's what I call a traditionalism of 'rooting.' When you think of the 'Roots' phenomenon and everybody's suddenly going into an examination of their genealogy, you can see churches returning to the traditional kinds of symbols that give them identity. It's a struggle to take us out of the crowd, an attempt to recover the rootedness in the symbol system. Traditionalism that's 'rooting' seems to be a movement to recapture strength and to stand against the current."

Nathan Hawks Keeps Campus Kitchens Supplied

When the cooks in Eastern's kitchens run low on groceries they let Nathan Hawks know about it.

Hawks, a warehouseman in the University's Food Stores, conscientiously sees that the pantries in all of the kitchens on campus are stocked with nourishing (and high quality) foodstuffs. What's more, he makes sure that all of the campus food orders are distributed to the cooks on time. Hawks handles all of the receiving and distribution of food on campus with just the help of three part-time student employees.

"I receive everything that comes in and make sure that the kitchens get everything that they need. This (the lower level of Dining Commons 3) is the central distribution point for all of the food that is shipped to campus. I deliver it all myself," Hawks said as he gazed at the impressive stockpile of food.

Hawks obviously is used to dealing with large orders in maintaining the $160,000 inventory in the food warehouse. The University consumes approximately 3,000 pounds of chicken every two to three weeks in addition to 100 cases of eggs. Most of the poultry that the University purchases comes from Detroit while much of the meat is purchased from the Armour Co.

Part of a recent grocery shipment included 4,000 pounds of roast beef (it comes in 18-20 pound pieces), 4,000 pounds of bulk ground beef (in ten-pound packages) and 2,000 pounds of hot dogs. Ham is ordered in 50-pound cases. All of the meat that the food service staff uses is kept in a freezer at zero degrees fahrenheit.

"We don't buy anything unless it's USDA Choice," Hawks stated. "We purchase top name brands in almost all of the food we order... 'Starkist' tuna, for instance, is the best tuna you can buy and you can't buy a better salad dressing or cooking oil than Kraft makes."

Most of the rows of foodstuffs display such easily recognizable names as "Campbells," "Kraft," "Armour," "Hunts," "Heinz," "Del Monte" and "Chef Boy-ardee." Hawks has developed his own system to keep all of the food stored in an organized manner and each of the items has its own designated area with a printed card complete with a computerized reorder number.

Hawks, a native of Hastings who worked in a steel toundry for 15 years before coming to Eastern, is continually receiving shipments and distributing food to kitchens throughout campus. He delivers the food each day and alternates the delivery of "freezer orders" and "dry goods."

Special orders go through the food stores warehouse regularly. Recently, for instance, 2,100 pounds of T-bone steak arrived for a special meal for dorm residents.

"Last Christmas they had Cornish hens and we had a 'soul menu' this fall with barbecued spare ribs, fried chicken and everything else," Hawks said.

Hawks also handles seafood shipments of shrimp, perch, whitefish and scallops that arrive in 40-50 pound cases.

Fresh fruit, vegetables and produce are shipped to individual kitchens on campus each week and bread is delivered three times a week from the Shaeffer Bakeries in Jackson. Hawks and his three helpers weigh each shipment and inspect it before accepting it.

"If anything comes in that isn't just right we send it back... We will not fool with it unless it is perfect," he advised.

In addition to stocking foodstuffs, Hawks also supplies the campus kitchens with dishwashing liquid and such items as paper napkins and styrofoam coffee cups—anything that is used in Eastern's dining facilities. In between shipments he works at keeping the warehouse clean and advising Irene Smith, the account clerk in Food Stores, of needed items. (Smith keeps computer cards on each of the items that EMU purchases for easy reorder.)

Hawks is beginning his ninth year working for the University. He began working as a custodian in the Mark Jefferson building in 1970 and then worked in Central Stores until 1976 when he began work in Food Stores.

One of the added benefits of working in the food warehouse is that it allows the burly warehouseman to practice one of his hobbies—weightlifting. The 48-year-old resident of Ypsilanti regularly works out at Vic Tanny's and can press 700 pounds over his head.

"I do a lot of lifting around here," Hawks said as he glanced at the stacks of food shipments.

PUBLICATIONS

Dr. Marshall B. Tynm, associate professor in the Department of English Language and Literature, had an article titled "An Annotated Bibliography of Critical Studies and Reference Works on Fantasy," published in the January issue of the CEA Critic.

Alethea Helbig, associate professor in the Department of English Language and Literature, had reviews of an anthology of poetry, "Alone Amid All This Noise," edited by Anne Reid and a novel "The Devil in a Forest," by Gene Wolfe published in the Spring 1977 issue of Michigan English Teacher titled "Double-Barreled Appeal." In the December issue, her article titled "Give Children Poetry Good Poetry," was published. In addition, eight reviews of children's books by Helbig have been published by the Children's Book Review Service recently.

Dr. David Geherin, associate professor in the Department of English Language and Literature, will soon have an article published in the The Armchair Detective titled, "The Lard-Boiled Detective Hero in the 1970's: Some New Candidates." An article of Geherin's on Joan Didion appeared in Post World War II American Novelists this year.

Dr. Edward Compere, professor of chemistry, had two articles published, as the result of research done by Compere and two of his students last year. "Synthesis of x-Aminoarylacetic Acids from Bromoform, Arylaldehydes, and Ammonia, with Potassium Hydroxide/Lithium Amide Combination as Catalyst," was published in "Synthesis: The International Journal of Methods in Synthetic Chemistry." "Chloroform and Aliphatic Aldehydes with Sodium Hydride as Catalyst in Tetrahydrofuran," was published in the Journal of Organic Chemistry.

Eleanor Trithart, instructor in home economics, has an article titled "New Dimensions: The Dietitian in Private Practice," published in the July 1978 issue of the Journal of the American Dietetics Association.

Dr. Wallace LaBenne, professor of educational psychology, is having his book, "The Cure is in the Cause" recorded on magnetic tape by Recording for the Blind, Inc.

Development Campaign Questions and Answers

The following are some questions and answers concerning Eastern's second all-campus development campaign which began Nov. 1 and runs through Nov. 15.

What Is the EMU Development Program?

The EMU Development Program is a University program to secure private funds from alumni, friends, parents, corporations, civic organizations, private foundations, students, faculty, staff, and labor unions for specific needs of the University.

How Are Private Funds Raised?

There are several ways: direct mail appeals of a general university-wide nature; special and more selective direct mail appeals by departments or colleges; a phonathon using student volunteers to call alumni across the United States; specific written proposals to corporations and private foundations; personal visits to special gift prospects or to selected groups of people with special areas of interest.

What Is the EMU Annual Giving Program?

This is the name given to the program which provides the private support for those needs of an ongoing or recurring nature such as scholarships or for special needs which cannot be met through General Fund appropriations.

What Are the Goals of the 1978 EMU Annual Fund?

The goals are to raise $200,000 cash dollars from 15 percent of Eastern's alumni and from an increasing number of faculty, staff, friends, corporations, and foundations.

How Will This Be Accomplished?

Four direct-mail appeals are planned for mailing throughout the year to alumni and at least two direct-mail appeals are planned to be mailed to friends and corporations. In addition, a student-alumni phonathon is planned in late February and early March. Also, personal visits will be made to cultivate or solicit special gift prospects, and once each year the campus community will be asked to participate in the annual giving program.

What Constitutes a Fund Year?

The "annual giving" fund year coincides with the calendar year. The 1978 EMU Annual Giving Program begins on Jan. 1, 1978, and ends on Dec. 31, 1978.

Is There a Payroll Deduction Plan for Employees to Make Gifts?

Yes. Normally, payroll gift deductions can begin approximately one month after the deduction form has been received in the Office of Development. Payroll deduction forms will be available at the Payroll Office, the Credit Union, and the Office of Development throughout the year. Forms will be mailed to all employees during the "1978 All-Campus Campaign". Questions about payroll deduction should be directed either to the Payroll Office (7-239.3) or to the Office of Development (7-0252).

How Important Is the '1978 ALL-CAMPUS CAMPAIGN'?

It is extremely important not only because of the "supplemental" funds that will be raised but also because faculty and staff participation in Eastern's development program is proof of the campus community's belief in itself! An expression of campus commitment becomes a valuable tool in selling Eastern to its alumni and friends.

When Will the '1978 ALL-CAMPUS CAMPAIGN' BE HELD?

Letters soliciting support for the campaign will be mailed on Nov. 1, and the campaign will conclude on Nov. 15. Gifts to Eastern, however, can be made throughout the year, and payroll deductions can begin at any time.

What Are 'CATEGORIES' OF GIVING?

Categories of giving are really gift ranges that enable donors to become members of one or more clubs which have been established to honor donors. The donor clubs and ranges are as follows: Tower Club — $400 to $999; Men and Women of Eastern — $100 to $399; President's Club — $1,000 to $9,999; University Circle — $10,000 or more; Huron Club (Athletics Only) — Booster: $25 to $99; Century Club: — $100 to $499; Benchwarmers Club: — $500 to $999; Coaches Club: — $1,000 or more.

Are There Any Tax Benefits of Giving a Gift to Eastern?

Yes, both Michigan and federal tax laws make the cost of a gift much less than most people realize. For example, a $25 gift costs only $7.00 for a person with a $10,000 taxable income and who files joint returns with the State and the federal government. The Office of Development has charts which illustrate the cost of different size gifts at other income levels.

Can You Designate How Your Gift Is To Be Used?

Yes, gifts can be designated and may be split in as many as four different accounts. However, Eastern's greatest need is for "unrestricted" support, and donors are encouraged to make "unrestricted" gifts and pledges.

Is Your Gift Important?

It is important no matter what the amount. Private support that supplements state appropriations, tuition, and fees will help Eastern remain a quality educational institution. Furthermore, your participation and the participation of the campus community can help reaffirm our faith in this institution and help us promote Eastern with our alumni and friends.

Tax Laws Favor Giving

Tax laws encourage contributions to higher education.

The following table is provided to assist you to intelligently plan your gift to Eastern Michigan University while at the same time applying tax laws to your advantage.

All advantages are outlined with the assumption that you itemize your deductions for federal income tax purposes.

Confer with your tax advisor for details applicable to your personal situation

*A contribution qualifies as a deduction under federal laws and due to favorable tax laws in Michigan pertaining to gifts to higher education as a credit under Michigan income tax laws. The credit allowed is 50% of your gift, 20% of your tax liability or $100 ($200 if a joint return is filed), whichever is less. The tax savings derived from the state credit may affect the federal taxable income of the donor for the tax year following the year of the contribution.

Contemporary Parenting Project

"Through coffee klatching with neighbors and talking with relatives, they were able to get feedback on their parenting. But now, with more than 40 percent of the women working and our highly mobile society, people don't have the same opportunity to share. We're attempting to meet that need with parent education discussion groups."

Contemporary parenting, according to Warren, is further complicated by the "blending" of families. Blended families occur when two people who already have children get married. Other blended families might have both natural and adopted children in the same household. Still others might have foster children as well.

Contemporary families have such diversity. It is more difficult to find other families that have similar situations and problems with whom to discuss parenting problems.

In addition, Warren adds that more women are working and "Women at work are less likely to discuss parenting than if they were sitting next to a neighbor in the park watching their children play."

He continues, "We start from the assumption that there is no one right way to parent. One parent learns best from another. We want parents to be able to learn from each other, to determine what will work with their family, and get feedback on their ideas."

He adds that the program will be designed for parents with varied academic backgrounds. The classes will be for all parents, no matter how much schooling they have completed.

Warren likes to stress that the "classes" will not be the lecture type. "Changing one's day-to-day behavior with children doesn't come from an expert telling parents the latest theory. It comes from people talking to other parents, with an in-depth exploration of specific situations and with practice through role-playing. You can only do such things with people you trust. It's easy not to accept something a stranger tells you."

Another major focus of the demonstration project is to identify and utilize materials and resources for parent education that already exist. Libraries play a major role in accomplishing this task.

To this end, Hannelore Rader of Eastern's Center of Educational Resources, the project's resources-materials specialist, will be exploring the possibilities of involving libraries in each of the three communities. Also she will help to develop a delivery system for parenting resources, and she will identify children's literature that parents can use with their children.

The last, Warren relates, "is a modification of bibliotherapy but more of an educational approach."

Long-term goals of the project are to develop a curriculum to be used in classes and workshops on contemporary parenting and to develop a delivery system for that curriculum that can be used on a statewide basis.

EMU Grad Terry Phipps To Discuss Writing and Photography Nov. 8

Novelist - photographer Terry Phipps, a 1968 graduate of Eastern, will discuss "Writing and Photography as a Career" in a Student/Alumni Rap Session to be held at EMU Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the Jones Hall Lounge.

Phipps, currently a teacher in Davison, recently published a book titled "meadow larks, june bugs and dreams" that was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize. The book is a study of the relationship between a man, a woman and nature. His book was written in free verse and incorporated black and white and full color photography.

Phipps currently is writing a novel and has completed two other books that are in the publication process. He also does photographic work for Time-Life, Inc.

Phipps' EMU visit is cosponsored by the Office for Alumni Relations and the EMU Residence Hall Program. The lecture is free and open to the public.

'Women in Transition' Subject of Discussion

by Bernell Hornsby

"When I first faced the reality of divorce, I was still attempting to get by from day to day. It hadn't occurred to me yet that the rent would be due soon." Comments like this one were part of the discussion concerning financial management of women in transition. This particular discussion was one of several that took place at Eastern's Library last Friday, Oct. 27.

All-Campus Hayride

The Family Housing Organization at Eastern will sponsor an all-campus hayride on Saturday, Nov. 11. The hayride will begin at 1 p.m. and will end for adults at 8 p.m. The children's wagon will stop circulating at 6 p.m. The hayride will coincide with Eastern's last home football game of the season.

Each ride will last for approximately 45 minutes and there will be three wagons available. Younger children must be accompanied on the ride by an adult. The pick-up points will be at Pinegrove and at Westview family housing complexes. Hot chocolate, hot cider and doughnuts will be sold at the pick-up points.

The hayride will be free to all EMU students. Non-students' children (under 14) will be charged a quarter and non-student adults (14 and over) will pay .50 cents per ride. For more information, call either 485-3184 or 485-0814.

Margaret Quinn, coordinator of the Women in Transition Program for the Michigan Consumer Education Center, led the discussion. The main questions that Quinn as well as the group members were faced with were very basic. How does such a program begin? How does the program assure itself of reaching those who need the service? Where should such a program locate itself? These are but a very few of the questions discussed.

The provision for childcare during the meetings was one of the concerns discussed. The topic of cost per session, publicity and transportation to and from the sessions also were issues in the meeting.

At present, there is a pilot program being set up for women in transition. The program will be located at St. John the Baptist Church at 411 Florence.

Traditionalism Discussed

Irvin continued, "There seems to be this filtration in all religions and certainly in the Roman Catholic Church. I find there's more interest in processions, processional crosses and the high church elegance. Our celebration is moving away from the 'folksy guitar' although I don't think we'll ever abandon the guitar."

Irvin's address also included a discussion period.

Student Affairs Committee Roundup

The Student Affairs Committee of the Board of Regents at its meeting Thursday, Nov. 2:

Heard a report on a proposal to change the University's housing payment plan presented by Tom Sullivan, director of housing. The new policy would utilize a monthly payment plan for housing charges and is targeted for implementation in the fall of 1980.

Heard a report on various activities scheduled for Humanitarian Day.

Heard a report from Greg Peoples, director of Campus Interact, on new satellite centers which will expand student services and offer an information and referral service to students at locations throughout campus. The new service will begin Monday, Nov. 13.

Heard a report on the University's minority recruitment effort by Roger Wiley, director of admissions.

Discussed the University's policy on x-rated movies and voted to form a committee of faculty, students and administrators to design a policy to review x-rated movies.

Discussed a proposed visitation schedule to various offices on campus and decided to proceed with the visits as planned.

Heard a report on changes in the University's canvassing policy from Dorian Sprandel, executive director of student affairs.

Heard a status report on the search for a new director of student publications from Laurence Smith, vice-president for student affairs.

Heard a report from Nancy Thompson on the success of the All Campus Party.

Set the next meeting for Thursday, Nov. 30.

CER

EDM/ENG 200

Dean of Students Dr. Bette White asked us the other day what was new and exciting in the library. We told her about the new library skills course to be offered next semester. White put us straight. "That's not new! When I started at Eastern it was a required course for all Freshmen."

Meanwhile the '60's came along and a lot of requirements went out the window. But independent study programs increased and, with them, the need for library research skills.

In the early 70's the EMU library built up its orientation program with library instruction to English and Speech 121 classes as a major component. At the same time the program's "clientele" was diminishing as EMU's entering student population came to include as many transfers as freshmen.

After a generation of major changes at Eastern, a library skills course has got to be "new," and in many ways this one is. As a 200 (Special Projects) course it is not generally open to freshmen. As a major part of the CER's current grant program of library services for non-traditional students, it is being designed primarily for such students, most of whom are also transfers.

Among non-traditional students, those who are starting or continuing college after several years out of school seem to be especially aware of the need to build library research skills. Freshmen will be accepted into this course if they are starting college this fall or winter after five years or more out of school.

Since most non-traditional students appear to be evening students, the winter '79 sections are scheduled for 5:15-6:55 p.m. A daytime section or two can be added if there is a demonstrated need.

The course will be given through the English Language and Literature Department and the Curriculum and Instruction Department. That means it will be cross-listed as ENG 200 and EDM 200. Its subtitle is "Information-seeking in the Library."

The course will be taught by four librarians: Ann Andrew, Margaret Best, Ron Colman, and Keith Stanger. They are currently planning the course with input from project advisor Hannelore Rader and from C & I and English faculty.

The four sections are scheduled for 5:15-6:55 on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings on EMU campus and for the same time on Wednesdays at Jackson Community College as part of our 2+2 program.

EDM/ENG 200 may be taken as a Basic Studies Group Elective. It is expected to attract "traditional" as well as non-traditional students. Since it will give two hours of credit, its students will probably all be taking at least one other course concurrently. Teaching methods will differ between the four sections. All these factors will provide data for the research component of the grant which supports EDM/ENG 200.

Research

Rehabilitation Research Fellowships

(M. Reesman)

The Office of Human Development Services of HEW offers a Rehabilitation Research Fellowship Program. They are awarded to assist in increasing the supply and improving the competence of personnel qualified to carry out advanced research which would contribute to the vocational rehabilitation of the physically and mentally disabled. The program has no specific deadlines. Applications should be received at least three months prior to the desired date of notification.

International Relations Fellowships

(M. Reesman)

This Rockefeller Foundation fellowship program focuses on specific contemporary or anticipated problems relating to world energy, world food and agriculture, and regional conflicts and security arrangements.

There are no specific eligibility criteria, previous practical experience, demonstrated research ability required to be competitive. Deadline is Dec. 15.

Exxon Educational Foundation

(S. Burt)

The Educational Research and Development grant program is directed toward experimental programs aimed at providing more efficient use of personnel and physical facilities in colleges and universities. Projects such as special studies, conferences and workshops which will benefit a broad segment of higher education will also be eligible for foundation support.

Preliminary proposals should be submitted by December 1.

PARTICIPANTS

Dr. James Rokusek, professor and head of the Department of Industrial Technology and Industrial Education, participated in the annual fall conference of the Michigan Council of Industrial Teacher Educators on Oct. 30. He spoke on "The Role of the Michigan Council of Industrial Teacher Educators in Professional Development."

Dr. Doris Kilanski, associate professor of educational leadership, participated in a meeting of the American Education Research Group at the University of Wisconsin Oct. 27-28. The purpose of the meeting was to explore the current research studies concerning women in education, administration and leadership positions.

Francesco DiBlasi, EMU symphony conductor, was guest conductor with the Pontiac-Oakland Symphony Orchestra on Oct. 27. This marked the 25th anniversary of that orchestra. Four herald trumpets played by EMU students Mark Arslanian, Marianne LaVere, Michael Kirby and Eric Smith were an added attraction on the program in Wagner's Prelude to Die Meistersinger.

Herbert Wilson, assistant professor in the Department of Industrial Technology and Industrial Education, gave a presentation on "Early Intervention Prevocational Program for Handicapped" at the 14th annual Michigan Association of Children with Learning Disabilities conference (MACLD) held at the Detroit Plaza Hotel Renaissance Center on Oct. 20-21.

Dr. Daryl Hafter, associate professor of history and philosophy, was an invited delegate at the Critical Issues Conference held Aug. 14-18 in Roanoke, Va. The purpose of the conference was to re-evaluate the philosophic basis of history and technology.

Dr. Ramesh Garg, associate professor of finance, presented a paper titled "The Question of Brazil's External Borrowings and Transfer of Resources" at the annual meeting of the Financial Management Association Oct. 12-14.

John Weeks, associate professor of industrial technology and industrial education, made a presentation on the relationship of vocational education to federal and state safety legislators at the 25th Annual University of Wisconsin-Stout Industrial Education Conference.

Dr. Lawrence Kersten, associate professor of sociology, presented a paper at the theory construction workshop of the National Council on Family Relations held in Philadelphia, Pa., in October. The title of the paper was "Expansion of Exchange Theory: Personality Types and a Therapy Approach."

Michael Zahratka, associate professor of art, won first place in a national exhibition of small paintings recently. Exhibitors represented all 50 states. Zahratka's prize was for "Pink Equine." He had two paintings in the exhibition.

Normajean Anderson, associate professor of administrative services and business education, spoke to the secretarial staff of EMU's Housing Office recently. Anderson explained the preparation and form of an agenda and for taking proper minutes of meetings.

Dr. Donald Briggs, associate professor of history, presented a paper titled, "Chamberlain and Italy, 1938-39," at the 12th Annual Duquesne University History Forum on Oct. 18-20.
