

LOEX QUARTERLY

Affiliated with Eastern Michigan University's Bruce T. Halle Library

Volume 37, Number 3, Fall 2010

After a delay, we're finally ready with the next issue of the Quarterly, our first to be put in our new online home, Digital Commons. The new location for the Quarterly is <http://commons.emich.edu/loexquarterly/>. It has been tested, poked and prodded, and while I am sure there will be the inevitable glitches involved with any new technology/system for a small subset of readers, we will work quickly to resolve them. Hopefully, the added functionality and better-looking format will benefit LOEX members. As a side note, we will be sending out another issue soon, as we need to catch up.

I have signed up almost 100 LOEX institutions for access via IP Address authentication for their campus. Once again, to sign up for this, please email the IP address(es) and institution name to loex_ipaddress@live.com. For those who don't have IP access, you can always use the log-in and password, which is sent out to the LOEX E-List every time the Quarterly is posted online. If you need the password again, please email loex@emich.edu. Authentication or a log-in/password are only needed for the most recent four issues.

Regarding the actual content of this issue of the Quarterly, we have more of an international flavor, with an article from Hong Kong and also an interview with the co-executive director of Librarians Without Borders. In addition, we have a book review, an article on engaging English Comp students and a TechMatters.

Until next time,
Brad Sietz
Director
