Glass is one of three honorary degree recipients approved by the Board of Regents at its November meeting.

Also receiving honorary degrees will be George Henry Muller, president and founder of the Advanced Ideas Research Foundation in Ann Arbor, and Evelyn Berezin, president of Greenhouse Management Corp. of New York.

Glass will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree by EMU. He was born in New York state's Pittsfield Township in 1933 and earned his bachelor's degree in physics from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He holds master's and doctoral degrees in physics from Yale University.

Glass served as staff scientist for the Institute of Defense Analysis in Washington, D.C. In 1966, he founded the Laser Physics Branch of the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory. In 1968, he joined the staff at Wayne State University, serving as professor and later as chairman of the Department of Electrical Engineering. Also, he served as head of the Theory and Design Analysis Group at The Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory and became assistant associate director of lasers in 1978.

Glass became president and chief operating officer of KMS Fusion Inc. in 1981. He is a member of numerous professional organizations and his research has been widely published.

Muller will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree. Born in Basel, Switzerland in 1917, he holds two baccalaureate degrees in arts and mathematics and has attended advanced classes in mathematics, physics, chemistry and biology at the University of Paris, France. He holds a master's degree from the French Army Corps of Engineers Academy at Versailles, France and has received training from the Ford Motor Co. and from the National Training Laboratories at Gould University in Bethel, Maine.

Muller has been president of the Advanced Ideas Research Foundation since he founded it in 1966. He serves as vice president of engineering and planning for Self Sharpening Surgical Steel Corp. and is a consulting engineer to the Ford Motor Co. in car product development. Until May 1983, Muller was technical planning and features manager of Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn. He was employed in various engineering management capacities by Ford in Dearborn, Argentina and France since 1964.

While teaching at Henry Ford Community College in 1966, Muller developed the "Idea Trigger Session," an accelerated concept generation process.

Muller is an accomplished and prolific inventor and has 109 patents on record.

Berezin, 58, will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree. She is president of the Greenhouse Management Corp., the general partner of the Greenhouse Investment Fund, which invests in high technology companies. She also is president of Pottech Corp., consultants in office automation.

Berezin holds a bachelor's degree from New York University where she completed all course work for a doctoral degree in physics. She is credited with designing the first national on-line airline computer reservation system in 1960, while she served as manager of logic design for the Teleregister Co. (now Bunker-Ramo).

In 1969, Berezin organized Redactron Corp. and was its president until 1978. The company designed, developed and manufactured word processing systems that were sold worldwide. The company became a subsidiary of Burroughs Corp. in 1976. At Burroughs, Berezin served as director of long range planning for electronic office automation systems.

Berezin has six patents on record. She has written several articles for professional publications and numerous articles about her have appeared in such publications as Newsday, Cosmopolitan, the New York Times and Business Week.

"THE NATIONAL HEALTH" will be presented Friday, Dec. 9 through Sunday, Dec. 11 in Quirk Theater. The play, written by Peter Nichols and directed by British exchange professor Phil Thomas, revolves around the lives of six male patients in a hospital ward in England. Throughout the play, the patients face their individual problems and strive to cope with them together, resulting in comedic confusion and rich satire. Curtain time at Quirk is 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 7 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $4.50; $3 for EMU students and Mainstage members, and are available by calling the Quirk Theater Box Office at 7-1221 between 12:30 and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Regents Summary _____ Advisor _____

The University Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at their regular November meeting:

—A new Bachelor of Business Administration degree program in accounting information systems was approved.

The program is designed to meet a growing need for graduates with preparation in both accounting and computer science. It embodies the strengths of a dual major, while permitting the student to complete the entire program in four academic years. Major program emphases include the development of a sound technical accounting and auditing base, along with skills in Electronic Data Process auditing and in EDP systems design and implementation. The program will begin in the 1984 winter semester.

—Regents approved a University-wide program and development program that will fall under the auspices of the Office of Human Resources. It will provide training and development services to the University community, stressing improved organizational effectiveness and productivity, as well as the acquisition of skills, knowledge and abilities required for individual and career development and work-related success.

—Regents approved the union-negotiated salary package ratified last month by the EMU Chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

The amendment to the EMU-AAUP agreement gives all faculty members appointed prior to Jan. 1, 1983, and eight percent increase in salary, retroactive to the start of the 1983 fall semester. The salary agreement was the only part of the faculty's two-year contract that was subject to negotiation.

—Regents approved a contract agreement with UAW Local 1976, comprised of members of the administrative, professional and technical staff.

The agreement, which already was tentatively ratified by union members, applies to approximately 175 employees and will cover the period from Nov. 30, 1983 to Oct. 31, 1985.

The salary package of the agreement provides for a seven percent increase for all bargaining unit members on the active payroll as of Nov. 30, 1983. The increase is retroactive to Oct. 30, 1983.

—Regents approved an eight-percent increase in base salary for all non-bargained-for administrative, professional and confidential clerical/secretarial employees.

The increase is retroactive to July 3, 1983, and applies to those employed at EMU as of Nov. 30, 1983.

—Regents approved two separate contract agreements with the officers and sergeants of the University's Police Order of Police, State Lodge of Michigan Labor Council. The agreements extend from Nov. 30, 1983, through Feb. 28, 1986, and apply to nine police officers and five police sergeants who comprise EMU's campus police force.

In addition to the provisions carried forward from the current FOP contracts the agreements give all campus police on the payroll as of Nov. 30, 1983, an eight percent increase in their annual base salaries, or an increase to the minimum rates specified in a new salary schedule, whichever is greater, effective July 3, 1983.

—Regents approved a number of funding and design changes in the University's group insurance programs that were discussed at the October Board meeting. The changes, which are expected to save the University approximately $200,000 annually, were recommended by the Wyatt Company, a consulting firm hired to review EMU's insurance programs.

—Accepted ten educational grants totaling $1,544,329 including a $1,500,000 grant from AID for the continuation of the Yemen Project. The AID grant is a continuing grant, which began in 1979 and is designed to increase the quality, availability and effectiveness of basic education in the Yemen Arab Republic.

Thus far this year, the Regents have accepted 48 grants totaling $3,316,658, a 41 percent increase in funding when compared to the same period last year.

—Regents accepted $350,241 in gifts for the third quarter plus October, including $269,724 for the month of July. The University has never received $200,000 in a single month other than December prior to this period.

The largest single gift was $81,145 from the estate of Helen I. Kuehn, 1949 graduate of EMU. Of her estate gift, $60,000 is designated for art education scholarships for entering freshpersons who meet specific academic criteria, $15,000 is designated for scholarships for incoming theater art students and $6,145 is a gift from the Presidential Departmental Holding Fund.

Two $50,000 contributions to the Quirk Theater Development Fund were accepted from Margaret Cameron of Ann Arbor and an anonymous donor.

This year's gift total is $678,941 compared to $334,786 at this point in 1982, an increase of nearly 103 percent. The number of donors to date has increased from 5,223 in 1982 to 6,602 in 1983.

—Regents approved a $45,414 increase in the 1983-84 General Fund operating budget to provide funding for the National Center on Teaching and Learning from Dec. 1, 1983, to June 30, 1984.

Originally, funding for the center was provided for the center from the Mott Foundation. However, the funding has expired and the grant was not renewed, leaving the center without the funds needed to operate for the remainder of the 1983-84 fiscal year.

—Regents also discussed the Annual Report on Discipline and Student Conduct.

Submitted by the Dean of Students Office of the Division of Student Affairs, the report outlines the number and types of infractions committed against the EMU Student Conduct Code as well as the types of disciplinary actions taken.

Repeat Policy

For a variety of reasons, students at Eastern find it necessary and/or advantageous to repeat a course or a number of courses. When repeating a course, it is the student's responsibility to notify the Registration Office during the registration process. In addition, several important regulations should be noted.

- 1) A course may not be taken more than three times without the permission of the head of the department offering the course.
- 2) A student may not repeat more than 10 courses in the completion of a baccalaureate unless permission is granted by the Academic Standards Committee.
- 3) Only the last grade received for a course, regardless if it is higher or lower, is used in the computation of the grade point average and in compiling graduation credits.
- 4) All grades earned remain on the student's permanent transcript. Repeated courses are designated as such.

Please check on page 26 of the 1983-84 undergraduate catalog for a complete list of rules regulating the repeat policy or contact Academic Services Center, 7-3344, if there are further questions.

Requirements for Majors, Minors, and Basic Studies

Students requiring a baccalaureate degree must complete at least a 30 hour major and a 20 hour minor or a specialized curriculum of 50 hours or more which substitutes for a major/minor, e.g. business, nursing, social work, etc. No courses on the major may be "double counted" toward minor or vice versa. There must be a minimum of 50 distinct hours meeting the major and minor or program curriculum requirements. However, courses taken to meet the basic studies may apply toward a major or minor if they are required courses listed in the undergraduate catalog or approved by the department. Also, all students, including transfers, must earn at EMU nine hours of courses numbered 300 level or above on a major; six hours of 300 level or above on a minor; or 15 hours of 300 level or above on those curricula which includes both major and minor. For more detailed information, see page 34 of the 1983-84 undergraduate catalog or contact Academic Services Center at 7-3344.

Cross chronicles 18th Century England

Gilbert Cross

Gilbert Cross has never had to rest on a tick-infested straw bed in a stony room lit by the dull red glow of a guttering lantern. Nor has he ever had to pay a penny for a moth-eaten blanket or dine on "slimy broth made of rice and oatmeal."

Yet, reading a few descriptive passages about the Newgate gaol (jail) from his latest novel "A Hanging at Tyburn" just may leave you wondering if this EMU English professor wasn't somehow "there" some 200 years ago.

"A Hanging at Tyburn" (Atheneum Publishers, 1983) is a delightful novel for older children and inquisitive adults as well. Set in 18th Century England, it chronicles the adventures of an "orphaned" 14-year-old, George Found, whose recurring nightmare of facing the hangman takes on a too real significance in the year 1760.

Cross' adolescent character enters the story as a strolling player in a ragtag acting troupe who abruptly becomes a lone adventurer when a spectacular troupe stunt backfires. He meets up with Francis Eggerton, the enterprising Duke of Bridgewater who employs George as a miner and later as an accounts keeper.

Adventure builds as the duke, with the help of equally eccentric engineer, James Brindley, embark on building the first of the British cross country canals to transport coal.

Along the way, George nurses a friend through the plague, forms some lasting relationships, searches for a long-lost father and eventually awaits hanging in Newgate gaol when the duke's adversarially frames him.

The lively first person narrative and 18th Century detail, complete with maps, create an intriguing piece of children's literature and an equally fascinating intrigue with the book's author.

Cross, a native of Manchester, England has been on the EMU faculty since 1966. He earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Manchester, a master's degree from the University of Louisville and a doctorate from the University of Michigan.

Since 1972, he has served as codirector of the Adelphi Calendar Project, a comprehensive research effort to compile an accurate assessment of the character and scope of the 19th Century stage in London.

His first book, "Drury Lane

Journal: Selections from James Winston's Diaries 1819-1927," was a joint effort of scholarly nonfiction with Dr. Alfred Nelson, professor of English at EMU.

In 1977, Cross published "Next Week—East Lynne: Domestic Dramas in Performance 1820-1874," a book on theater history which won him the Barnard Hewitt Award for "outstanding contributions to theater history."

His first novel, "The Drakov Memoranda," was a spy thriller which Cross published under the pen name Jon Winters. "I decided on a pen name because I wanted to have two separate writing careers. I want to write some things as a scholar and write some things for the fun of it . . . not that I don't get fun out of both, and not that both are not difficult," said Cross.

The Winters name however, was a bit of a fluke. The original title of the "The Drakov Memoranda" was "His share of Winters" but was changed by the publisher. "Since the word 'Winters' appeared on every page, we simple changed that to the person's name for the title," added Cross.

Next, Cross combined efforts with Atelia Clarkson, a former EMU folklorist, to publish "World Folktales: A Scribner Resource Collection" in 1980.

"A Hanging at Tyburn" appears to have had its beginnings long before Cross ever thought of becoming a writer, or anything else for that matter. "It's a book set near where I was born," he said. "And as a child I used to look over the road bridge at this huge orange colored pond and just be absolutely petrified. I subsequently found that it is not 60 feet below the road bridge, but about eight. And, I saw the last of the coal boats that went into the underground canals rotting away. So I came in at the end of this great escapade, but it stayed in my life ever since," said Cross.

Although the characters in the Tyburn novel are imaginary, Cross admits to the strong influences that real people have on the kinds of characters he creates. "I like to base all my characters on people I know because its easier," he said. "Then all you have to do is remember what that person is like, and you can add another detail, especially if they're working with you, or living with you, or they're all around you."

He includes himself as a potential novel character as well. "I get a chance to say the things that I want to say under the guise of fiction. It's a great revenge," he joked.

Cross' main frustration as a writer is that there is "never enough time" to write. In addition to his full-time commitment at EMU and his research project, he is a husband, a father to two children, and a cubmaster. "Being a good husband and good father is much more demanding of time and energy (than any writing exercise)," he said. "And, if it weren't for my wife, I could not do any writing. She handles all that stuff that I could never handle."

Cross' hectic but happy balance of work and family surfaced in this latest novel. A fictional character is happily married to Peg. Twins Robert and John are asleep upstairs. "We are as happy and content as any four people on earth," Cross wrote. Cross and his wife, Peggy, have two sons, Robert and John.

Jim Boyce figures his 1983-84 EMU men's basketball team should be a contender for the Mid-American Conference championship and 65 members of the MAC News Media Association agreed with that assessment after picking the Hurons fourth in the pre-season poll. The poll was conducted here Wednesday, Nov. 16, at the MAC Press Preview.

The 65 members of the news media chose Ohio first with 628 total points and 44 first place votes with Bowling Green second at 602 total points and 21 first place votes. Toledo gained the third-place nod with 436 points with Eastern Michigan and Miami tied for fourth with 407 points each. Northern Illinois held down the sixth spot with 343 followed by Ball State at 318, Central Michigan 174, Kent State 166 and Western Michigan 94.

"I'm happy that the voters consider us a contender," Boyce said of the fourth-place vote. "We have some real talent on this year's club and I think the voters were aware of that. I just hope that now we live up to those expectations."

Boyce's Hurons opened the 1983-84 season on the road Nov. 26 at Cleveland State.

CORRECTION—In the Nov. 22 article about the radio soap, "Newsroom: Davenport," Harry Bowen should have been listed as a professor of communication and theater arts.

Research

Health Behaviors and Aging: Behavioral Geriatrics Research

The National Institute on Aging is seeking applications on the nature of older people's health behaviors and attitudes and those of their relatives and significant others, as these behaviors and attitudes can promote or inhibit health and effective functioning in the middle and later years. Research is needed to specify how particular health behaviors and attitudes are acquired or changed as people grow older, how they are influenced by social contexts, how they relate to etiology and pathogenesis of particular diseases, and how they interact with physiological and psychological aging processes to affect particular health outcomes, and how they influence the need for health care services and institutionalization.

Proposal submission dates for 1984 are March 1, July 1 and Nov. 1. Contact R. Howard at 7-3090 for assistance.

Research Grants Program

The American Philosophical Society makes grants toward the cost of scholarly research in all areas of knowledge except those in which support by government or corporate enterprise is more appropriate and readily available. Scholarly research does not include journalistic or other writing for general readership; the preparation of textbooks, casebooks, anthologies or other materials for classroom use by students; or the work of creative and performing artists.

Applicants are normally expected to have a doctorate, but equivalent scholarly preparation and achievement may be substituted. Grants are rarely made to persons who have had the doctorate less than a year; and never for predoctoral study and research.

Persons interested in applying should send a letter briefly describing their proposed project, along with a budget, to: Committee on Research, American Philosophical Society, 104 South Fifth Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19106. The deadlines for applying for 1984 are Feb. 1, April 1, Aug. 1, Oct. 1 and Dec. 1.
