Regents Summary _____ Study recommends funding changes

The University Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at their regular October meeting:

—A $593,551 increase in the General Fund operating budget was approved. The increase sets the 1983-84 budget at $62,595,360.

Of the approved increase, $393,151 will fund 24 budget priorities that were previously approved by the Regents. The remaining $200,400 will fund priorities identified during the first quartile of 1983-84 University operations.

—Eastern's 1984-85 budget request to the state of Michigan for $46,678,764 was approved. Of this amount, $3,146,764 represents a restoration of appropriated funding that was removed from the 1984-85 base by Executive Orders for use during EMU's 1983-84 fiscal year.

The base appropriation request of $43,532,000 represents an 11.9 percent increase over the amount appropriated for 1983-84.

—The Regents discussed a plan calling for a 10-year campaign to raise $3,330,000 in scholarship funds to be given as Departmental Uniqueness Awards to 555 incoming freshmen each year.

The $750 Departmental Uniqueness Awards are given to students who have a high school grade point average of 3.0 and an identifiable interest in majoring in one of EMU's departmental areas of specialty.

The University currently has 141 Departmental Uniqueness Awards available for 1984-85.

—The Regents received a 1982-83 scholarship summary report, compiled by the Office of Financial Aid. The report outlines the University's General Fund commitment for scholarships and "federal matching required" funds during the 1982-83 academic year.

In 1982-83, EMU awarded

$1,685,438 from its General Fund to 2,786 students.

The summary also states that the amount of General Fund dollars available for scholarships is expected to rise dramatically during the next four years as the result of an increase passed by the Board in August. The number of students receiving awards for academic excellence is expected to increase by 44 percent.

—The Regents approved market salary and equity adjustment for a number of faculty and staff members.

Those receiving market salary adjustments are:

—Joan E. Laird, assistant professor in the Department of Social Work, who will receive a salary increase of $5,000.

—Virginia A. Bottorff, assistant professor in the Department of Home Economics, who will receive a salary increase of $2,200.

—Paul D. Trochet, professor in the Department of Physics and Astronomy, who will receive a salary increase of $3,000.

—and Walter N. Tucker, professor in the Department of Industrial Technology, who will receive a salary increase of $2,000.

The following people will receive equity adjustments:

—Dennis M. Beagen, head of the Department of Communication and Theater Arts, will receive a salary increase of $2,000.

—Richard Byrd, of EMU's Accounting Department, will receive a salary increase of $1,474.

—David Costanza, senior programmer in University Computing, will receive a salary increase of $2,000.

—Ben Czinski, manager of the Kresge Environmental Education Center, will receive a salary increase of $1,493.

—Patrick Doyle, senior accountant in the Accounting Department, will receive a salary increase of $2,145.

—Robert England, director of Recreation and Intramurals, will receive a salary increase of $4,083.

—Charles Fulford, academic Advisor in the Academic Services Center, will receive a salary increase of $3,500.

—Ellen Gold, associate director of Recreation and Intramurals, will receive a salary increase of $2,700.

—Nancy Gruschow, conference sales manager for Hoyt Conference Center, will receive a salary increase of $3,331.

—Joseph Jorfi, assistant director of the Admissions Office, will receive a salary increase of $2,245.

—James R. Laatsch, director of Personnel Services, will receive a salary increase of $2,010.

—Juanita Reid, assistant director of the Office of Financial Aid, will receive a salary increase of $2,000.

—Michelle Sanford, academic advisor in the Academic Services Center, will receive a salary increase of $3,500.

—Florence Stasiak, senior programmer, analyst, coordinator in University Computing, will receive a salary increase of $2,000.

—Arthur Timko, director of WEMU-FM, will receive a salary increase of $3,000.

—Kathleen Tinney, director of Information Services and Publications, will receive a salary increase of $3,921.

—James Vick, manager of Service Operations, will receive a salary increase of $2,417.

—and Jacqueline E. Wiley, compensations programs assistant in the Office of Human Resources, will receive a salary increase of $1,120.

All salary adjustments are effective immediately.

The EMU Board of Regents heard an evaluation report on the University's group insurance programs at its Oct. 26 meeting. The evaluation recommended a number of funding and design changes which will be voted on by the board at its next meeting.

The changes, which are expected to save the University $200,000 annually, will not directly affect the kind of coverage employees are receiving. The changes were recommended by the Wyatt Company, a consulting firm hired to review EMU's Insurance programs.

Included in the new plan are two proposals which would make EMU's medical and dental insurance self-funding.

Another medical insurance change would increase the point at which individual claim amounts are pooled, or forgiven, from $50,000 to $100,000 per contract (employee, including any dependents or a dependent on Medicare) per year.

The new plan also would increase the maximum monthly benefit allowed under EMU's long term disability insurance from $1,500 to $5,000 and changes the length of time before benefits are paid from 90 to 180 days. Self-funding from the 90th to the 180th day would occur under a short term disability plan.

Changes in the University's life insurance program include the elimination of life waiver of premium for future disabilities but a continuation of coverage on a premium paying basis. The funding of EMU's life insurance program also would be changed from non-participating (no dividends) to participating with stop-loss coverage for annual liability if it is financially advantageous.

In addition, the Board of Regents will consider the elimination of brokerage commission charges paid on the Hartford and Delta Dental insurance plans, and the establishment of an annual $10,000 budget to defray the cost of future consulting services.

Regents accept $782,244 in grants

The EMU Board of Regents accepted 12 educational grants totaling $782,244 at its October meeting.

The largest of the grants was a $480,000 grant from the Ford Motor Company's Electrical-Electronics Division for the project "Endowed University Chair for Research, Development and Training in Statistical Process Control" within the College of Technology. The endowment will be paid over the next three years in exchange for at least 10 training workshops per year for Ford Motor company personnel in the area of statistical process control. Dr. Jeffrey Luftig, associate dean of the College of Technology and director of the Technology Services Center, will be the recipient of the endowed chair and principal instructor for all of the workshops.

The project is headed by Dr. Alvin E. Rudisill, dean of the College of Technology.

Other grants accepted by the Regents included:

—$122,803 continuing grant from the Administration of Children, Youth and Families of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to continue and expand the National Foster Care Education Project at EMU. Professor of Sociology Patricia Ryan is the project director.

—$73,550 continuing grant

Plymouth Community Band in Concert Here

The Plymouth Community Band will be in concert Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. in Pease Auditorium. Featured as guest soloists are Carter Eggers, professor of Music at EMU, and Michael Chimento, oboist, EMU alumnus and a member of the community band. The concert is free and open to the public. A variety of band music will be featured.

The Plymouth Community Band has been in existence for almost 25 years. Members range in age from teens to musicians in their 70's. The group performs on a regular basis and gives numerous concerts during the summer.

Faculty Woodwind Performance Scheduled

The Faculty Woodwind Quintet will present a concert Thursday, Nov. 3 at 8 p.m. in the New Alexander Recital Hall.

The works featured will include quintets by Leo Kauffman and C.P. Taffanel, J.S. Bach's trio sonata, "Musical Offering," a trio by Jacques Ibet and a novelty duet for horn and flute titled "Four Two-Bit Contraptions."

The performers will be Rodney Hill on flute, Dristy Meretta on oboe, Armand Abramson on clarinet, Willard Zirk on horn and Robert Quayle on bassoon. The quintet will be assisted by Elaine Jacobson playing harpsichord.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Library to Hold Book Sale

The EMU Library will have a book sale of some of its duplicate gift books in the Library Lobby on Thursday, Nov. 10, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Students and staff will find a wide variety of good used titles which have come to the library as gifts and which are duplicates of materials in the collection or which are not appropriate to the library. The books are on a wide variety of subjects—literature, including some fiction; history; education; social sciences and many more. Proceeds from the sale will be used to acquire needed library materials.

Healthline Presents Fitness Workshop

A workshop titled "How Fit Are You?" will be offered by Healthline. The workshop is part of a series sponsored by the Rec/IM Department and Snow Health Center. The workshop will look at setting realistic goals, health considerations, components of physical fitness and nutritional assessments and meets tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Olds Conference Room of the Rec/IM building. Call 7-1338 or 7-1122 for more information.

Faculty Council to Sponsor Open Forum

The Faculty Council will sponsor an open forum on the role of research and the types of research appropriate to EMU on Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 3 p.m. in the Guild Hall of McKenny Union.

Both faculty and administrators are invited to attend and participate in the discussion.

Stevens to Speak

Eileen Stevens, Founder of CHUCK (Committee to Halt Useless College Killings) will be the first speaker of Campus Life's Issues and Answers Series, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. in 201 Pray-Harrod. This presentation is of vital interest to all fraternities and sororities on campus, and is being co-sponsored by EMU Greeks. Call 7-3045 for more information.

Contact Offices for International Students

There are several important offices which provide various services and aid to the international students here at Eastern. The following is a list of offices to contact when advising procedure questions arise:

Admissions Office - Deals with undergraduate admissions and evaluation of transfer credits from foreign universities. Contact Robert Salisbury at 7-0242.

Foreign Student Office - Concern with such matters as orientation, support advising, preparing and maintaining immigration status with federal agencies, and other services which assist international students during their stay at EMU. Paul Dean Webb is the foreign student advisor and can be reached at 7-1045.

Department of Foreign Language and Bilingual Studies - Administers the English as Second Language courses. Placement in courses is based on ESL test scores. These tests are administered by the department. Questions concerning ESL placement and courses should be referred to Joanne Aebersol at 7-0319.

Office of Financial Aid - Provides information on scholarship and other forms of financial aid for international students. Ed Durham is the contact person at 7-0208.

Academic Services Center - Initial academic advising, academic actions (probation), and academic policies and regulations are the areas of responsibility of the ASC. Glen Lum is the contact person and can be reached at 7-3344.

Automatic Withdrawal Deadline - November 15 is the final date to withdraw from an individual class and receive an automatic "W". Withdrawal forms must be obtained from and returned to Registration, Briggs Hall.

Campus Commentary

I applaud the interest of the faculty in regard to the President's statement on the role of higher education as perceived by the public. I am also pleased that there is general concurrence with the four roles identified.

Nevertheless, I am concerned that there is some confusion or misunderstanding among the faculty relating to the role of basic and fundamental research at Eastern Michigan University in the fields of science, health and technology.

I believe it is important that these issues be pursued by open forum discussion, but the essence of the point being made in the Ann Arbor News and Focus EMU articles is that Eastern Michigan is a "teaching university" not a "research university." Furthermore, we intend to be the best "teaching university" in the state, emphasizing the Arts and Humanities, Business, Education, Health and Human Services, the Sciences and Mathematics, and Technology.

This mission in no way should be construed as detracting from the research activities pursued by faculty or interpreted to suggest that there is a retreat from the support of research endeavors on campus.

The commentary specifically referred to the fact that we will not sacrifice the quality of our teaching by pursuing basic and fundamental research through staffing classes with graduate assistants rather than regular faculty who are experts in their fields.

On the other hand, we will continue to encourage and foster those research activities that are compatible with the mission of the University and certainly will acknowledge and congratulate faculty who may, through such endeavors, achieve significant basic or fundamental research breakthroughs.

Eastern Michigan University has a very important role to play within the state system of higher education. Instruction, public service and research will continue to be essential to the well being of the University with a primary emphasis on instruction. Understanding that role and performing it better than anyone else is an essential ingredient to the future success of the University.

To the extent that the role articulated is vague and success is uncertain is the extent to which a questioning of the University's existence can be fostered.

I am convinced that we have made a successful transition from the teacher's college of 1958 to a multipurpose regional university in 1983.

The task ahead is to excel, now that the transformation is complete, with a continuing emphasis on a strong liberal arts foundation followed by specialization in one of the six broad collegiate concentrations being fostered.

Nagy discusses phone deregulation impact

Beginning Jan. 1, 1984, consumers will be faced with five-page bills from AMERITECH, decisions about buying or renting their embedded bases and will be struggling to memorize their carrier access codes so they can reach their inter-lata carriers in compliance with universal service.

Does all of this sound like a science fiction novel? It's merely what the average telephone customer can expect as a result of the deregulation of American Telephone & Telegraph Company, according to Dr. Marilyn P. Nagy, associate professor of family economics and consumer affairs in Eastern Michigan University's Home Economics Department.

Marilyn Nagy

Nagy currently is serving on the Consumer Telephone Information Project, a statewide planning committee of consumer specialists who are interested in telephone service and the changes caused by deregulation of the telephone industry. Michigan Bell Telephone Company is assisting with the seminars and providing some funding, according to Nagy.

"The true effect of deregulation won't be felt until January 1, 1984. The idea of holding seminars now was to get information out to the public before the impact hit," Nagy said.

"We feel deregulation will be confusing because the consumer is used to dealing with one company for all phone matters. With deregulation, there will be separate bills for leasing phones (embedded bases), one for long distance calls, one for local calls, one for toll calls, and so on . . . Confusing? You'd better believe it!" she said.

"The split (of AT&T) is not necessarily good for the average consumer," Nagy continued. "Local phone rates will go up because they will no longer be subsidized by long distance rates. The average consumer who does not use long distance will see an appreciable increase in their phone bill. However, a person who makes more than $20 worth of long distance calls a month will not see a difference," she added.

Nagy's role on the Consumer Telephone Information Project has been extensive. She helped plan the seminars, arranged for speakers and developed educational materials that will be available to community leaders who plan to have meetings in their communities to help people cope with deregulation. Her experience as a member of the Michigan Bell Consumer Advisory Board and her unique background in consumer affairs and family economics made her appointment to the project a natural choice.

She also serves on other consumer advisory boards, including the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel and the Consumer Satisfaction Board of a major automotive company.

"My major role on these boards is to arbitrate complaints. I try to be fair to both consumer and business, not give the store away, but not to leave the consumer out in left-field," Nagy said.

Before earning her Ph.D. in family consumer economics from Michigan State University, Nagy worked in the appliance industry at the national level, handling customer relations and public and community relations. "I traveled a lot and never had my suitcase unpacked," she said. After teaching in the public schools, Nagy decided she wanted to teach at the college level.

"My background and my service on the consumer advisory boards makes my teaching much more relevant," Nagy said. "I have all these real world experiences to share with my students and don't teach strictly from the book," she added.

Nagy teaches classes at EMU dealing with family financial management, household equipment, consumer issues, consumer problems and money matters for women.

Because she arbitrates so many complaints, Nagy has sound advice for the consumer seeking redress of a problem. She suggests they first start locally, with the person first dealt with (for example, the salesperson or service manager). The next step is to go to their boss and if that doesn't get results, write the manufacturer. The final course of action is to seek help with the mechanisms for resolving complaints like the Better Business Bureau or small claims court.

"The key place where the consumer misses the point is that they don't document enough and they get emotional," Nagy said. "Several research studies have shown that consumers are most likely to get action if they leave the emotion and threats out of the documentation. For example, this is what happened on a certain date. Then this happened on another date. I have the name of the person I talked to, and a copy of the work order and so forth."

Between the telephone deregulation seminars, the consumer advisory boards and Nagy's teaching commitment at EMU one would think she barely has time to breathe. But, thanks to a recent grant for a graduate assistant from M.C. and Casey, the firm handling the Consumer Telephone Information Project, she now can sit back occasionally, and find some relief.

Promotions

The promotions of several staff members were approved by the Board of Regents at their recent meeting. Promotions include:

Debra Sue McKee, account clerk in the Department of University Planning, Budget and Analysis, to budget analysis assistant in that same department.

Bethann L. Welch, computer services assistant, to user consultant II in University Computing.

Staff promotions also include Cheryl A. Currier, secretary in the Campus Life Office to secretary II in the Office of Academic Affairs; Cindy Harwood, clerk to senior account clerk in the Accounting Office; Holly Smith, senior secretary to administrative secretary in the Admissions Office; E. Jane Spires, senior secretary to administrative secretary in the Office of Academic Affairs; Barbara Stephens, secretary II in the Admissions Office to senior secretary in the Leadership and Counseling Department; and Norma L. Taylor, secretary in the Art Department to secretary II in the Department of Teacher Education.

Women cager's outlook

With only seven returning letterwinners from the 1982-83 campaign, the EMU women's basketball team will be looking for the continued leadership of its seasoned players as well as some strong play from the newcomers as the Hurons try and sustain the winning edge that led them to eight victories in the last 11 games of 1983.

Last year the Hurons recorded a 13-14 overall record, and were 8-3 over the last half of the season. Eastern Michigan finished the Mid-American Conference with a record of 9-9 and the Hurons defeated eventual MAC Champion, Central Michigan, for its last win of the season, 80-68.

Eighth-year coach Kathy Hart will combine those seven returning letterwinners with a talented group of five freshman recruits and two junior college transfers to make the Hurons solid contenders for the MAC title.

With the strong inside play of Kris Matthes and Sue Huff and the outside shooting of Patti Limb-Vetter missing from the Huron line-up, coach Hart will be looking for added depth from the newcomers and steady play from the returning letterwinners.

Leading the charge for the upcoming season will be senior guard Jane Shaffer. In her first year as a Huron (Shaffer transferred from Saginaw Valley in 1982) she was second in scoring (13.5), fourth in rebounding (7.1) and missed being the assist leader by one (71). Another top performer hoping to stay healthy for the '83-84 season is Jennifer Litomisky. Litomisky played in only nine games before missing the rest of the season with a stress fracture. In 1981-82 she had been one of the MAC's top players having been in the top 15 in both scoring and rebounding. She was also ranked nationally in field goal percentage.

The other guard position should belong to junior Carla Campbell. During the '82-83 season, Campbell played in all 27 Huron games and started in six. She averaged only 3.1 ppg but had 56 assists as the Hurons sixth player.

The forward positions should be filled by sophomore Felicia Hines and junior transfer Bobbi Morse. Hines, after missing several games at the start of the season, came on to be one of the team's best rebounders averaging 7.2 rebounds-per-game. Hines also scored over seven ppg in her first year as a Huron. Morse, a transfer from Wabash Valley Junior College, left as the school's leading scorer and rebounder and has the ability to play either forward or guard.

Other returning veterans include Karen Levert and Sharon Brown.
