Distinguished Faculty Awards presented

Five members of Eastern's faculty were honored as Distinguished Faculty Wednesday, Nov. 16, in an awards ceremony at Hoyt Conference Center.

Those honored were: Gwendolyn M. Reichbach, assistant professor in the Department of Home Economics, who received the Junior Teaching Award; Dr. Martha Irwin, professor of teacher education, who received the Senior Teaching Award; Dr. Giles F. Carter, professor in the Department of Chemistry, who received the Research and Publication Award; Dr. Nesa L'abbe Wu, professor in the Department of Operations Research and Information Systems, who received the Research and Publication Award; and Dr. Richard D. Goff, professor of history and philosophy, who received the University Service Award.

Reichbach has served in the Department of Home Economics for the past eight years. She completed her doctoral work at the University of Michigan, holds a master's degree from Ohio State University and earned her bachelor's degree from Miami University.

Irwin has been a faculty member since 1964. She holds a doctorate from Case Western Reserve University and earned her master's and bachelor's degrees at Bowling Green State University. She has served as a language arts consultant in EMU's Swaziland Project and was an exchange professor with Coventry College of Education in England.

Carter has served in the Chemistry Department since 1967. He holds a doctorate in chemistry from the University of California at Berkeley and earned his bachelor's degree from Texas Technological University. His two major areas of research and publication include a book on physical and chemical metallurgy and research and publications in the area of archeological chemistry. He has received wide recognition for his research related to the image formation on the Shroud of Turin.

Wu, who also received the Research and Publication Award has been on the EMU faculty since 1984. She holds her doctoral and master's degrees from Purdue University and earned her bachelor's degree at the Catholic University of Louvain in Belgium. Both her teaching and research emphases have been in the areas of operations research, quantitative methods, linear programming, inventory control and applied statistics.

Goff joined the EMU staff in 1964. He holds his doctoral and bachelor's degrees from Duke University and earned his master's degree at Cornell University. His areas of specialization are history and the Old South, historiography, U.S. Constitution history and early national U.S. history.

In receiving the University Service Award, Goff was cited for his consistent devotion to both departmental and University causes during his 18 years of service to EMU.

Several Special Recognition Awards also were given at the Wednesday afternoon ceremony. Dr. Mary Ida Yost, professor of Music, received the Artistic Recognition Award, Dr. Jeffrey A. Fadiman, professor of history and philosophy, received the Business/Social Science Scholarship Recognition Award. Dr. Marvin Pasch, head of the Department of Teacher Education, received the Education/Human Services Scholarship Recognition Award and Dr. Michael Carlsen-Jones, associate professor of history and philosophy, received the Humanities/Arts Scholarship Recognition Award.

Local 1976 ratifies agreement

UAW Local 1976, comprised of EMU's administrative, professional and technical staff, ratified a tentative agreement with the University on Wednesday, Nov. 16. The agreement was accepted by 97 percent of those members in attendance, according to Paul L. Zabawa, member of the bargaining committee of the Union.

The contract will cover the period from Nov. 1, 1983 to Oct. 31, 1985 and contains language changes concerning the use of temporary employees, the continuance of the "seasonal days" through 1983 and 1984 holiday periods and language concerning automatic progression sequences in University Computing.

The salary package of the tentative agreement provides for a seven percent increase for all bargaining unit members on the active payroll as of Oct. 30, 1983. The increase is retroactive to Oct. 30, 1983. Equity adjustments for 15 bargaining unit members are included, as well as special, one-time adjustments designed to recognize years of service. Individuals below the midpoint of any paygrade will receive a one to four percent adjustment, according to years of University service, not to exceed the current midpoint.

The second year of the contract will provide for a six percent adjustment, effective July 8, 1984 and a possible additional two percent increase based on a funding formula reflecting state appropriations to the University next fiscal year.

The tentative agreement is pending approval by the University Board of Regents.

Theater of the Young presents 'ODDyssey'

"ODDyssey in Oz," Eastern's 1983 Theater of the Young Mainstage production, will premiere at Quirk Theater Friday, Dec. 2 and will run through Sunday, Dec. 4.

"ODDyssey in Oz" was written and directed by V. Glasgow Koste, professor in the Department of Communication and Theater Arts. This production marks the 21st anniversary of the Theater of the Young program.

The script was inspired by the well-loved Oz books written by Lyman Frank Baum. Koste describes the production as a "jubilant journey" to an imagined place.

Curtain time at Quirk is 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and 7 p.m. on Sunday. Matinee performances will be held Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Tickets for "ODDyssey in Oz" are $4.50; $3 for EMU students and Mainstage members. To reserve tickets, or for more information, call the Quirk Theater Box Office at 7-1221 between 12:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Special school matinee performances of ODDyssey in Oz also will be held at Quirk Theater Wednesday, Nov. 30 through Friday, Dec. 2. Admission to these performances will be offered at reduced group rates and advance reservations are required. For more information, call the Drama and Theater for the Young Office at 7-0033 or 7-0031.

Education and Technology offer China and Japan Tour

Eastern's College of Education and College of Technology will offer a comprehensive 23-day educational and sightseeing tour of China and Japan June 23 through July 15, 1984.

The itinerary combines two courses, Education in China and Japan and Technology in China and Japan, into a travel-study adventure that stresses the educational and technological developments of these two countries.

Reservations are requested by Feb. 20, 1984, however group size is limited to 30 so early registration is recommended.

Also, there will be a meeting for interested persons, Friday, Dec. 2 at 8:30 p.m. at 3620 Fox Hunt in Ann Arbor.

For more information about the tour or the meeting, call 7-2424 or 761-5604, or write to: Technology and Education in China and Japan, Office of International Studies, EMU, Ypsilanti, MI 48197.

EMU Organ Recital Tonight

The third concert of Eastern's 1983-84 Gabriel Kney Organ Dedication Series is scheduled for tonight at 8 p.m. in the Organ Studio (room 125) of the New Alexander Music Building.

The organ works of Johannes Brahms will be performed by students of Professor Mary Ida Yost in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of Brahms' birth. The organists will be assisted by members of the University Choir, under the direction of Emily Lowe.

The concert is free and open to the public. For information call the Music Department at 7-4380.

Bookstore Announces Late Hours

The Bookstore and Small Change will be open Monday through Thursday until 7 p.m., effective Monday, Nov. 28. Friday hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. This schedule will run through Thursday, Dec. 15. On Friday, Dec. 16, the Bookstore will resume regular business hours.

Series Studies Nuclear Arms Race

Walter Moss, EMU professor of history and philosophy and specialist in Russian history, will speak on "Russian Policy and the Arms Race" on Wednesday, Nov. 23, on the lower level of Holy Trinity Chapel and Student Center near EMU's Sill Hall.

Moss' talk is part of the EMU Faculty's Nuclear Arms Race Series which is co-sponsored by the Holy Trinity Chapel, Union of Concerned Educators, United Ministeries in Higher Education, University Lutheran Chapel and the EMU United Campus Ministers. The presentations, made on Wednesdays during November, are from noon to 1 p.m.

On Nov. 30, Harvey Feinberg, an instructor at Washtenaw Community College, will speak on "The Growing Circles of Violence."

For more information, call Holy Trinity Chapel at 482-1400.

Chinese Student Association Presents Lectures and Films

The EMU Chinese Student Association will present a lecture "The Effect of U.S.—China Normalization on the Economy of Taiwan, Republic of China." The lecturer is Mr. Kleykamp, assistant professor of economics at Eastern. The lecture is scheduled for Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 325 Pray-Harold.

Also, there will be related movies shown on Dec. 3, "The Coldest Winter in Peking," and "The Invisible Endurer." The movies will be shown in Walton Lounge, starting at 7 p.m. The program is funded by Student Government Fund Allocation.

Focus EMU will not be published Tuesday, Nov. 29 because of the Thanksgiving Recess. Publication will resume with the Dec. 6 issue. The staff of Information Services and Publications would like to wish everyone a happy holiday.

Siemers creates new 'radio soap'

Twenty-seven-year-old Bill Siemers created a yen for the dramatic. "When I was six years old, I started begging my parents to buy me a movie camera," said the graduate of Ypsilanti High School and EMU. Siemers didn't get his camera, but he did launch himself into acting and directing in plays in high school and college.

When he graduated from Eastern in 1978 with a bachelor's degree in dramatic arts, broadcasting and film, he took jobs that were unrelated to his creative drives. In addition to working in the EMU Bookstore, a job from which he was granted an educational leave, he worked at individual enterprises and was earlier employed in the University Mailroom.

"When I was on my own and married, having no money caused a lot of friction," said Siemers. He admits that his financial insecurity resulted in a broken marriage.

In late 1982 he attended a seminar sponsored by Campus Life on communication and dramatic arts. "Cheryl Chodun, the news director for WCXI Radio, said 'If you want to get into the creative arts, you have to just get in there and do something. You have to take a chance and do it no matter what!'"

Siemers did something.

Remembering "Radio Hour," a play he had done with the Ypsi Players, he dreamed up an idea for a radio soap opera, a serialized adventure called "Doris Davenport, Girl Reporter." He got WEMU Radio's Art Timko excited about the idea and began to look for writers.

"I got my boss at the University Bookstore, Mike Norton, and a student worker there, Bill Julian, to write," said Siemers with growing energy. He also enlisted Tim Jeffrey, Charlotte Channing of the Oakland Press, and Randy Weiner of the Ypsilanti Press. Siemers himself rounded out the writing corps.

His newspaper casting announcements drew 70 applicants for auditions. He sold the soap opera idea to the Ypsi Players, co-authored the first episode and took a leave of absence from the University Bookstore only two months after the auditions.

The pilot for "Doris" was aired in March of this year. The serial will resume in late January and will be broadcast by Eastern's WEMU, where it is recorded, by Ann Arbor's WCBN and WUOM, where post-production is done and by WDET in Detroit. With the help of Cheryl Kozell, Office of Research Development, Siemers received grants from the Michigan Council for the Arts, from two private businesses, and is hopeful for one from National Public Radio.

It's in talking about the characters that Siemers really lights up. "Doris Davenport is the only 'straight man,' all the rest are wild and zany. She's played by Lissa Hurwitz and is a single, spitfire and brimstone reporter from the Washtenaw Watchdog.

The announcer is Harry Bowen of the Ypsilanti Press. Ted Marlin, a DJ from WSDS, plays Claude Lepidoptra.

"Claude has the hots for Doris, But he's from a rival newspaper and is a klutz, a real chump, but he thinks he's God's gift to women. There's John Love as Chip Johnson, a pimply-faced buck-toothed office copy boy who wants to be just like Doris. And John Lusk plays Chief Wesley, the cigar-chomping rough, gruff editor who's mean and cruel, but has a heart of gold."

Siemers does several minor roles. "I've been a thug, a wimpy college student and a zombie. What is fun is that we can switch roles, double and triple up and end up talking to ourselves."

"Doris Davenport, Girl Reporter" will continue with "Episode Two" in late January. Stay Tuned.

Campus Commentary

The future does not occur spontaneously, but rather emerges from a culmination of the events that are taking place within a broad cultural and scientific context. Consequently, while we still are not able to predict future events, we can engage in serious planning for an array of possibilities. The College of Health and Human Services at Eastern Michigan University has identified current realities and some emerging trends to create academic curricula.

Changing population characteristics, changing disease patterns, increased use of more sophisticated medical technology and support of individuals in a "wellness" model are several trends in our society that the College of Health and Human Services is responding to.

Although the birth rate in the United States has been dropping since 1957 due to a voluntary desire for smaller families, the number is now increasing due to an increased number of young adults. Paralleling this phenomena life expectancy has increased. Consequently, the population is becoming increasingly older. In response to this trend the College has supported an interdisciplinary gerontology minor. The minor can be easily combined with a major in one of the health related or social science fields.

During the post World War II era it was articulated that access to health care ought to be a right of every U.S. citizen. While this may have been seen as an utopian social goal by some, it was viewed by the public as reasonable. However, not until the 1960s was there an attempt to translate this social goal into public policy. The decade of the 1960s saw an investment in the health care system of a magnitude that had never been seen before. While most of the infectious and contagious diseases were eliminated as causes of mortality during the 1940s and 1950s, the enormous investments of the 1960s produced increased health services to the elderly, children, and the handicapped. Contemporary health problems such as pathological conditions of aging, degenerative, substance abuse and life style related illnesses have replaced the infectious and contagious diseases of the previous decades.

Many programs in the College are responding to these contemporary and human services needs. For example, the departments of nursing and social work prepare graduates that can assume roles as substance abuse counselors and/or direct care givers for patients with illnesses directly or indirectly related to substance abuse. Occupational Therapy graduates assist patients to regain independent functioning in work, play or leisure that may have been lost due to degenerative diseases. The Department of Home Economics which includes eight majors (consumer affairs, consumer home economics education, dietetics, family and child development, fashion merchandising, food service management, housing and interior design) prepares graduates who assist individuals and families with enhancing their quality of life and living environment. Some graduates focus on the preparation and use of therapeutic diets for clients and patients; design living spaces, or clothing for handicapped clients; administer child development centers for pre-schoolers; and assist consumers in their financial decision-making.

Technological progress has had a major impact on the delivery of health care. Technology has affected the administration of health care (i.e., computerized information systems), the diagnosis of disease, and the delivery of health care. For example, the high technology of heart and kidney transplants, brain scanners via computerized and positron emission tomography have all changed the delivery of health care and the roles health professionals play. These powerful technological phenomenon are seen as intrusions by some and medical "miracles" by others. Students are challenged to identify how the new technology can enhance health care delivery while simultaneously mitigating its potential negative impact. Students are asked to examine the pragmatic and ethical issues associated with the increased use of technology. For example, could the increase in cost which paralleled the use of the CAT scanners, have been better spend developing wellness models and services, and disseminating research findings?

Many of the college's students work with these issues. Particularly, the Health Administration students consider these questions and the impact of the extraordinary escalation of the costs of illness related to providing health care services to all those who require it.

Finally, the College of Health and Human Services has as objectives: 1) the preparation of students with holistic approach to health care delivery viewing body, mind, and spirit as inseparable and 2) increasing the quality of life for individuals and families in regard to housing, nutrition, clothing, and human relationships and development. Regardless of the inevitable changes in the future, these objectives will remain constant.

Planning and Assessment Studies

The National Endowment for the Humanities accepts a limited number of unsolicited proposals each year to compile supplemental information, to analyze important policy issues or to develop analytical tools for monitoring trends and studying programs in the humanities. The Program's broad areas of concern include: the humanities labor force; funding patterns in the humanities; the financial status of humanities institutions; and trends in the demand for and use of humanities resources.

The deadline for applying is March 1, 1984. Contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090 for guidelines and application forms.

Special Services for Disadvantaged Students Program

The Department of Education has set a Dec. 6, 1983 deadline for applications to this program. ED will fund projects designed to assist qualified postsecondary students through such services as: instruction in subjects necessary for success beyond high school; personal counseling; academic advice and assistance in course selection; tutorial services; exposure to cultural events and academic programs not usually available to disadvantaged students; activities designed to acquaint students with a range of career options; activities designed to assist students in securing admission and financial assistance for enrollment in graduate and professional programs; and programs and activities specially designed for students of limited English proficiency.

For further information and application materials call Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090.

NSF Social and Economic Science Programs

This division at the National Science Foundation supports basic and applied disciplinary and multidisciplinary research in economics, geography and regional science, history and philosophy of science, law and social sciences, political science, sociology, measurement methodology, decision and management science and regulation and policy analysis. Its goal is to develop fundamental knowledge of how social and economic systems work, to advance understanding of organizations and institutions, how they function and change, and to enhance the scientific capability of research efforts designed to produce explanations of how human interaction and decision-making take place.

Proposal submission deadline for all program areas is Feb. 1, 1984. Contact R. Howard at 7-3090 for assistance.

This article is the first in a series of articles designed to familiarize members of the EMU community with the functions of the Faculty Council, its committees, and the people who serve in either or both capacities. The Council operates five standing committees as follows:

1. Academic Policies
2. Institutional Policies
3. Student Policies
4. Honorary Degrees
5. Procedures and Elections

Each committee's chairperson also is a member of Faculty Council and is elected chairperson by the Council. The members of the committees also are elected by Faculty Council following nominations by the chairperson. Candidates for committees should indicate their willingness to serve when Faculty Council solicits this information each year. The chairperson's nominees are usually taken from the list solicited by Faculty Council. Criteria are interest, knowledge, and maintenance of reasonable balance among colleges.

The first committee to be profiled is Institutional Policies. This area is broad, so the functions of the committee might best be explained through examples of current and past activities. During the months of September and October, the committee nominated and Faculty Council elected Polly Buchanan, Richard Leinbach, and Meredith Klaus to the Parking Committee, the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, and the Intramural Committee respectively. These faculty members will serve on the committees while also keeping Faculty Council apprised of the committees' work.

In the past, the Institutional Policies Committee has been involved with the University Calendar Committee, the Textbook Task Force, the McKenny Union Advisory Committee, secretarial service problems, telephone service problems, and many other activities. One can see from the list that the Institutional Policies Committee is active in all areas of institutional policies, either as a committee directly or through appointments to other University-wide committees.

Members of the Institutional Policies Committee for 1983-84 are:

Polly Buchanan, Health and Human Services, 7-2490; Bill Cline, Arts and Sciences, 7-0130; Norm Delventhal, Technology, 7-1161; Bob Krebs, Education, 7-1160; and Dan Devine, chairperson, Business, 7-0246.

This committee exists to serve, and each member actively seeks faculty input and encourages calls from faculty to bring concerns before the committee or simply to discuss the committee's activities. Individual phone numbers are shown for your convenience. Let them hear from you!

Grade Point Computation for Returning Students

Students returning to EMU after an absence of two years or longer who have not attended any other college or university, have their grade point average computed using several special criteria. Two of the most significant standards used are as follows:

1) All "E" grades are not used in computation of the GPA. However, these grades will continue to appear on the student's transcript.

2) When a course is repeated, only the last grade earned, regardless if it is higher or lower than previous grade(s), is used to determine GPA. Again, no grades are removed from the transcript, but it is noted that the class was repeated and the semester it was taken again.

For more detailed information concerning the computation of the grade point average, see page 14 of the 1983-84 undergraduate catalog. Also, the Records Office, 7-4111, and the Academic Services Center, 7-3344, are two additional sources.

Evening Registration

Evening registration for the Winter 1984 semester is scheduled for the following dates and times:

Nov. 17, 22, 28, Dec. 7, 14 until 6:30 p.m.

January 4, 5, 9, 10, 11, 12 until 7 p.m.

The Records Office, 5 Pierce

Hall, also will be open on these dates. Faculty and departments are encouraged to note these dates and make appropriate plans for providing academic advising and other student services in the departments for Eastern's evening population. Contact A. Kettles if there are questions and concerns about evening advising at 7-3344. The ASC will, of course, be open Monday through Thursday evenings until 7 p.m.

Focus EMU is published weekly during the fall and winter semesters for faculty and staff at Eastern Michigan University. The deadline for copy is 5 p.m. Tuesdays for the next week's issue.
