BEAUTY AND THE BEAST? No, not quite. The two new sculptures pictured above are the first of a series soon to grace the EMU campus.

Computing director named

E. Leon Daniel, director of data processing and the Computing Center at Southern Illinois University, was appointed executive director of University Computing by the Board of Regents at its March meeting.

Daniel replaces Arthur Woodruff who left the University last year.

A Glen Carbon, Ill., resident, Daniel earned his master's degree in mathematics from Texas Tech University in 1965.

He has worked as executive director of data processing and computing at Southern Illinois University since 1979. Prior to holding that position, he served for one year as manager of technical support for Pullman Kellogg in Houston, Texas, and as manager of technical services for Indiana University from 1974 to 1978.

Daniel began his 15-year professional career in computer science as computing center director at Odessa College in Texas in 1968, a position he held for six years.

His appointment is effective May 1, 1984.

Samonte promoted to chief of party

Dr. Quirico S. Samonte, professor of education, was promoted to chief of party for EMU's Basic Education Development Project in the Yemen Arab Republic at the March Regents meeting.

As chief of party in Yemen, Samonte will be responsible for the field management of EMU's basic education development grant under a contract with the United States Agency for International Development.

Honors Convocation observes excellence

Eastern will observe the 36th Annual Honors Convocation Sunday, April 8 at 3 p.m. in Pease Auditorium.

Dr. Elton A. Devine, professor of accounting and finance, will deliver the John M. Munson Convocation Address. The annual address was endowed in 1952 by Dr. E.A. Pittenger of Aberdeen, S.D. in honor of Munson, president of EMU from 1933 to 1948.

Ann Bolhouse, an EMU student majoring in marketing will deliver the convocation address.

The honors list includes all EMU students with a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 (B) or better on a scale with a maximum of 4.0 (A).

EMU President John W. Porter will preside over the ceremony. Professor Emeritus Alice Bensen will lead the procession as grand marshal and Professors Giles Carter and Nesa L'abbe Wu will serve as faculty marshals.

A reception for honor students, parents, faculty, the Board of Regents and staff will be held in the McKenny Union Ballroom immediately following the program. All of the honors societies on campus will provide displays featuring their organizations.

In addition, the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra will perform in a free concert at 8 p.m. in Pease Auditorium.

Faculty and students may pick up their robes Friday, April 6 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the University Bookstore. On convocation day, the following schedule will be observed: 2 p.m., assemble and robe; 2:45 p.m., procession forms and procession begins at 2:55 p.m. The program will begin at 3 p.m.

For more information about the convocation, please contact Mary Wiermanski, executive assistant to the president, at 7-2237.

Housing/food service rates to increase fall semester

The University Board of Regents approved increases ranging from one to almost six percent in EMU housing and food service rates at its March meeting.

The standard double occupancy room and board rate for 1984-85 will be $2,490, a $100 or 4.2 percent increase over the 1983-84 rate. However, current residents who renew their 20 meal double room contracts will continue to pay the current 1983-84 rate of $2,390.

While double occupancy room and board plans increased by $100 or approximately four percent, triple occupancy room and board rates were increased by only $20 or less than one percent. Single room and board rates increased by $164 or approximately 5.6 percent for new residents. And, as with the 20 meal double room option, all current residents of University Residence Halls who renew their housing contracts will be charged according to the 1983-84 rate schedule. The new rates will go into effect at the start of the 1984 fall term for all new residents.

Monthly rates in the University apartments also will increase, effective July 1, 1984.

In addition, staff and faculty will pay a surcharge ranging from $20 to $41 per month per apartment.

Wear Your Seat Belt Program Launched

The Healthline Series and the Catherine McAuley Health Center challenges you to "Try it for Two." Wear your seat belt for the next two weeks!

The new car safety program will begin Sunday, April 8, from noon to 4 p.m. at Snow Health Center.

Visitors to the "Try it for Two" exhibit can pick up an entry form and sign up for the challenge. The display also features a five minute film, take-home information and free dashboard stickers that you can use to remind your passengers to buckle up. Trained health professionals from CMHC will be there to answer questions on the myths and facts about seat belts and the Michigan mandatory child car seat law.

EMU To Honor Flint Biochemist April 9

The staff and students of Eastern Michigan University's Medical Technology Program will honor Dr. Wendell T. Caraway, Clinical biochemist for St. Joseph Hospital and McLaren Hospital in Flint, Monday, April 9, at 5:30 p.m. in EMU's King Hall Lounge.

At the reception held in his honor, Caraway will be cited for his outstanding service to the field of laboratory medicine and medical technology education. Medical Technology junior and senior students with grade point averages of 3.0 or above also will be honored.

For more information contact Dr. Jeanne Clerc, Medical Technology Program at 7-0154.

Sociology To Honor Outstanding Undergraduates

The Sociology Department will host its undergraduate student awards reception and its Rick Lieffers Memorial Lecture Friday, April 6, at 3:30 p.m. in the Tower Room of McKenny Union.

Outstanding undergraduate majors in the department will be honored. The lecture, to be delivered by Frederick Campbell, Chairperson of Sociology at the University of Washington, Seattle, is entitled "The Quest for Excellence: Saving Sociology through Undergraduate Education."

The University community is invited. Refreshments will be served.

Technology Lecture Series Continues

The College of Technology lecture series will continue with a lecture by Dr. Roy Rappaport, professor of anthropology at the University of Michigan whose topic will be "From Information to Meaning" Wednesday, April 4.

Daniel W. Russie, director of administrative controls and services for Maccabees Mutual Life Insurance Co., will discuss "Learning to Manage the Electronic Environment" Wednesday, April 11.

Both lectures begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Marriott Hotel in Ann Arbor and are free and open to the public. For more information, call the Department of Interdisciplinary Technology at 7-1161.

Healthline Presents Fitness Clinic

The Rec/IM Department and Snow Health Center will offer a clinic on Family Fitness Sunday, April 8 at 2 p.m. in the Olds Utility Gym.

The clinic will cover the growth and development of children; do's and don't's of exercise; exercising as a family unit and an activity session.

The clinic is free to EMU students, Rec/IM members and guests who pay a $1 guest fee. For more information, call Ellen Gold or Brad Brady at 7-1338 or Mary Jean Schumann at 7-1122.

Faculty Council Sponsors Open Forum

Faculty Council is sponsoring an open forum on Merit. Share your point of view with colleagues and with Provost Ronald Collins on Wednesday, April 4, from 3 to 5 p.m., Tower Room, McKenny Union.

EMU Runners in silent invasion

You can't help but notice the runners who've appeared in increasing numbers over the past decade or so. They seem to be everywhere, coursing indoors and out, in daylight and dark, through crackling cold and smothering heat.

The Eastern campus is everything but immune from the onslaught. EMU contributes more than its share toward the lemming-like tide of panting pedestrians.

Especially around mid-day, runners may be seen on the streets, paths or indoor and outdoor tracks. The range of their ages equals the disparity of their body types and some resemble more the rhino than the gazelle.

Regardless of their differences, they still find time to trot, some every day.

When asked why they run, many EMU runners had similar answers.

Nearly all questioned said they run because it allows them to eat what they choose. Many reported that, although they began running because they were overweight, they now eat more than they ever have.

Although most admit to having an increased appetite, they also claim to be more particular about what they eat. Many avoid red meat. Fruits, vegetables and carbohydrates, including "junk foods," are favored.

Most spoke of the psychological benefits that running gives them. A few readily admitted an addiction to running. And many suggested the company of other runners is what keeps them running. Their shared sessions to provide a social outlet.

Several reported that a physical crisis, usually the threat of heart trouble, got them on the run. But most said that just less-than-good health was enough to get them on the move.

Who are some of Eastern's fleet-footed runners and why do they run?

Dr. John Hubbard, department head, foreign languages and bilingual studies, "It makes food and drink taste better. Why, if it weren't for running, I'd be 30 pounds overweight instead of 20 pounds overweight."

James McGraw, counselor, counseling services, "It gives me a chance to stop and pick the berries."

Sharman Spieser, associate director, Project Upward Bound, "I get more on days I run. And I have more energy when I go home."

Dr. Larry Badii, professor of mathematics and computer sciences, "For 30 years I've had the habit of exercise that started with mountain climbing. But I definitely don't run for indigestion!"

Mike Glass, former EMU football player, "I feel as good now as I ever felt in my life. I can run 15 miles, grab a bite to eat and go lift stock for eight hours."

Bob Hunt, assistant Women's track coach, "I was a distance runner here. I like the feeling of running fast."

Dr. Massanobu Yamauchi, professor of chemistry, "I go through a pound of Fritos every two days."

Nancy Plantz, Women's softball and field hockey coach, makes sure she runs in the morning, "so I can eat."

Dr. Robert DeCampo, associate professor of home economics, who hasn't missed a class because of sickness in five years, says "I feel so good after my run. The students who have me for a two o'clock class are the ones who get the most for their money."

Dr. Barry Fish, department head, psychology, "I run because it's great therapy, and I'm absolutely addicted."

Dr. Elwood Kureth, department head, geography, geology, physics and astronomy, "It gets me out of the office."

Rosalyn Barclay, coordinator, counseling services, "After I run, I feel righteous. But my halo only glitters for a few minutes."

Jim Angle, associate professor of English language and literature, who runs for therapy, said jokingly "I eat heavily, all the wrong times and all the wrong foods. There's a fat man inside of me trying to get out."

And Dr. Roger King, professor in the department of History and Philosophy, who started running after he had an eye examination 18 years ago. "I had a yellow spot on my eye ball. It turned out to be a fat deposit. The nurse asked, 'Have you ever had your cholesterol tested?' I said, 'Hey, I'm only 30!'"

Whatever the reasons, EMU's lunch hour runners are a determined and persistent group . . . one we're bound to see more of as the warm weather rolls around.

New Faces

The appointments of several faculty and staff members were approved at the March Regents meeting. They are:

Dr. Jose Fresquez, appointed assistant professor in the Department of Social Work. Fresquez earned his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Michigan. He holds a master's degree in social work from Michigan State, a bachelor's degree from Adams State College in Colorado and also attended Mesa Junior College in Colorado.

Fresquez has worked at Wayne State University and the University of Michigan. He also worked at the Latino Mental Health and Outreach Center in Detroit and for the Department of Social Services in Saginaw.

Ching-Hsing Loo, appointed assistant professor in the Department of Accounting and Finance. Loo earned her bachelor's degree from National Taiwan University in 1975 and master's degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1977. She expects to complete the requirements for her doctorate from Ohio State University this year.

Loo has worked as a research assistant at the University of Cincinnati and as a teaching associate at Ohio State University.

Gregory A. Schupra, director of development at Spring Arbor College, appointed coordinator of planned giving.

He replaces John Fogel, who left the University.

Schupra earned his bachelor's degree from Spring Arbor College in 1978. He worked at the college as an admissions counselor for one year after graduation. In 1979, he served as branch manager for Michigan Bank Mid-South of the Michigan National Corporation Banks, where he was named the "Officer of the Month" on five occasions. In 1981, he was appointed director of development at Spring Arbor College.

Judith K. Salyer, budget technician for the City of Ypsilanti, appointed II and head cashier.

Salyer replaces Maureen Wehrin who transferred to the Student Accounting Office.

A lifetime resident of Ypsilanti, Salyer worked as the manager of the National Bank of Ypsilanti's Huron River Drive Branch from 1975 to 1978.

Staff appointments approved included Karyn Beattie, secretary in the Office of Academic Records and Certification; Gary B. Davie, electrician in the Physical Plant; Dorothy Sziobak, three-quarter time secretary in the Biology Department; Mary Beth Irwin, senior clerk in the Office of Financial Aid; Linda K. Kramer, library assistant II in the Center of Educational Resources; Janice K. Morrison, administrative secretary in the Dean's Office of the College of Business; Donna Noffsinger, three-quarter time secretary II in the Department of Accounting and Finance; and Edward Phillpotts, custodian in McKenny Union.

In addition, emeritus status was granted to William C. Bryan, who retired as an associate professor from the Department of Business and Finance in 1974, but wished to be considered for this status at this time.

New Catalog

The new 1984-85 undergraduate catalog will be available soon. Faculty advisors can obtain a copy by contacting the Records Office at 7-4111. New freshmen and transfer students are given a catalog during their initial advising by the Academic Services Center. It is very important that faculty members be aware of all revisions in their own program and how the Basic Studies requirements fit into a particular major, minor and curriculum. Currently enrolled students can follow the graduation requirements found in the catalog the year they first enrolled at EMU. There is a 7 year time limit for students to complete requirements found in their initial undergraduate catalog. For more information, contact ASC at 7-3344 or Academic Records at 7-4111.

60 and 75 Hour Rule

Faculty advisors should be aware of the 60 hour and 75 hour rules, which apply to transfer credit.

60 Hour Rule — Regardless of how many credits a student transfers from a community or junior college, the student must earn at least 60 semester hours of credit in academic course work exclusive of any community or junior college credit.

75 Hour Rule — When students have earned a total of 75 semester hours from whatever sources, no additional course work can be taken at a community or junior college for transfer to Eastern Michigan University.

When advising community college transfer students or students with junior standing, faculty advisors should inform their advisee of these rules, especially if a student wishes to take a course at a community college during the spring and/or summer sessions. In addition, all students are encouraged to check with the Academic Records Office, 5 Pierce Hall, prior to enrollment at a community college, to ensure that courses taken there will transfer and meet EMU requirements. It is the responsibility of each student to obtain such information in a timely fashion. All students are encouraged to meet with their advisor and/or with Academic Services Center, 229 Pierce Hall, if questions arise.

Good Advice

Regents Summary

The University Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at its March meeting:

—Approved the honorary degree recipients for spring commencement, including actress Celeste Holm, who will deliver the commencement address and receive an honorary Doctor of Arts degree. Dr. Rose Lee Hayden, executive director of the National Council on Foreign Language and International Studies, will receive and honorary Doctor of Humanities degree from EMU.

Holm, 64, made her stage debut in the Pulitzer Prize-winning Theater Guild production of William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life" in 1939. Her career was launched into stardom when she was cast in "Away We Go," the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical version of "Green Grow the Lilacs." The play, whose title was changed to "Oklahoma!" put the Holm interpretation of Ado Annie in the spotlight and her career began to blossom.

Hayden, 40, has served as executive director of the National Council on Foreign Language and International Studies since 1981. She earned her bachelor's degree from Cornell University, her master's degree from Columbia University and her doctorate from Michigan State University.

Prior to her appointment with the National Council, Hayden worked for the United States International Communication Agency and from 1978 to 1980, served as deputy director for Latin America and the Caribbean with the Peace Corps. In addition, she worked as associate director and director of the International Division of the American Council on Education for four years and worked in various capacities, including instructor and acting director of the Latin American Center, at Michigan State University.

—Accepted eight educational grants totaling $2,061,717, including a $1,992,000 continuing grant from the Agency for International Development for the Yemen Basic Education Development Project.

Another continuing grant of $45,872 was accepted by the Regents from the University of Michigan and the National Institute of Health for the project "Sociodemographic Correlates of Type A Behavior."

The project was initiated in collaboration with U-M to examine various aspects of Type A behavior.

—Approved six Spring/Summer Research awards to recognize and support high quality research and scholarship with particular emphasis on initiating and developing new ventures. The award recipients are: Dr. Stephen E. Schullery, professor of chemistry; Dr. Gilbert B. Cross, professor of English Language and Literature; Judy Loeb, professor of art; Dr. James P. Holoka, associate professor of foreign languages and bilingual studies; Katherine S. Holkeboer, associate professor in the Department of Communication and Theater Arts and Dr. Raymond A. Rosenfeld, associate professor of political science.

—Approved 11 research fellowships to encourage the research and scholarly activities of the faculty by providing released time and budgetary support. Winners of the fellowship awards were: Agnes Perkins and Alethea Helbig, professors of English language and literature;

Dr. Elizabeth Ingram, associate professor of English language and literature; Dr. Howard R. Mayne, assistant professor of chemistry; Dr. Krishnaswamy Rengan, professor of chemistry; Dr. Lawrence Kersten professor of sociology; Dr. Sidney Gendin, professor in the Department of History and Philosophy and Dr. Mary M. Krieger, associate professor of home economics.

—Received and discussed the construction schedule for the

Inter-Arts Program

This National Endowment for the Arts program supports artists who create work that crosses traditional discipline lines and arts organizations that present more than one art form or that provide services to constituents from various disciplines. All activities must be of the highest artistic level and of national or regional significance.

Funding is available for: presenting organizations; artists' colonies; the creation of interdisciplinary work by professional artists; activities designed to advance the field that produces such interdisciplinary work, including special events that bring interdisciplinary work to the attention of the general public; service programs ranging from those designed to develop new sources of financial and volunteer support for the arts to those that provide management skills to developing arts institutions; and services to presenting organizations.

Contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090 for information on program deadlines.

Handicapped Research Field-Initiated Projects

The National Institute of Handicapped Research will accept applications for field-initiated projects until May 21, 1984. This is a new program designed to encourage eligible parties to originate valuable ideas for planning and conducting research, demonstration and related activities that have a direct bearing on the development of methods, procedures and devices to assist in the provision of vocational and other rehabilitation services to handicapped individuals, especially those with the most severe handicaps.

Contact Chery Kozell at 7-3090 for program guidelines and application forms.

Faculty Council Corner

Faculty Council welcomes the newly elected members who will serve during academic years 1984-85 and 1985-86.

New members representing the College of Arts and Sciences will be James Devers (English), Reynaldo Ruiz (Foreign Languages), and Jeff Danksy (Psychology). Danksy also served on Faculty Council 1982 through 1984. They will join continuing members Nelly Ullman (Mathematics), Dennis Jackson (Biology), and Ana McCoy (Foreign Languages).

Newly elected members representing the College of Education are Matilda Sayegh (HPERD) and Sandra McClennen (Special Education). Sayegh served 1981 through 1983 and McClennen served 1982 through 1984. They join continuing member Angelo Angelocci (Special Education).

The new member representing the College of Business is Roger Gledhill (ORRIS). Continuing to serve is Dan Devine (Accounting and Finance).

The newly-elected member to serve the College of Health and Human Services is Betty Austin (Nursing Education). Austin served on Faculty Council 1980 through 1982. Continuing to serve is Betty Barber (Home Economics).

The College of Technology will be represented by John Jellema (Industrial Technology).

Continuing to represent the Center of Educational Resources is Margaret Best (Library).

Harris to highlight jazz revue

Saxophonist, bandleader, composer, musical innovator and singer Eddie Harris will appear at Pease Auditorium on Saturday, April 14 at 8 p.m.

Performing along with Harris will be Detroit saxophonist Wendell Harrison and his band. This will be a multifaceted show, combining contemporary rhythm and blues with straight-ahead, hard-blowing jazz. Both Harris and Pamela Wise, a long time associate of Wendell Harrison's, will add vocals to this varied program.

Many people know Eddie from his hit of nearly 25 years ago, a popular jazz rendition of "Exodus," which sold an (for then) astronomical grand total of 2 million records. Jazz buffs know that Eddie Harris composed one of the music's finest modern standards, "Freedom Jazz Dance."

Tickets for the show are $5 and are on sale at School Kids Records in Ann Arbor, at the Huckleberry Party Store in Ypsilanti, at Tom's Party Store near the EMU campus, at WEMU during business hours and at CTC outlets in the Detroit area. Part of the proceeds will benefit public radio station WEMU.

For more information call WEMU at 7-2229 in Ypsilanti.

Regents summary

Quirk Theater renovation project.

According to the proposed schedule, the University hopes to issue documents for bidding in early May and award a construction contract at the June 1984 Board of Regents meeting.

Construction for the project, which is expected to take 12 to 14 months, is scheduled to begin this summer and would be completed in the summer of 1985.

Discussed maintenance projects totaling $411,000 for building renovations and repairs, asbestos removal and upgrading the University's electrical system.

The money for the proposed projects would come from the second half of the University's 1983-84 Maintenance and Equipment Plan budget. The original plan, approved by the Regents in June 1983, provided $913,090 for major maintenance projects and the acquisition of equipment. However, available funding for the plan was increased to $1,097,951 as derived from February 1984 budget revisions.

Authorized the University president and treasurer to enter an agreement with the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority for a sanitary sewer easement which will facilitate construction of an 18-inch interceptor sewer to serve the areas in the vicinity of Golfside Road, Clark Road and Huron River Drive.
