WHILE THE COLD WINDS BLOW, "There's Snow Place Like Home." This year's Winter Carnival events, including a beach party and a Hawaiian party, promise thoughts of spring.

Winter Carnival celebrates snow

Campus Life, in conjunction with other campus organizations, will present the second annual Winter Carnival this week with activities through Saturday, Jan. 21.

The carnival is an annual "welcome back" week of scheduled entertainment and events for students, faculty and staff. This year's theme is "There's Snow Place Like Home," with activities not only focusing on winter fun but on not-too-distant summer days as well.

Some of the week's events will be the EMU "Stars of Tomorrow" talent search, Eastern's longest submarine, a winter beach party, a Hawaiian party at Hoyt Conference Center and EMU's own versions of "Family Feud" and "The Dating Game."

The Winter Laff-Olympics will be held through Thursday, Jan. 19, from 4 to 5 p.m. at various locations on the EMU campus. Laff-Olympic events will include such things as snow volleyball, broom hockey, little rubber boat races and a "jello snarf."

The "Stars of Tomorrow" talent search will be held Wednesday and Friday, Jan. 18 and 20, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the McKenny Union Trailblazer.

Today, Eastern's longest submarine will be created at noon and sold by the inch upon completion. This evening at 7 p.m., a winter beach party will be held, featuring the movie "Beach Blanket Bingo," at the Warner Club Pool.

EMU's "Family Feud" will take place Wednesday, Jan. 18 and "The Dating Game" will be presented Thursday, Jan. 19. Both events will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Huron Hideaway.

Friday, Jan. 20, Campus Life and Tau Kappa Epsilon will host the Hoyt Hawaiian Party at 9 p.m. in the Hoyt Dining Center. The party will feature a Hawaiian theme, cash bar and music by Kastle Productions.

Although the Winter Carnival is designed for participation by the campus community, the general public is invited to observe and enjoy most of the fun.

For more information, contact Russ Molinar or Bill Barnett at 7-3045.

Humanitarian Days have "Jobs, Peace, Freedom" theme

EMU's Humanitarian Days continue today and tomorrow with campus activities focusing on the theme of "Peace" Tuesday, and "Freedom" Wednesday.

Humanitarian Days were designated here to stress the importance of living a caring, concerned life. The celebration started Sunday, on Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday, with a Humanitarian Day service featuring a proclamation by University President John Porter, Scripture readings by EMU students, a tribute to King by Rev. John Rohde, a reading of King's famous "I Have A Dream" speech by Ron Jackson, representatives of the Black Greek associations and the EMU Gospel Choir.

Yesterday's focus was "Jobs" with activities including a panel discussion of job success by local business persons, workshops on resume writing and interviewing, and the "Tale of O" simulation interaction game.

Today's "Peace" activities will include a "Trident Rope" wound through campus from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., a Student Government Humanitarian Awards Ceremony in the Tower Room of McKenny Union at 4 p.m. and a panel discussion on "Peace vs. Nuclear War" at 7 p.m. in the Downing Lounge. Mike Betzold, a freelance columnist for The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press will be featured along with Dr. Frederick Anderson, professor of philosophy, Col. Richard Smith of Military Science and Dr. Arthur Parris, professor of music.

Wednesday's "Freedom" events will include a brown bag lunch at noon to discuss "Poetry of the oppressed." It will feature Marvin Sims, instructor of communication and theater arts, as well as other faculty members. Also, students can "Skip-a-Meal for Charity" by signing up in the Dining Commons and everyone can participate in a symbolic "Care Unmeal" of lentil soup and rice at the Holy Trinity Chapel Student Center. While the "unmeal" is in progress, Nancy Driscoll will accept a Humanitarian Award for Bishop Gumbleton.

Finally, at 7 p.m. a panel discussion on personal freedom, and human rights will be held in the New Alexander Auditorium. The panel will feature Sen. Lana Pollack, Ann Arbor Councilman Larry Hunter, former Ypsilanti Mayor George Goodman, Rep. Driscoll, and other local government and University representatives.

The Humanitarian Days Celebration is sponsored by the Office of Campus Life, the Career Services Center, the Office of Minority Affairs, the Residence Hall Association and Student Government.

New courses offered

Dr. Jason Kuo, newly appointed assistant professor of art at EMU and native of Taiwan, will be teaching a course on the history of Oriental art as one of the many offerings available to students during the 1984 winter semester here.

Kuo had already established a distinguished record of academic honors. Under a grant from the Detroit Institute of Arts, he was appointed to select Asian works from major collections and museums for an exhibit of arts of the late Sung period to open at the institute in 1986. He also is scheduled to give major papers in mainland China and Washington, D.C. later this year.

In addition to the art history course taught by Kuo, EMU is offering many new courses during the winter semester including:

—a course in the evaluation and application of computer hardware as well as a course in augmented statistics for computer. Both courses are being offered through the Department of Operations Research and Information Systems.

—a course dealing with personnel administration in government offered by the Political Science Department.

—an assertive communications course offered by the Department of Communication and Theater Arts.

—a special topics class in weight training.

—several courses in aviation, including an introductory course, offered by the Department of Industrial Technology.

—a course on music repertoire and recording techniques offered

Psychology Colloquium Slated for Jan. 7

Eastern's Department of Psychology will host a colloquium featuring representatives from the Wayne Center for the Developmentally Disabled Friday, Jan. 27 at 3:30 p.m. in Room 538 or Mark Jefferson Hall.

The colloquium will focus on "Applications of Inter-behaviorism to the Delivery of Services to Developmentally Retarded Clients Living in the Community." The presentation is part of the 1983-84 Colloquium Series of the Behavioral Services Program, and will describe the normalization concept for treating retarded citizens. Originally used in Scandinavian countries, the system emphasizes the teaching of skills leading to the de-institutionalization of the mentally retarded.

The colloquium is free and open to the public.

For more information call the Department of Psychology at 7-1155.

Phi Kappa Phi to Present Mime Lecture-Demonstration

The January meeting of the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi will be a lecture demonstration titled "Silence is Golden: The Value of Mime in the Training of Actors" presented by Dr. James Gousseff, professor in The Communication and Theatre Arts Department, and the EMU Master Mimes.

Members of Phi Kappa Phi and the public are invited to attend on Thursday, Jan. 26 at 3 p.m. in the Laboratory Theatre, room 107 Quirk.

Federal Income Tax Instruction Tapes Available

Taxpayers who plan to prepare their own federal income tax returns this year may get some help from cassette tapes available at the Ypsilanti District Library.

The tapes, provided by the Internal Revenue Service, give detailed instructions for filling out the most commonly used forms. Tape 1 tells who must file and gives instructions for completing Form 1040, Schedules A, B and W, plus special rules for the military. Tape 2 tells how to prepare Forms 1040EZ, 1040A and 1040 A Schedule 1, and it provides valuable tax tips.

The tapes are checked out in the Audiovisual Room downstairs in the library.

Focus on Staff

Schiesler brings varied background to ORD

For some people a career path is well-defined. They focus on one goal and progress up the ladder. Others set their ideals and proceed to zig-zag their way to the top, reassessing their needs and desires along the way, often surpassing their original goals.

Toni Schiesler is one such zig-zagger. Her road to the director's spot of EMU's Office of Research Development was anything but straight and narrow.

Schiesler began her career in education as a nun in the order of the Oblate Sisters of Providence. She entered the order as a 17-year-old girl and spent the next 10 years serving God and earning a bachelor's degree in chemistry from the College of Notre Dame of Maryland. She taught elementary and junior high students, and in contrast, earned a master's degree in science education in one year from Oak Ridge Associated Universities and the University of Tennessee. She then taught mathematics, physical science and astronomy at Mount Providence Junior College.

Having an unending desire to be a chemistry instructor and realizing her potential growth beyond the constraints of the religious order, Schiesler accepted an opportunity to teach chemistry at the University of Maryland in 1971 and left the Oblate Sisters of Providence after 20 years of commitment.

She eventually earned her doctorate in science education from the University of Maryland and became interested in the administrative side of education. She became an educational consultant in addition to her work as a chemistry lecturer and served as a director of minority recruitment and retention at the University of Maryland School of Pharmacy.

In 1978 she was hired as a staff specialist in institutional approval and evaluation for Maryland's State Board of Education and in 1979 she became program manager in the Division of Science Education Development and Research at the National Science Foundation.

As program manager, Schiesler evaluated proposals that were submitted to the foundation. She mailed them to reviewers who read, evaluated and recommended whether a proposal was to be funded. Proposals were then returned to the foundation's offices where Schiesler would condense the through the Department of Communication and Theater Arts.

—a course on computer applications in industry and a graduate manufacturing design course, both offered through EMU's Industrial Technology Department.

—a course which will explore the social consequences of computers, nuclear energy and satellites offered through the Department of Sociology.

—and several courses in the Department of Interdisciplinary Technology.

reviewers' recommendations into a report and make final recommendations. She also negotiated the budget for her division.

Schiesler worked at the National Science Foundation for one year, until her husband, an episcopal priest, announced his interest in taking a pastoral position at Trinity Episcopal Church in Belleville. It was then that she arrived at EMU as a visiting lecturer in chemistry until the 1981 budget crunch eliminated her position. She continued to teach at Washtenaw Community College and in July of 1981 she was named director of EMU's Office of Research Development.

Schiesler is rightfully proud of the work accomplished through her office. Over the past three years at least 50 percent of those proposals submitted through ORD were awarded.

"We're doing quite well this year," Schiesler said. "During fiscal year 1983 we recorded $4,378,805 in grant awards. In the second quarter of this fiscal year we have already recorded $3,316,658 in grant awards. Seventy-four proposals have already been submitted, compared to 125 during all of last year. So we're way ahead of last year's figures."

Schiesler believes she has one of the best working offices in the University. "My staff works very, very hard and I let them know that I appreciate their work.

"Everybody needs that," she said. But she also acknowledges the cooperative efforts of the University Community. "We know that without the faculty and staff we would have no annual report," she said. "We want to be the best facilitator possible, and we're trying to go a step further," she added.

"We serve three masters — the faculty, the University, and the funding agency," she explained, "and we would like to assist the faculty in the administration of the grants and contracts in a transparent way, working closely with Accounting, Personnel, Affirmative Action and Development. That way we could alleviate internal problems yet not interfere with the grant itself."

Schiesler appears to enjoy her job in ORD and has a good sense of the grant writing and grant awarding procedures. Her prior work at the National Science Foundation has given her the view from the "other side and knowledge which she doesn't hesitate to draw upon. For example, she strongly recommends reapplication to those who have submitted grant proposals and were rejected. "I know, from my NSF experience, if someone submitted a grant proposal that was originally turned down, we made special efforts to ensure a good review," she said.

One of Schiesler's greatest satisfactions is having helped someone with a proposal from the beginning, seeing the finished proposal and having it awarded. "We are very happy when that occurs."

In addition to her job commitments at EMU, Schiesler is a member of the Van Buren School Board, serves on several diocesan committees, holds microcomputer classes for women in her home, is active in the Business and Professional Women's Organization in Belleville and writes grant proposals for other organizations. Whenever she manages to find some spare time she also enjoys singing and playing guitar as well as knitting.

Schiesler is a woman of many talents and ambitions. Someday she'd like to be president of a private women's college. It may take another zig-zag or two to get there, but most likely she'll do it.

Research

University Affiliation Program

The United States Information Agency is supporting institutional partnerships between U.S. universities and non-U.S. universities in Africa, American Republics, East Asia/Pacific, Europe and Near East/South Asia. The programs should promote mutual understanding; strengthen the research and teaching abilities of U.S. and non-U.S. academics; contribute to the participating institutions; and expand the number of institutions participating in international exchange programs. Eligible fields will be in the humanities, social sciences, communications and education.

Submission deadline is March 30, 1984. Contact R. Howard at 7-3090 for assistance.

1984 Summer Seminars for College Teachers

This program is offered by the National Endowment for the Humanities every year in order to provide teachers in two-year, four-year and five-year colleges with a unique opportunity for advanced study or research in their own fields or in other fields related to their interests. For eight weeks during the summer, those selected to participate will work under the direction of a distinguished scholar in an area of mutual interest; they will discuss a body of common readings with colleagues in the seminar, prepare a written report, and, outside of the seminar, will pursue an individual project of their own choosing and design.

Applicants must have completed their professional training by March 1, 1984. Although an applicant need not necessarily have an advanced degree in order to qualify, neither candidates for degrees nor persons seeking support for work leading towards a degree are eligible.

The deadline for applying is March 1, 1984. Contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090 for seminar descriptions and application materials.

Campus Chatter

Cheryl Ormond, University Publications, and Michael Cronley were married Nov. 19, 1983.

David Klubek, Military Science, is the proud father of David Andrew, born Dec. 16, 1983, 7lb., 13 oz.

Glenna Frank Miller, Campus Life, is the proud mother of Julia Elizabeth, born Nov. 18, 1983, 7lb., 11 oz.

Jan Tomlinson, Institute for the Study of Children and Families, is the proud mother of Brian Roger, born Dec. 4, 1983, 8lb., 14 oz.

Please send notices for Campus Chatter to: Editor, Focus EMU, Information Services, 330 Snow Health Center. Deadline is 5 p.m. Tuesday for the next week's issue. We will print information about births, deaths and weddings. Be sure to include your department.

Grant writing tips

At least 50 percent of those grant proposals submitted through ORD during the last three years were awarded. The only negative aspect of this statistic is that of the 600 plus faculty members at EMU, only a small percentage actually submit proposals. In 1983, 70 faculty submitted proposals through ORD.

Toni Schiesler, director of ORD, the Office of Research Development, offered some ideas and suggestions for those considering a grant application.

—First, be aware that all requests for external funding for projects should come through ORD.

—When you have an idea of what you'd like to do, call ORD and make an appointment to discuss it, or submit a concept paper for critiquing.

—Call ORD with any questions you may have. They're always willing to assist.

—Stick to the facts. Do not try to embellish your proposal.

—Examine the guidelines set by the funding agency, and follow them.

—Plan ahead. Only experienced grant writers can put a proposal together in a week. Try to avoid the last minute rush.

—Be sure your proposal includes what you're going to do, how you intend to do it, how you will prove you've done it, and the amount of money you'll need.

Schiesler also is available to conduct proposal writing workshops for groups and individuals. For more information, call ORD at 7-3090.

Participants

Several members of the faculty and staff at Eastern Michigan University recently have been active in numerous professional activities.

College of Education Dean Dr. W. Scott Westerman, Jr. recently appeared on "Epilogue," a cable television program, to comment on the recent national reports on education. Westerman also has made several other presentations regarding the reports throughout Michigan during the last five months.

Department of Economics professor Dr. Kemper Moreland recently was a co-author of the article, "Income Testing and Social Welfare: An Optimal Tax-Transfer Model," which was published as a chapter in the book, Income - Tested Transfer Programs: The Case For and Against. Professor Kenneth J. Arrow, winner of the 1972 Nobel Prize in Economic Service, said the paper is an excellent application of economic theory to a problem of fundamental economic importance."

Dr. Ken Riopelle, associate director of the Community Education Research Center in the Leadership and Counseling Department, was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Association of Public Data Users at their annual convention recently held in Washington, D.C.

Sharman Spieser, associate director of EMU's Project Upward Bound, has been appointed chairperson of the Committee for Secondary Concerns for the Michigan Chapter of the Mid-America Association of Educational Opportunity Program Personnel.

Dr. Sandra E. McClennen, associate professor in the Special Education Department, recently was co-author of an article titled "A Developmentally-Based Functional Mathematics Program for Retarded and Autistic Persons." The article was published in the Journal of Special Education Technology.

Dr. Jay Jernigan, professor of English, recently wrote the book William Allen White. It is the second book written by Jernigan in the Twayne United States Authors Series, published by G.K. Hall.

Dr. Alfred Nelson, professor of English, is in London, England to address the Society for Theater Research on Jan. 18. Nelson's presentation is titled "The Adelphi Project/Performances in the Adelphi (Theater)."

Winifred Warnat, director of the National Center on Teaching and Learning, recently presented the paper, "Automation: An Illustration of Social Change," at the World Congress on the Human Aspects of Automation held in Ann Arbor.

Warnat also presented, "What Is High Technology?" at the Regional Cooperative Education Conference held in Flint.

Dr. Gerald L. Jennings, professor of industrial education and a coordinator of the Staff Development for School Improvement Program, participated in two panel presentations at the National Council of States for In-service Education Conference held in Dallas, Texas. The presentations were titled "Developing As a Staff," and "Staff Meetings With a Purpose."

Dr. Donald B. Phillips, professor of Chemistry, recently presented "Chemistry Activities for Upper Elementary and the Middle School" at the Metropolitan Detroit Science Teachers Association Annual Conference in St. Clair Shores.

Dr. Warren S. Williams, professor of educational psychology in the Department of Teacher Education, recently conducted two week-long workshops on microcomputer applications in education for the Taylor Public Schools. These hands-on workshops taught learning center specialists how to use word-processing in an educational setting.

Also, Williams recently presented a paper titled "Introducing Adults to Microcomputers" at the annual convention of the Michigan Association of Educational Data Systems.

A monograph, written by Williams, titled "Counselors and Testing: Academic Assessment," also was published by the ERIC Counseling and Personnel Services Clearinghouse.

Cable to televise Hurons

A Mid-American Conference Basketball Game of the Week will be televised over cable systems this season. The package has been put together by Buckeye Cablevision, Inc., of Toledo, Ohio, and will be seen on cable systems in the states of Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

The game of the week package begins Jan. 18 and continues through Feb. 29. The seven games which will be televised are all on Wednesday evenings and will all be played at their regularly scheduled time, either 7:30 or 8 p.m.

According to Gary Brubaker of Buckeye Cablevision, the MAC Game of the Week will be shown over at least 30 different cable systems in the four-state area, with more than 750,000 homes wired for it. Buckeye Cablevision is currently selling the package to other cable systems, and will continue to do so up until the first game on Jan. 18.

All ten Mid-American Conference teams will be shown at least once on the Game of the Week. The games are scheduled for the first six Wednesdays, with the game to be shown on Feb. 29 a wild card selection. Six different schools will be at home in the scheduled games.

There is also a possibility that Buckeye Cablevision will carry the MAC post-season tournament which will be held at the Rockford, Illinois Metro Centre on March 9-11.

"The Mid-American Conference is pleased to announce this seven-game package with Buckeye Cablevision," MAC Commissioner Jim Lessig says. "The opportunity for millions of homes to see MAC basketball this year is in keeping with our goal to continue television exposure of the outstanding competition in our league."

Frank Gilhooley, the sports director of WTVG-TV in Toledo, will do the play-by-play on the game of the week. Cot Marquette of Toledo will provide the color commentary.

A complete list of the games to be shown this season follows:

Jan. 18	Northern Illinois at Miami	7:30 p.m.
Jan. 25	Eastern Michigan at Ohio	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 1	Kent State at Western Michigan	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 8	Miami at Toledo	8 p.m.
Feb. 15	Ball State at Eastern Michigan	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 22	Central Michigan at Bowling Green	7:30 p.m.
Feb. 29	Wild Card Game To Be Announced
