Volume 29, Number 22

Produced by Office of Information Services for faculty and staff at Eastern Michigan University

January 31, 1984

Celebrity broadcast planned for Quirk's 25th anniversary

An evening of big band music, dancing and live entertainment will commemorate the 25th anniversary of EMU's Quirk Theater. The event, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 18 at 8 p.m. in Hoyt Conference Center, will mark the opening of another phase of Eastern's Theater Development Campaign.

Highlighting the evening will be WJR's Fat Bob Taylor, Mattie Majors and Gary Cubberly from "P.M. Detroit" and vocalist Paula Kline from WJKW-TV in Cleveland, all joining J.R. Smith's Band on stage.

As part of the program, WEMU and WAAM will broadcast "The Silver Anniversary Radio Hour" live from Hoyt Center at 9 p.m., recreating an authentic radio production set in 1943.

A fully tax deductible donation of $25 per person is requested for admission. For reservations, please call EMU Theater at 7-1221.

Regents approve funds for Computing Center

Two recommendations for funds to improve Eastern's Computing Center were approved by the Board of Regents at its January meeting.

The first recommendation called for four budget adjustments totaling $354,182 to be made during the 1983-84 fiscal year to "restore the quality" of Computing Center service. The second recommendation requested the approval of a $724,000 budget to renovate Pray-Harold for the consolidation of the University's computing facilities.

Of the approved budget adjustments, $46,420 will be allocated for administrative computing priorities, $105,671 will be used for instructional computing priorities and $25,000 will be designated for long-range plan consultation. In addition, the 1983-84 computing services budget will be increased by $177,091, from $2,075,060 to $2,252,151.

The Computing Center renovation in Pray-Harold, which will consolidate EMU's computing facilities, is targeted for completion by the 1984 fall semester.

In addition to the funds approved for the Computing Center, the Board of Regents also discussed a six-month progress report on the center.

Submitted by President John W. Porter, the report addresses the 33 recommendations made by Arthur Young and Co., which was called in to review the Computing Center in June 1983.

According to the report, 20 of the 33 recommendations already have been implemented or completed, six are on "hold" pending the appointment of a new center director and seven are being processed. Of the 14 user-related staff positions that were vacant, only one has not yet been filled and one former University employee has returned to a key position that he held previously.

In addition, the three-person temporary management team, consisting of Dr. Morell Boone, director of the Center for Educational Resources, Dr. Pedro Sanchez, associate professor in the Department of Operations Research and Information Systems, and Bill Nilsson, consultant from Technalysis Corp., will continue to oversee the center's operation for an additional 90 days at which time the center's new executive director should be appointed.

The screening committee assisting in the search for a new executive director has eliminated all but five candidates for the position and has submitted the names of those finalists to President Porter to initiate the University-wide interview process.

Regents Summary

The University Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at its January meeting:

—Approved the establishment of the on-campus office of the Association of Michigan Economic Education Centers and the one-half released time of Dr. Robert A. Ristau, professor of business and industrial education to serve as the association's executive director. The AMEEC office, which has been located at Northern Michigan University for the last two years, will occupy space in EMU's Sill Hall Annex.

In addition to the office space, EMU will provide half-time support for the executive director during the 1984 winter and spring semesters, to be assumed by AMEEC in fall of 1984 and subsequent years.

—Formally commended two graduates of Eastern's Nursing Education Program for obtaining the highest scores on the Michigan Nursing Licensure Examination of all candidates writing the exam in February and July of last year.

Margaret Anthony, who graduated Magna Cum Laude from Eastern in December 1982, scored a 2,872 on the February exam, the highest score among the 145 candidates who wrote the exam and 853 points higher than the average score of all baccalaureate candidates taking the exam.

Suzanne Williams, a 1983 April graduate of EMU, took the July exam and scored a 3,200, which was the highest score among the 2,566 candidates who wrote the exam and 1,151 points higher than the average score of all baccalaureate candidates who took the exam.

—Accepted 15 educational grants totaling $317,076, including a $73,000 continuing grant from the Agency for International Development for the Swaziland Primary Curriculum Project. The project is designed to aid the Swazi government in its goal of providing primary education to all Swazi children by 1985.

Other grants accepted by the EMU Regents included: a $62,919 continuing grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for public radio station WEMU-FM; a $50,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education for the project Basic Vocational Teacher Education; a $41,500 grant from Stackpole Corp. for the Technology Services Center to provide statistical process control training for Stackpole employees and a $28,030 grant from Michigan Bell Telephone Co. for the Unregulated Services Research Program.

EMU Wives and Associates Now Open to All Faculty, Staff

EMU Wives and Associates is a social organization whose aim is to promote a spirit of friendliness and goodwill among its members. Large group functions as well as small interest groups help to fulfill that purpose. Although previously open only to wives of faculty and staff, membership is now available to any interested faculty or staff member at EMU. Yearly dues are $6. For more information, please call Clare Johnson at 434-6374.

Nominations for 1984 Winter Commencement Speaker Due

Nominations for the 1984 Winter Commencement Speaker are being accepted in the Provost's office, 146 Pierce, until Feb. 1. The deadline for nominating Honorary Degree recipients is March 15. Nomination forms are available from Mary Wiermanski (7-2237). The theme of the Dec. 16, 1984 Commencement is business administration.

Delayed Parenting Research Participants Sought

Participants are needed for a research project on delayed parenting being conducted by Betty L. Barber, assistant professor, Department of Home Economics. Data to determine the characteristics and attitudes of career women and their husbands who have delayed child-bearing until age 28 are being collected by the investigator.

Criteria for participation in this study is that the woman must: be married; have had her first child after age 28; be currently or previously employed prior to the birth of her baby; and define herself as career oriented, i.e., plans how she will be involved in the paid work force for most of her adult life.

For further information or to become a project participant, contact Barber at 7-1218.

Scholarship Applications Available

Scholarship applications for EMU Wives and Associates' two awards for fall and winter, 1984 and 1985, are now available at the Financial Aid Office, 203 Pierce Hall.

Forms also have been passed out to several departments to encourage distribution to qualified students. Application deadline is Friday, Feb. 24. For more information, contact Jeanine Clancy, 485-1539.

Ford Gallery Exhibits Drawings

An Invitational Drawing Exhibit will be on display in EMU's Ford Gallery from Monday, Feb. 6 through Friday, March 2. An opening reception is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 6 at 3 p.m.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday and the exhibit is free and open to the public.

Focus on Faculty

Bruss is colorful, controversial, dedicated

Dr. Paul Bruss, professor of English language and literature, is colorful, sometimes controversial and at all times committed. Having taught contemporary fiction here since 1977, Bruss is committed to keeping students abreast of the culture changes that literature reflects.

"I'm interested in opening students' minds," Bruss said. "I'm interested in exposing them to a different way of looking at the 20th century."

"Interested" may not be the best word used in describing Bruss' attitude toward the goal of his job. After observing the intensity of his lectures, one must wonder if "invested" might be a more accurate term.

While presenting material to students, his hands roll and weave in the air to mark the rhythm of a paragraph. His voice rises and falls to stress a point. The movement and acceleration of the cultural changes that form the gist of his material seems to be reflected in the presentation itself.

Bruss considers the ever changing face of contemporary fiction as a reflection of culture. "Culture is dynamic and it's always changing. The wheels are constantly turning," he said.

Despite the challenges of addressing an art form that is in a state of flux, Bruss maintains a solid ideal for what he hopes to achieve in the lecture hall. "The goal is to sensitize the students to the kind of cultural attitudes that have defined the novel in the 20th century," he explained. "When the class is over, what is important is that the student is aware that transformations have occurred. What the students do about these transformations have to be their own choices."

Bruss brings to the lecture hall a background of considerable experience. He has written two books on American authors. The first is an examination of Conrad's early fiction. His second book, Victims: Textual Strategies in Recent American Fiction, studies various developments in fiction of the 1960s by focusing on the works of Vladimir Nabokov, Donald Barthelme and Jerzy Kosinski.

Bruss recently received a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to complete his third book, which he is writing under the working title Boundaries. The book will examine movements in narrative perspective through the works of 15 American authors of the 1970s.

In discussing some of the problems of presenting a course in contemporary fiction, Bruss cites the perennial complaint of many university professors: having to cover such a broad topic in only one semester. "That difficulty is heightened by the rapid changes in contemporary fiction.

"Culture in the last hundred years has accelerated in its transformation," Bruss said. "What had seemed different in the early part of the 19th century struck the person only from the perspective of a generation later. These days we see movements—transformations in attitude—only after four or five years. Because there isn't time to present all the details, the frustration of the teacher is to try to get the student to be sensitive to these transformations when you're flying through them."

Bruss points out that another problem is the resistance some students have to confronting material because of its novelty. "This is always a shock," he said, "but I discover when I talk about contemporary culture that some students are hardly ready for it. They are surprisingly conservative. I think it's largely because most of the exposure to 'culture' is by way of mass media, and mass media tends to use fairly traditional means in structuring its material."

Though he recognizes that covering certain aspects of contemporary fiction may cause some controversy, Bruss is determined that they cannot be ignored and should be exposed in the lecture hall. That is where commitment enters into the picture.

Career Planning

Career Services has many resources available for students who need career information and/or are facing a career decision. Of particular note are: System of Interactive Guidance and Information (SIGI) the Discover System and Michigan Occupational Information System (MOIS). These are computer based interactive systems (SIGI, Discover) and a microfiche index (MOIS). It is important for faculty advisors to be aware of the resources available so they can refer students to these services when questions about career opportunities in a particular field arise. Questions concerning the use of these systems or any other related to career planning should be directed to Dr. Joanne Burns, Career Services, 7-2173.

Early Advising

While winter semester has just begun, departments and faculty members might encourage their majors to come in for advising during the early part of the semester. This will give each student time to explore various course options, career information, as well as requirements for graduation. In addition, faculty members can utilize this time to better address the needs of their students in a more relaxed atmosphere and allow time for expanding their knowledge of the University's policies and regulations. Early advising also will help alleviate the heavy demand made by students for academic advising just prior to the beginning of registration. As always, ASC staff will be ready to assist and answer questions concerning advising. Our faculty hotline number is always answered by an advisor. Just call 7-3344 for further information.

Registration

Registration for the spring, summer and fall, 1984 semester will begin on March 26. Class schedule books will be out sometime in the middle of March. Schedule books can be obtained at Briggs Hall.

Retirements

Retirements from the University approved at the Jan. 25 Regents meeting included Carl Brooks, custodian in the Physical Plant, effective Jan. 5 and Hiram C. Miller, driver for University Stores, effective Jan. 6.

In addition, the Regents granted emeritus status to Dr. Naomi L. Andrews, professor of English, who retired Sept. 21, 1983, after 15 years of service; Ruth A. Gray, assistant professor in the Library, who retired Jan. 6 after 17 years of service; and Frank Ross, professor of English, who retired Dec. 21, 1983, after 17 years of service.

Arts-in-Education Program

The purpose of this program is to enable professionally directed, non-profit organizations to implement projects which integrate the arts into non-curricular learning activities providing direct financial support to one or more highly qualified artists. The program, which is sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts, has a closing date of Feb. 24, 1984.

Contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090 for further information.

Special and Alcohol Fuels Research

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will award project grants for the following areas of research during 1984: (1) Soybean Research; (2) Animal Health Research; (3) Aquaculture Research; and (4) Alcohol Fuels Research. The application deadlines for these programs are March 2, 1984; March 16, 1984; March 30, 1984; and April 6, 1984, respectively.

For further information, contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090.

New Faces

The appointments of several staff members were approved by the board of Regents at its Jan. 25 meeting. They are:

Alan G. Green, former coordinator of student services at the American Language Institute, was appointed coordinator of cooperative education.

Green, 30, replaces Stanford Ericksen, Jr. who left the University for another position.

Green earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Bowling Green State University. He served as a counselor at Wayne State University and as coordinator of the University of Toledo's residential honors program. In addition, he worked as a job developer on a temporary basis at EMU prior to his appointment.

Lee M. Hancock, project leader and programmer analyst for Computer Methods Corp., was appointed senior systems programmer in University Computing.

Hancock, 44, worked here as senior systems programmer for three years prior to his resignation in Sept. 1983. Changes in management and direction in the Computing Center prompted his reapplication for the position.

Hancock earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Eastern in 1977. He has worked in various positions in EMU's Computing Center since 1968. He also attended the Computer Science Institute in Dearborn and studied accounting at San Diego City College.

Cindy Klann, former compensation specialist at Harper-Grace Hospitals, Harper Division, was appointed compensation program associate in Personnel Services.

Klann replaces Melonie Colainne who moved to the position of staff and union relations associate.

Klann, 27, holds a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in industrial relations from Wayne State University. She has worked at Detroit Receiving Hospital/University Health Center as a compensation analyst and at Wayne State University as a personnel officer.

Daniel W. Lueker, supervisor of the microbiology lab at the National Sanitation Foundation testing laboratory in Ann Arbor, was appointed part-time pharmacist in University Health Services.

Lueker replaces Arthur Preuss who retired from the University.

Lueker, 31, earned a bachelor's degree in microbiology from Michigan State University and another in pharmacy from Wayne State University. While employed at Eastern, he will continue to work at NSF where he has been employed since the fall of 1982.

Richard N. McNeil, director of intramural sports and recreational services at Mesa College, Grand Junction, Colo., has been appointed assistant director of intramurals.

McNeil, 29, replaces Tim Corral, who left the University for another position last year. McNeil earned both his master's and bachelor's degrees at Michigan State University. He also was the Colorado state director of the National Intramural Recreational Sports Association in 1982-83.

Marjorie D. Pregitzer, former investment and budget accountant at Citizen's Insurance Co. of Howell, was appointed accountant I.

Pregitzer, 39, replaces Jim Broderick who left the University earlier this year. She holds an associate's degree in accounting from Schoolcraft Community College and currently is working toward a bachelor's degree in business administration at the Livingston County branch of Cleary College.

Other staff appointments included Arthetus Abraham, senior clerk in the Office of Financial Aid; Rosemary C. Barshaw, part-time library assistant I in the University Library; Donna Barker, account clerk in the Student Accounting Office; Diane C. Browning, library assistant II in the University Library; Mary S. Daugherty, benefits program assistant in the Department of Personnel Services; Robert W. Foy, supervising clerk in the McKenny Union Bookstore; Patricia L. Grice, secretary in the Academic Records and Certification Office; Mary E. Kinloch, account specialist in the McKenny Union Bookstore; Meriel A. Korzynski, account clerk in the Office of Student Accounting; Angela Leaver, resident manager in the Housing and Food Services Department; Elon M. McGill, clerk typist in intercollegiate Athletics; Karen E. Meek, secretary in the Academic Records and Certification Office; Edna E. Mickelson, secretary II in the Department of Foreign Languages and Bilingual Studies; Dawne O.

Nurse, secretary II in the Admissions Office; Brad Pakkala, food service attendant in the Department of Housing and Food Services; Steve Reid, resident manager in the Department of Housing and Food Services; Gayle Reuter-Alm, secretary II in the Institute for the Study of Children and Families; Amy Stark, senior clerk in the Office of Financial Aid; Debbie Strine, food service attendant in the Department of Housing and Food Services; Rosina M. Tammany, library assistant II in the University Library; Barbara A. Watson, library assistant II in the University Library; Dreama G. Wells, account clerk in the Accounting Department; and Annie Williams, custodian in the Physical Plant.

All appointments are effective immediately.

Policy revision

The University Board of Regents approved the following policy revision regarding honorary degrees at its Jan. 25 meeting:

The April 1 honorary degree nomination for Winter Commencement has been changed to March 15 and the Nov. 1 deadline for Spring Commencement has been changed to Oct. 15. The Faculty Council requested the change in order to allow sufficient time for committee work and Faculty Council approval.

Cofield named player of week

Fred Cofield

Eastern's junior guard Fred Cofield has been named Mid-American Conference men's basketball "Player of the Week" for the week ending Jan. 21, 1983. Cofield is the second Huron in as many weeks to win the award. Junior center Vince Giles was the MAC selection for Jan. 14.

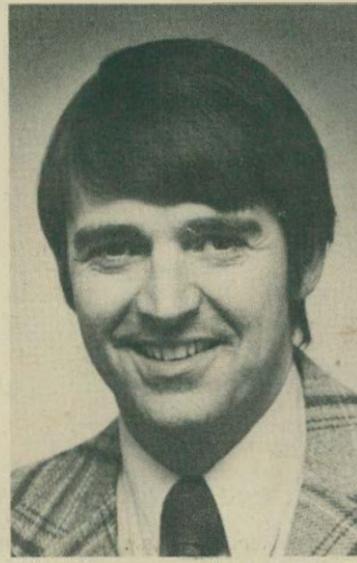

Cofield, a 6-foot-3, 185-pounder from Ypsilanti, made a 17-foot jump shot with just 0:03 left in the game to give the Hurons a 61-59 MAC win over a visiting Western Michigan team Saturday, Jan. 21 in Bowen Field House. Cofield scored 18 points in the WMU game and added 16 points in the 58-54 win at Ball State Wednesday, Jan. 18.

For both games last week Cofield connected on 15 of 27 field goals for .556 percent and made four of five free throws for .800 percent. He also had 10 assists in the two games.

Cofield is the top scorer on the EMU squad with a 14.3 point average and has a 2.9 rebound average and a team-leading 4.2 assist average. He is in his first season as a Huron after sitting out the 1982-83 season as a transfer from the University of Oregon where he was a starter for two seasons.

Focus EMU is published weekly during the fall and winter semesters for faculty and staff at Eastern Michigan University. The deadline for copy is 5 p.m. Tuesdays for the next week's issue.
