'Skin of Our Teeth' coming to Quirk

The Department of Communication and Theatre Arts will present Thornton Wilder's satire "The Skin of Our Teeth" Friday through Sunday, October 18-20, and Thursday through Saturday, October 24-26, in EMU's Quirk Theatre.

"The Skin of Our Teeth" is directed by Dr. James Gousseff, professor in the Department of Communication and Theatre Arts. Gousseff said Wilder's play was "a positive look at the ability of humanity to come through calamities by the skin of our teeth," and calamities, in the play, are plentiful.

The original play is set in the 40s but EMU's production has been updated to 1985. The Pulitzer Prize winner follows the adventures of the Androbus family through an ice age, a flood, a war and at the end, the calamities start over. The play takes place mostly in a theater in New Jersey, complete with a temperamental actress who stops the show and won't continue until she is coaxed by the cast.

"The Skin of Our Teeth" has everything from a baby dinosaur in New York to modern day costumes. There are moments for laughter and for pondering the indestructible human spirit. There are three musical numbers staged with singing and dancing.

"The Skin of Our Teeth" is the EMU Theatre Mainstage season opener. Some 30 cast members are playing 74 roles using 84 costumes. The prop list of 107 items contains everything from a racing car wheel to stuffed carnival animals.

"The Skin of Our Teeth" is good entertainment not only because of the three different sets, costumes, singing and dancing, but also because of the "sheer, nutty fun of it," Dr. Gousseff said.

Curtain times are 8 p.m. for evening performances and 2:30 p.m. for the Sunday matinee. Tickets for Friday and Saturday are $5.50, $4.50 for students, and $4 for Mainstage members; Thursday tickets are $2.50; and Sunday tickets are $4, $3.50 for students, $2.50 for Mainstage members. For ticket reservations or more information call the Quirk Theatre Box Office at 7-1221.

'Bad Art' in Intermedia Gallery

It's shameless. It's tasteless. It's just plain bad. And it's coming to EMU's Intermedia Gallery.

The Second Annual Bad Art Show runs until Oct. 25. Entries will be judged as "Worst of Show," "Most Undesirable" and "Just Plain Bad."

Tyler Hewitt, senior, entered a series of ten collages examining problems faced by modern society, including muddled thinking, ugly fashion and bad breath. Hewitt's creations are "all done with a sense of humor and a warped view," he wrote on his entry blank. "They're all pretty bad, too."

The Intermedia Gallery, one of the few student-run galleries in the state, is supported by the Art Department and the Intermedia Group, an organization for art students. Located in McKenny Union, the gallery is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Slide shows to highlight faculty travels

Each Friday throughout the fall, a different slide show will be presented by an EMU faculty member. All shows will be presented in room 120, EMU Library, from noon to 1 p.m., and are sponsored by the Interdepartmental Committee for Shared Travels.

"Glimpses of the Soviet Union" will be presented Oct. 18 by Dr. Richard Leinbach, assistant professor of human, environmental and consumer resources. Soviet subway trips and visiting Red Square are a few of the experiences he will share with the audience.

"Teaching in the Arctic" will follow Oct. 25, presented by Dr. Mark Conley, assistant professor of teacher education. Conley, while studying at the University of Alaska in Anchorage, made several visits to schools around the Arctic Circle to work on staff development and explore the varied landscape.

The series is free and open to the public. For more information call Dr. Irene Allen at 7-3260.

Evening of music to benefit scholarship fund

The EMU Department of Music will present the 3rd Annual Benefit Concert Friday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. in Pease Auditorium.

All proceeds benefit the Music Department's scholarship fund.

Master of Ceremonies Michael Deja, EMU alumnus and staff announcer at WJR Radio, will host the evening as the University Choir, University Symphony Orchestra, Symphonic Band, Concert Winds and Jazz Ensemble perform.

The EMU Madrigal Singers, who have performed on British television, BBC radio and at the Cork (Ireland) International Choral and Folk Dance Festival, also will take part in the evening's performances.

The University Choir will kick off the program with "Exultate Deo," by Alessandro Scarlatti; "A Red, Red Rose," by James Mulholland; "A Neighbor's Chorus," by Jacques Offenbach; and "Stamp Your Foot," by Aaron Copeland. The University Choir will be under the direction of Leonard Riccinto, professor of music.

The Percussion Ensemble will play "Ceremonial" by Paul Creston, under the direction of J. Whitney Prince, assistant professor of music.

The Madrigal Singers will perform under the direction of Emily Lowe, professor of music. Their performance will feature "A Witman Madrigal," by Anthony Iannaccone, professor of music at EMU, with Julie Megginson as soprano soloist. This piece was commissioned by and premiered at the Contemporary Music Seminar at the Cork Festival by the Madrigal Singers last May.

The Jazz Ensemble will then take the stage under the direction of J.R. Smith, professor of music. The ensemble will play the theme from "Rocky" by Bill Conti, "Here's the Rainy Day," by Dee Barton, and "Country Road" by Kenny Wheeler.

Following an intermission, the Symphonic Band will perform "Gallop," by Dmitri Shostakovich, and "Plymouth Trilogy," by Anthony Iannaccone. The Symphonic Band also is directed by Price.

The Symphony Orchestra will perform the overture to "William Tell," by Gioacchino Rossini, under the direction of Russell Reed, professor of music.

The Concert Winds will close the concert with "Chester," by William Schuman, and selections from "Cats," by Andrew Lloyd Webber. The Concert Winds will perform under the direction of Max Plank, professor of music.

The benefit is free and open to the public. The Music Department will seek pledges for the scholarship fund at the concert. For more information, call the Music Department at 7-4380.

Faculty Council Corner

Joseph Gonzalez

Dr. Joseph Gonzalez, associate professor in the Department of Special Education, is Faculty Council's new Institutional Policies chairperson, replacing Margaret Best of the CER. The Institutional Policies Committee considers budget, personnel policies, changes in buildings and grounds, and library matters. Gonzalez came to Eastern in 1973. He specializes in speech pathology.

Born in Dallas, Texas, Gonzalez spent his early years in Nacadoches, Ft. Worth (twice), Lubbock and Graham, Texas as well as Montgomery, Alabama and Palm Beach, Florida. He started his college education at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, but transferred to the University of Florida at the end of his sophomore year. He graduated from there in 1964, and was offered graduate fellowships in theater and speech pathology. Not being the starving actor type, he chose speech pathology and completed his master's in 1964.

Gonzalez then took a job as head speech clinician at the Hampton Roads Speech and Hearing Clinic in Newport News, Virginia, and after two years moved to Richmond, Virginia to become head of the Speech, Language and Hearing Section of the National Institute of Health and Child Development Study, at the Medical College of Virginia. In another two years, when funds for the study were eliminated, he enrolled at Florida State in speech pathology, and took his Ph.D. in 1970. His dissertation was entitled: "A Comparative Study of the Spontaneous and Orally Read Speech of a Selected Group of Black and White Children with Normal and Defective Articulation." At Eastern, Gonzalez is currently coordinator of the Speech Pathology program.

During the academic year 1980-81, Gonzalez was on leave from EMU. At that time, he developed an undergraduate program in speech pathology at the University of Puerto Rico.

On the personal side, Gonzalez is the single parent of two sons, one now at Emory University and the other a sophomore junior-varsity football player at Ypsilanti High School. His interests are varied, ranging from do-it-yourself home repair/remodeling to playing the piano, listening to music and reading literature.

QWL at EMU

QWL groups identify, solve problems

A night custodian runs out of cleaning solution and the storeroom is locked. This may not seem like a big problem, but imagine the possible repercussions. As a result, a bathroom in Pray-Harrod doesn't get cleaned. The next day is Homecoming and some visiting dignitary happens to use that bathroom. He/she assumes (wrongly) that EMU is not a clean place. The custodial supervisor gets reprimanded, and passes the criticism along to the night custodian, who had no control over the problem in the first place. And the whole situation could have been avoided.

This problem, and others, are being solved by Quality of Work Life groups in the custodial and other areas on campus. The groups are a follow-up to the QWL employee survey completed earlier this year that targeted sites for problem-solving groups.

The "Improvement Seekers," the "Go Getters," and the "Voice" are three all-volunteer groups currently meeting in the custodial area, according to Debra Dubow, QWL facilitator at EMU. "The groups identify a problem in their area and come up with a number of possible solutions. Members of the group then present their solution to management," Dubow said.

The "Go Getters" recently made a presentation requesting "wet-dry pick ups," a type of vacuum the group felt would make their cleaning operation more efficient. Now the group is meeting with vendors to gather more information, thus continuing their involvement with the initial problem.

More on-the-job training was identified as a problem area by the "Improvement Seekers," who are currently developing a "new method program" for delivering the needed training.

The groups try to be as efficient as possible, but get at the problems," Dubow said. Using a "train as you go technique," the groups address a specific problem for three to six months, learning problem solving, communication skills, consensus decision making and group process skills, as well as coming up with solutions to problems.

All groups have facilitators, who help with the group process, group training and developing group leaders. "The leaders deal with the actual content issue, coordinating the agenda and getting the assignments done," Dubow said.

Cheryl Rice, housekeeper in Pray-Harrod and co-leader of the "Improvement Seekers," volunteered for the QWL problem solving group because she was interested in on-the-job improvement. "It's nice to feel you're being heard for a change," she said.

"Our group was involved in interviewing the new manager for the custodial area. We were so pleased to have been included in the interviewing process," Rice said.

Sandie Jones, secretary in custodial services and group facilitator, feels group members "experience pride in making a difference."

While QWL problem solving groups deal with specific problems relating to their work site, the QWL Council is working in the broader University setting. The council, with representatives from all areas of campus, currently is addressing four main concerns: communication of University goals, expansion of training and development at the University, institutionalization of the QWL program (the funding source ends in March 1986), and the development of an employee recognition program.

At a QWL orientation session earlier this year, several volunteers signed up for problem solving groups. The groups now meet on a regular basis.

Benefits update

TIAA-CREF Announces New Telephone Services for Participants

Participants in the $39 billion TIAA-CREF pension system are now able to change the allocation of their future premium payments between the two funds simply by dialing a toll-free number direct to TIAA-CREF, effective Oct. 1, 1985.

Using the latest in telephone computer technology, TIAA-CREF's new automated telephone Allocation Change Service will enable participants to:

- Make premium allocation changes for their TIAA-CREF contracts with just one toll-free phone call to 1-800-842-2252 (TIAA-ALC) from anywhere in the U.S.
- Receive immediate confirmation of their allocation change transaction while still on the phone, followed by a written acknowledgement of the allocation change for their own records.

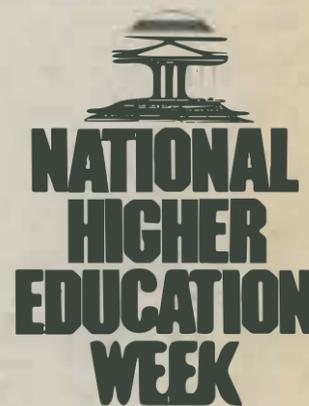

According to Executive Vice President Jack Putney, "With this new telephone service, participants can make their allocation changes direct to TIAA-CREF quickly and easily. The service will also streamline participating institutions' pension plan administration, since they will no longer have to record each participant's allocations on premium remittance lists."

The automated Allocation Change Service is one of several new toll-free specialized telephone services to be introduced by TIAA-CREF in coming months. The automated system will talk with participants, and let them transmit their allocation change by pushing the appropriate keys on any tone-producing touch-tone telephone. However, participants who call from another type of phone, or who require help in making their allocation change, will have personal assistance available when they call the 800- number.

"Any decision about changing future premium allocations between TIAA fixed-dollar and CREF equity investments should be carefully considered," Mr. Putney said. "While TIAA-CREF's new service expedites a decision to change premium allocations, we are not encouraging participants to make such changes, nor are we implying that frequent allocation changes are desirable. When contemplating changes, participants will want to review such factors as their present allocation ratios (available through the telephone Allocation Change Service), their number of years until retirement, and other types of investments they have in addition to their TIAA-CREF pension plan annuity," Mr. Putney continued. "These and many other factors may go into an individual's decision to change his or her premium allocation."

Toll-Free Service Number for Retirees

In addition to the introduction of the toll-free Allocation Change Service, TIAA-CREF also introduced a new toll-free telephone number (1-800-842-2872) on Sept. 1 for its Annuitant Information Center. Counselors in this service area advise persons currently receiving TIAA-CREF retirement annuity income benefits on such matters as taxation of annuity income, beneficiary designations, survivor benefits, and direct electronic deposit of their payments to their bank accounts.

Institute conference to focus on families

EMU's Institute for the Study of Children and Families (ISCF) will hold its sixth annual conference Thursday, Oct. 24, at McKenny Union. The theme will be "Vulnerable Families/Dangerous Times: Strategies for Effective Assistance."

The conference, which features presentations by Dr. Gisela Konopka and State Rep. David C. Hollister, three workshop sessions, lunch, and a wine and cheese reception, is designed for people working in social service agencies and related fields. According to Jeanne Pritchard, ISCF project coordinator, it will be of special interest to social workers, hospital employees and educators. The conference will focus on budget cuts to federally-funded social service programs, as well as the financial problems of locally-funded programs.

Hollister will kick off the conference with a keynote address titled "Organizing, Advocating and Winning: How to Survive in Periods of Cutbacks and Crises." Hollister chairs the Social Services Subcommittee on Aging and serves on subcommittees of the Mental Health and Public Health Committees.

The luncheon speaker will be Konopka, professor emeritus of social work at the University of Minnesota. Her topic will be "The Adolescent and the Family." Konopka is renowned as an international lecturer, consultant and author. She was a delegate to several White House Conferences on Children and Youth, and has been on several state commissions, governors' advisory councils and State Department advisory committees dealing with such areas as children and youth, correctional institutions and services, family life and family planning.

Conference participants can choose one of three workshops during each of three 90-minute sessions. Session A runs from 10

- 11:30 a.m., Session B from 1:15 - 2:45 p.m., and Session C from 3 - 4:30 p.m.

The conference ends with a wine and cheese reception from 4:30 - 5:30 p.m. Registration for the conference, which includes lunch, is $45 ($15 for students). Registration forms are available in the ISCF office in 102 King Hall. No confirmation or refunds will be issued after Oct. 18, and the luncheon must be reserved by Oct. 20.

For more information, contact Pritchard at 7-0372.
