Wilbanks elected WDC president

Roy Wilbanks, vice president for University Relations here, recently was elected president of the Washtenaw Development Council for 1986.

The purpose of the WDC is to attract new businesses to Washtenaw County, while expanding and retaining existing jobs. The council, which has been in existence for three years, was designated in 1985 by the State of Michigan as the Community Growth Alliance and Area Development Office.

Wilbanks is serving as the fourth president of the council. He officially took the helm of the agency in January, as the result of many years of participation in the Ypsilanti Chamber of Commerce. As president of the council he will preside at all meetings of the membership, board of directors and executive committee and will serve as chief elected officer of the WDC.

A native of Ypsilanti, Wilbanks has been an active participant in many community organizations. He served as chairman of the Ypsilanti Township Parks and Recreation Commission for two years and chairman of the Blue Ribbon Committee to study and recommend joint recreational programs for Ypsilanti Township, the city of Ypsilanti, Ypsilanti Public Schools, Willow Run Community Schools and Superior Township. He has been a member of the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority Board, and trustee of the Ypsilanti Township Board. He also received the Ypsilanti Area Jaycees Distinguished Service Award.

EMU Regents review institutional priorities

EMU Board of Regents reviewed the 1986-87 Resource Planning/Budget Development Institutional Priorities at its recent meeting.

In addition to listing 67 priorities, which each address one of the University's six basic goals, six priorities will be emphasized in the 1986-87 budget request to the state. These are special or line-item funding requests for University Computing, the Center for Entrepreneurship, the College Service Centers, instructional equipment, automation of library services and the Office of Research Development.

Inclusion in the extensive Institutional Priorities list does not assure new or additional funding for a program, but does assure that each will be developed into formal program plans. Furthermore, funding may only be provided for a feasibility study or development, subject to subsequent review. And, identification as a priority does not authorize expenditure of funds unless specific recommendations are approved by the EMU regents.

In response to the University's goals to enroll students to the University's educational and resource capacities and provide a comprehensive financial aid program to stabilize enrollments, priorities are set in the areas of enhanced admissions efforts, continued improvement in scholarship programs, maintenance of athletic awards at existing levels and implementation of the Advising and Registration Center reorganization.

Working to give highest priority to the maintenance and development of superior academic programs is another University goal. Priorities addressing this goal are continued growth and development of the Honors Program, additional faculty resource allocations, comprehensive program reviews, continued spring/summer session emphasis, improved distribution of courses and services and the enhancement of faculty development and retention.

The priorities also include increased emphasis on international studies and development of the "World College," an examination of the reorganization of the College of Arts and Sciences into two colleges separating those types of disciplines, the enhancement of corporate/contract learning and the support of the Commission on Creative Strategies to Solve the Educator Crisis.

Priorities addressing EMU's goal to be responsive to student needs and assure quality student life, thus enhancing retention, include expanded career placement outreach, expansion and emphasis on student employment, enhanced Cooperative Education placements and resources, more Campus Life activities, continued emphasis on student retention and an expansion of University Child Care facilities.

The fourth goal of maintaining superior academic facilities, improved safety and maximum

Corporate Training Center looks to September groundbreaking

If all goes as planned, the groundbreaking for EMU's new corporate training center will occur in September according to a comprehensive plan for the development of the Huron Center which was received by the EMU Board of Regents at its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday.

The plan, along with two other items, was discussed by the regents in a lengthy executive session, which was closed to the public. From the proceedings of that session, the regents moved to formally accept the plan and also approved a Memorandum of Understanding between Huron Hi-Tek Limited Partnership and the University. The board also authorized President John W. Porter and board secretary, Vice President of University Relations Roy Wilbanks to sign all documents.

The comprehensive plan details acreage allocations for the 186-acre development. From Morgan-Mitsubishi Development Co., 177 acres will be obtained. The other nine acres will come from the Joint Ypsilanti Recreation Organization. Morgan-Mitsubishi will distribute its acreage in the following manner:

124 acres will be sold to Ypsilanti Township with concurrent transfer of effective ownership to the University for development into a golf course; 15 will be sold to Ypsilanti Township for development into a public park; 4.5 acres will be donated as a gift to the University for the Corporate Training Center/Hotel; 7.5 acres will be sold to the Huron Hi-Tek Limited Partnership; and 26 acres will be retained by Mitsubishi.

EMU's primary focus in the plan is on the development of the Corporate Training Center which will be built together with a hotel to be developed by Huron Hi-Tek. The University will not pay for any costs associated with the development or construction other than the costs attributable to the CTC less approximately $3.3 to be credited to the University. (This amount is derived from the $1.5 million legislative grant, $500,000 Small Cities Development Block Grant, the $295,000 Morgan-Mitsubishi donation and the $1 million Urban Development Action Grant.)

The University's secondary focus will be the development of an 18-hole championship golf course scheduled for completion at the same time as the CTC.

Estimates of cost, time-lines for completion, sources of funding and amounts of funding are contained in the report submitted to the board. Total cost of the development of the 186 acres is estimated, at the present time, to be approximately $25.6 million.

To facilitate the development of the golf course, Ypsilanti Township is expected to lease 124 acres to the University essentially rent-free for a 99-year term in exchange for the University funding the development of those acres (combined with nine acres contributed by JYRO).

The projected September groundbreaking for the CTC is based on successfully meeting a series of deadlines, beginning with the finalization, by the developer, of schematic drawings and financial projections and the securing of all binding financial agreements by March 15.

According to Dr. Alexandra Aldridge, director of the CTC, construction of the center could actually begin prior to the September groundbreaking deadline, pending earlier completion of other steps in the plan.

Focus on Faculty

Cynthia Creighton and Michael McGuire

Creighton and McGuire bring team-effort approach to fieldwork

Good teachers are usually innovators, and they're not afraid to take a chance. Though trying something different sometimes means failure, more often a "gamble" on a new teaching method means success. Cynthia L. Creighton, assistant professor in the Associated Health Professions Department here, recently saw one of her gambles become a success.

Creighton felt her occupational therapy students needed a more meaningful fieldwork experience, one that gave them a chance to work with members of other professions.

"Through the courtesy of the Special Education Department, we were able to use the gym at Rackham once a week. Mentally and emotionally impaired adults from the Washtenaw County Community Mental Health Center participated in a morning of therapy, which concentrated on developing independence," Creighton said.

Creighton and her students planned "simple, yet adult activities." The end of each session featured musical activities, planned by several music therapy students who also participated in the fieldwork experience. "This was our first effort at an interdisciplinary, team-effort approach," she said. After each session, the faculty members and students involved met to critique the day's session and plan the next week's activities. One of Creighton's goals was to involve students in all phases of the fieldwork, including planning, participation and follow-up.

"For most of the students, this was their first experience outside the classroom. I was concerned at first because of the level of the clients, but the experience was a positive one for everyone involved," Creighton said.

Michael McGuire, assistant professor of music and coordinator of EMU's music therapy program, echoed Creighton's feelings about the success of the project. "This is good, early practice at acquiring professional skills, particularly working with other therapists. For the students, planning the sessions is similar to what happens in a 'treatment-team meeting,'" he said.

The music therapy students participating in the project are freshmen and sophomores. "For freshmen, this is a totally voluntary experience, and for the sophomores, it is in addition to their regular field placement. This is a 'labor of love' for the students. The project is not academically required, but professionally, the experience will be invaluable," McGuire said.

The experimental fieldwork was first offered during the 1985 fall semester and because of the positive response, it is continuing this semester. Both Creighton and McGuire feel that since mentally retarded adults are a difficult population to work with, this experience is particularly beneficial. Also, since the clients from the mental health center are those who started the project, a valuable continuity has resulted. "The students know the clients now. They are able to see results through working every week with the same group," McGuire said.

Creighton and McGuire stressed the "professional development" aspect of the project, and both bring professionalism to their teaching. Creighton, who joined the staff in 1979, is a registered occupational therapist and worked with various agencies in Flint, Lansing and Detroit, "a good sampling of work environments," before deciding to teach.

McGuire, a registered and board certified music therapist, was director of music therapy clinical training at Buffalo (New York) Psychiatric Hospital, and taught music therapy in various New York state colleges before coming to Eastern in 1983.

In the future, Creighton hopes to expand the fieldwork "team-effort approach" to include other disciplines, such as recreation therapy and experimental clothing design. But for now, Creighton is satisfied with the results of her "gamble." "The students felt good about their experience, and more confident about their ability to handle clients," she said.

Fast Track, 1986

Fast Track is Eastern's highly successful new student orientation program. It is an intensive, individualized, one-day program which includes a meeting with an academic adviser, registration, financial aid counseling, housing reservations, textbook pre-ordering and campus tours. Students are guided through the day-long orientation in groups of seven to nine by a student counselor. FAST TRACK '86 begins this week, so don't be surprised if you see some fresh new faces touring campus this semester.

Early Advising/Currently Enrolled Students

Academic departments are encouraged to begin advising for their majors as early as possible in preparation for registration which begins Monday, March 31. This may lighten the last minute rush.

Thinking Ahead to Fall '86

The Academic Advising Center Staff would be interested in knowing about any program changes or new course offerings planned by your department for Spring, Summer or Fall '86. Help us to help you. Contact Karen Moses, associate director at 7-3146 with information.

Morning Edition to feature traveling profs

WEMU's "Morning Edition" kicks off February with a special series on EMU's International Studies Program. Each morning this week, Host Ken Horning will talk with professors who lead trips to various spots around the world. The schedule for the remainder of the week includes, beginning Wednesday, biology professors Suzanne Stevens and William Fennell, who plan a trip to the Galapagos Islands. On Thursday, history professors Walter Moss and Reinhard Witke will discuss their trips to Europe. On Friday, Horning will talk with romance language professors Reynaldo Ruiz, Sanford Dugan and Sharon Robertson about individual intensive language study programs in Spanish, French and German. Broadcast time for the Morning Edition is 6 to 9 p.m.

FOCUS EMU is published weekly during the fall and winter semesters for faculty and staff at Eastern Michigan University. The deadline for copy is 5 p.m. Tuesdays for the next week's issue.

New Faces

The following appointments were approved by the EMU Board of Regents at its January meeting:

Roberto B. Corales, a recent EMU graduate, was named supervisor of laboratory services in the Chemistry Department. He replaces Beth Green, who left the University.

Corales received two bachelor's degree in chemistry and in French from EMU in Dec. 1985. While a student, he was vice president and program director of the Stoic Society and currently is a member of the Circle K Kiwanis Club.

Roberto Corales

Laurie Edwards, career planning and placement specialist and counselor at Cleary College, was appointed Campus Life officer. She replaces Mike Kluczycki who left the University.

Edwards earned her bachelor's degree at Albion College. She also holds master's degrees in human relations from Pacific Lutheran University and in teaching English as a second language from Northern Arizona University. Edwards has worked at various colleges and universities since 1975. Between 1975 and 1982 she served in a variety of Housing positions at Albion, Pacific Lutheran and Oregon State University. In addition, she worked as residence life operations manager at Northern Arizona from 1983 to 1985, before joining the Cleary College staff.

Aw Feng

Aw Feng, part-time computer programmer here, was appointed chemist/programmer in EMU's Chemistry Department.

A native of Taipei, Taiwan, Feng received a Bachelor of Science degree from Tankang University in Taiwan in 1975, and two Master of Science degrees, one from Ohio University in 1981, the other from EMU in 1985. She worked as a research chemist in Taiwan from 1975 to 1981 and was first employed at EMU in 1983 as a teaching assistant.

Matthew Klar

And Matthew D. Klar, WXYZ-TV engineer, was appointed part-time engineer-lecturer in the Department of Communication and Theater Arts. He replaces Harold Beer who accepted a position outside the University.

Klar received his bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri in 1978 and has worked at various television and radio stations as a maintenance engineer since 1977.

All appointments are effective immediately.

ICARD Newsletter forecasts economic growth in '86

Faster economic growth in 1986, because of delayed responses to rapid increases in the money supply and recent declines in the value of the dollar, is just one of the items noted in Eastern's latest economic newsletter.

The newsletter, titled Michigan Economic Developments, is now in its second year and is published biannually by EMU's Institute for Community and Regional Development.

This latest ICARD newsletter presents an overview of the past year's economic performance nationwide and in Michigan and forecasts the economic outlook for 1986. It also examines Michigan's real income and industrial specialization by region.

The newsletter is free and available upon request. To receive the latest issue, or for more information, call Dr. Charles Monsma, director of the institute, at 7-0243.

The institute is a public service unit of EMU whose purpose is to avail faculty, staff and student expertise to the community. Current ICARD projects include the development of a computer model of regional economic impacts on plant closings and an economic analysis of recycling technology applications in Michigan.

Promotions

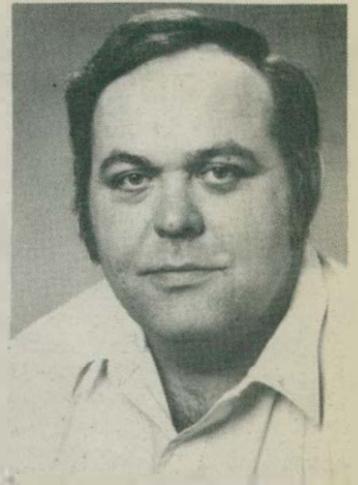

Karen Moses

The following promotions were approved by the Regents at its January meeting.

Karen D. Moses, coordinator in the Academic Services Center here, was promoted to associate director of advising in the center. She replaces Ann Kettles, who recently was promoted to director of the center.

Moses received her bachelor's degree in political science and master's degree in counseling from EMU. Currently, she is a pre-candidate in the doctoral program in higher education administration at the University of Michigan.

An academic adviser at EMU since 1976, Moses also served as facilitator of the Early Warning System Project in 1983 and coordinated the Pass Program Grant from 1984 to 1986. She also worked as an admissions clerk at the U-M School of Social Work and as a graduate assistant and tutor in EMU's Political Science Department.

Harold Robbins, Jr.

Harold W. Robbins, Jr., heating, ventilation and air conditioning specialist in the Physical Plant, was promoted to plumbing trades foreman in the same department.

Robbins has been employed at EMU since 1969. He received his training through the Local 190 Apprenticeship program and before coming to EMU, was a journeyman plumber with Local 190 for Washtenaw County. He also was employed at the University of Michigan as a HVAC specialist.

Both promotions are effective immediately.

Regents Summary

The EMU Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at its January meeting:

—Approved several items formalizing EMU's planned-giving program, including the establishment of a pooled income fund, emphasizing reasonable growth in the fund's principal value as well as current income and the use of life income agreements such as pooled income fund trusts, charitable remainder unitrusts, charitable remainder annuity trusts and life estate agreements. The regents also gave the University administration authority to establish and maintain administrative guidelines for planned gift agreements.

—Accepted 20 educational grants totaling $239,555. Six of the grants totaling $188,530, went to EMU's Technology Services Center.

The largest of the grants was a $74,880 grant from Ford Motor Co.-Ypsilanti to the Technology Services Center to provide on-site training in statistical process control at Ford's Ypsilanti plant. Dr. Jacob Frimenko of the Technology Services Center is directing the project. The Technology Services Center also received a $44,000 continuing grant from Alcoa Corp. for providing eight statistical process control sessions for the corporation. John Lipscomb directed the project.

—Accepted gifts totaling $102,789 for the months of October and November. This brings the year-to-date total for 1985, excluding December, to more than 1.3 million in gifts received.

The largest single gift received was $21,047 from the estate of Ruth Lockhart Lerch, a former EMU student who died Feb. 18, 1984. Lerch's bequest was designated for use for the Quirk/Sponberg Theater improvement project.

Other significant gifts included an $8,000 gift-in-kind consisting of a museum-quality collection of minerals and crystals from 1942 EMU graduate Donald Sommerfield, $5,000 from associate professor of art James Sandall to the National Education Association/Visual Artist Program at EMU, a $3,300 gift-in-kind of theater brochures from Dearborn Lithograph and $2,440 in numerous donations from the gifts, bequests and wills account to establish a scholarship in memory of Dr. Neil McLarty, who was a professor of history at EMU from 1957 until his death last year.
