

'Kids America' radio show is new offering for WEMU

Deviating from its usual jazz and informational adult programming, Eastern's public radio station WEMU-FM is taking a bold step to cater to, and attract, younger listeners...much younger listeners.

"Kids America," a 90-minute program geared to children, ages six to 12 began airing yesterday. The program broadcasts from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, bumping the popular "All Things Considered" into a later time slot.

Produced by New York Public Radio/WNYC and distributed by the American Public Radio Network, "Kids America" offers a fast-paced mixture of music and brain-teasing games exploring history, literature and language. The program, which will celebrate its third birthday in January, has won much acclaim for its success at combining educational underpinnings with fun for its listeners.

Produced by Keith Talbot, an experienced and award-winning public radio producer (who frequently plays the happily barking dog "Spot" on the show), "Kids America" encourages listeners to play along in games with regular guests via a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-235 KIDS.

Regular guests on the show include people like the Duke of Words, who conducts a spelling bee on his world travels, and Dr. Rita Book, a Dr. Ruth Westheimer sound-alike, who guesses book titles from clues telephoned into her by listeners and then "prescribes" similar books. In addition, plenty of sound effects and corny jokes from program hosts Larry Orfaly and Kathy O'Connell round out the bouncy upbeat broadcast which brims with regular fun features and games.

"Kids America" is the winner of many awards including broadcasting's highly prestigious George Foster Peabody Award, the 1986 Corporation for Public Broadcasting Award, the Action for Children's Television Achievement Award and the National Education Association Award for the Advancement of Learning Through Broadcasting Award.

Hispanic Heritage Week at EMU to feature films, celebrations

EMU will celebrate Hispanic Heritage Week Monday, Sept. 15 through Friday, Sept. 19, with a number of free events on campus. The activities will follow the official Hispanic Heritage Week Proclamation by Gov. James Blanchard on the Capitol Building steps at 11:30 a.m. Monday.

EMU's activities, sponsored by the Latino Advisory Council and Hispanic Student Association, will begin Tuesday, Sept. 16, with the showing of two films, "El Norte" and "South America Today" at 4 p.m. in Strong Auditorium. "El Norte" is the story of a group of Guatemalan Indians and their journey to the United States. "South America Today" relates to the current economic, political and religious conditions in South American countries.

Wednesday, Sept. 17, a mid-day celebration, or "Merienda" will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. in McKenny Union's Guild Hall. EMU President John W. Porter and Mary Lou Olivarez, executive director of the Governor's Commission on Spanish Speaking Affairs, will be featured speakers at the event and Hispanic cuisine will be served. In addition, "El Norte" and "South America Today" will be shown again at 8 p.m. in Strong Auditorium.

Thursday, Sept. 18, children in EMU's Day Care Center in Snow Health Center will enjoy a Piñata Breaking at noon, supervised by members of the Hispanic Student Association. And Friday, Sept.

19, a celebration of Hispanic music, song and dance will be held in EMU's Quirk Theater.

Friday's finale will include performances by EMU students as "Los Venezolanos y Sus Amigos," a Venezuelan troupe of dancers and singers, and the "Marta y Julián," Colombian dancers. In addition a professional Michigan dance group will perform in Mexican style "Corazon Juvenil de Mexico de Santa Ana."

An informal reception will wrap up the week's activities immediately following the Friday evening program.

For further information, call Reinaldo Perez, chairman of the Latino Advisory Council, at 7-1167 or Lydia Ortiz at 7-0125.

Decisional Committee formed, AIDS policy outlined

An administrative task force formed last spring has outlined a procedure EMU will use if a suspected or confirmed case of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) is discovered here.

Rather than adopt a broad-based policy regarding AIDS, the task force has outlined a procedure that allows for handling incidents of AIDS on a case-by-case basis.

The new procedure calls for the University Health Center to be notified of all suspected and confirmed AIDS cases. It will, in turn, notify the members of a newly formed AIDS Decisional Committee.

That committee will investigate and evaluate the suspected or confirmed cases and recommend a course of action to the President and Executive Council, while safeguarding the confidentiality of persons affected.

Members of the committee are Milton E. Lewis, executive director of human resources; Kathy Tinney, director of public information and publications; Vence Bonham, university attorney; Mary Jean Schumann, Snow Health Center's clinical director; Dr. Bette White, dean of students; and Dr. Martha Hickner, chief of medical staff, Snow Health Center.

The procedural guidelines also state that EMU will act to protect the legal rights of the victim and University community as well as make reasonable accommodations for the safety and security of the victim.

The EMU guidelines are borrowed from guidelines developed by the American College Health Association. According to ACHA literature, "there is no proven case in which it (AIDS) has been transmitted by casual contact of any kind. People with AIDS, AIDS-Related Complex or a positive blood test (for antibody to the AIDS virus) present no danger to those with whom they go to class, share bathrooms, eat, work, or sit. Objects touched or handled by people with AIDS are not 'contaminated' and need not be feared. . . . AIDS is transmitted by intimate (sexual) contact and by exposure to contaminated blood (such as a used intravenous needle)."

The Office of Human Resources Development will hold a workshop Thursday, Oct. 2, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. focusing on all communicable diseases and aimed at laying to rest myths and fears about such illnesses.

According to Snow Health Center Director Schumann, discussion of AIDS and other communicable diseases is often tainted with wrong information.

"We need to get rid of some of the myths that are there, and there are a lot of them that are being perpetuated," Schumann said, noting that the likelihood of contracting other communicable diseases, such as hepatitis, through casual contact, is far greater than that of contracting AIDS.

In addition to outlining procedural guidelines for AIDS, the University hopes its informational campaign will help to eliminate unwarranted fears about AIDS and its victims.

Appointments, promotions approved by Regents

The following staff appointments and promotions were also approved by the Board of Regents at its August meeting:

Marian E. Banks, substance abuse therapist at Child and Family Services in Ann Arbor, was appointed admissions representative in EMU's Admissions Office. She replaces Clarence Lyte who left the University.

Banks earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice and master's degree in guidance and counseling, both from EMU. She is certified as a social worker by the State of Michigan and also is certified as a substance abuse counselor by the Office of Substance Abuse in Lansing.

Jocelyn P. Clark, senior secretary in the Career Services Center, was promoted to career development assistant in the CSC. She has been employed here since 1982, and earned her bachelor's degree from Eastern earlier this year.

Cindy (Swartz) Hall, sergeant in the Public Safety Department, was promoted to administrative assistant to the director of public safety (see this issue's Focus on Staff).

Ted Justice

Ted Justice Jr., security officer for Ford Motor Co., was appointed as campus police officer in the Department of Public Safety. He attended Oakland Community College's Police Academy in 1977, earned an associate's degree from Jackson Community College in 1982 and currently is working toward his bachelor's degree here.

Justice worked as a Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department deputy from 1976 to 1978 and was a security officer at Ford Motor Co. from 1978 to 1982. He also worked as a police officer in Michigan State University's Department of Public Safety for two years before returning to Ford Motor as a security officer in 1984.

Focus on Staff

Hall takes 'humanistic' approach to parking job at EMU

The parking snarl on campus is a recurring part of the "first-week chaos" on campus that affects everyone: faculty, staff and especially students at EMU. And at the bottom of the snarl, patiently making order out of the confusion, is Cindy Hall.

Formerly a sergeant in EMU's Public Safety Department, Hall recently was promoted to administrative assistant to the director of public safety. Her primary responsibility is assisting the director with all matters relating to parking and her duties can include anything from appeasing an irate commuter to making sure there are enough student dispatchers scheduled for all shifts at the department.

Hall will oversee the many changes in EMU's parking system, all designed to make parking more "humanistic" during this period of peak enrollment.

One of the more noticeable changes will be tended gates at the parking structure and the new Pease Lot, in addition to the tended McKenny Lot gate. Paving and revamping of Pease Lot during the summer also added some 100 parking spaces to this prime-use area, according to Hall.

The University will continue to offer free parking in the West Campus Lot, and will operate shuttle bus service to the main part of campus every 10 minutes, from 7:30 a.m. to approximately 5 p.m. "We plan to promote the shuttle bus service this year with flyers and advertising," Hall added.

Though Hall is looking forward to her new duties, she admits she will miss many aspects of her former position as sergeant, particularly the walks across campus that were an important part of her job. Hall also enjoyed "walking her beat" in Kalamazoo, where she was assigned to the Neighborhood Police Officer Program before joining the staff at EMU.

Hall walked five or six miles a day, and as the "neighborhood cop," she got involved in various community groups and block organizations. She enjoyed the day-to-day contact with people on her beat and often lectured to neighborhood groups about crime and crime prevention. As the result of her community contact, Hall got "hooked" on police work.

Wanting to complete her education, Hall joined the Public Safety Department as a student officer, then regular officer in 1979. She earned a bachelor's degree in political science in 1983 and was promoted to sergeant on a temporary basis in 1984. She was given permanent sergeant status in 1985, one of few women with that status in the Washtenaw County police network.

This soft-spoken administrator doesn't fit the stereotype of the tough "lady cop" represented on television shows like "Cagney and Lacey." But Hall feels she is representative of the increased emphasis on professionalism in the Public Safety Department. "We are seeing more highly trained officers here at EMU. Most have at least a two or four-year degree in addition to required basic police training," Hall said.

Hall is continuing her police training by attending the Northwestern Institute School for Police Staff and Command, offered at EMU one week per month for 10 months. Her class will graduate in November. "The Institute essentially teaches general management techniques, but relates them to specific police problems," Hall said.

Hall also manages to find the time, and energy, to pursue a law degree at the University of Toledo, and has completed her third year of the four-year program. In addition, she has attended various specialized trainings including Programming with a Data Base Management System, Basic Accident Investigation, Campus Crime Prevention, Narcotics Investigation for the Road Patrol Officer and High-Risk Patrol Tactics.

She is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, the Fraternal Order of Police and the Michigan Women in Criminal Justice Association.

Although many would see her somewhat untraditional role as a woman police officer and administrator as a difficult one, Hall doesn't see it that way. "I have never felt discriminated against because I am a woman police officer, and I haven't had trouble being accepted. I always do the best job I can," she said.

"I expect a lot of people on campus won't know me out of my uniform," Hall said. "But this is a nice change for me."

Training and Development

EMU's Office of Staff Training and Development has begun its fall semester workshops. Here is a list, by category, of the workshops scheduled for September. All workshops require pre-registration and most will be held in McKenny Union, unless otherwise noted. For more information or to register, call the Staff Training and Development at 7-0076. Future issues of FOCUS EMU will include reminders on upcoming sessions.

ALL EMPLOYEES

"New Employee Orientation," Friday, Sept. 25 from 9 a.m. until noon in Guild Hall. The purpose of the workshop is to introduce new employees to EMU's theme of student retention, outline a brief history of the University and provide an overview of EMU's benefits program.

"Your Will and You: Practical Applications of Making a Will," Wednesday, Sept. 17 from noon until 1 p.m. in Room 210 King Hall. Greg Schupra, director of planned giving at EMU, will discuss several aspects of will making, including what makes up a will and how to dispose of property properly.

"Reducing Your Vulnerability to Sexual Assault," Thursday, Sept. 18 in Room 201 King Hall from 1:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sgt. Gerald V. Lawver of the Public Safety Department and Dr. Rosalyn Barclay, coordinator of EMU's Counseling Services, will analyze the threat of sexual assault, present ways to reduce vulnerability, describe how to fight back in case of an assault and discuss the role of crisis intervention after an assault has taken place. This workshop is limited to 16 people.

"Fitness Club," Monday, Sept. 22 from noon until 1 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Recreation/Intramural Building. This group will meet regularly to help reduce stress and work toward individual fitness goals. Graduates of Healthy Combinations are invited to attend.

"Student Employment Procedures," Thursday, Sept. 25 from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. in Room 201 King Hall. Jim Vick, director of Career Services and Jan BenDor of Career Services will focus this workshop on the current college work study procedures and policies. The changes made for 1986-87 will be noted and explained. The workshop is limited to 16 new supervisors only.

"Preparing and Delivering Effective Presentations," Friday, Sept. 26 from 9 a.m. until noon in Room 201 King Hall. Dr. Helen M. Burnstad, director of the Office of Human Resources Development, will examine the elements of effective program delivery, help participants practice effective delivery and will encourage feedback on individual's speaking skills. This workshop is recommended training for Quality of Work Life management presentations and is limited to 16 participants.

"EMU's Financial Records System," Tuesday, Sept. 30 from 9 a.m. until noon in the Faculty Room. Phyllis Smith, assistant controller in the Accounting Department, will explain the new financial records system recently implemented by the University. She will demonstrate the printouts available under the new system and explain how to manage a budget using this new information. This session will duplicate the workshops held in individual departments and is limited to 30 participants.

In addition, "Healthy Combinations" will hold its first meeting Monday, Sept. 29 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Recreation/Intramural Building. Open to 30 participants, the program will enable people to take the first steps toward a more healthy lifestyle and improving their sense of wellness. Topics covered throughout the 10-week course include: cardiovascular risk reduction, nutrition, cancer risk reduction, assessing health care and components of a fitness program. Cost for the program is $75, which covers a physical examination, health risk appraisal and complete fitness testing.

State Offers Higher Education Grants

The Michigan Department of Education has set a Wednesday, Oct. 22 deadline for applications for Higher Education Competitive and Cooperative grants for 1987.

The grants are targeted to improving upper elementary science teacher skills and instruction, and middle/junior high teacher skills and instruction primarily in mathematics and science. In addition, funds may be used to respond to locally assessed needs. The Cooperative grants are directed to model projects designed to improve student understanding and performance in the targeted content areas. Competitive grants are directed at inservice for teachers.

Application forms and guidelines are available from Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090.

Independent Business Studies Sought

The Michigan Department of Commerce is seeking research proposals to: (1) provide some basic data on the types of firms incorporated in Michigan over the past two years; (2) identify, on a national basis, innovative programs and services designed to assist small firms; and (3) identify all data sets currently available to any department of Michigan State government which might prove useful to the Michigan Department of Commerce and Michigan firms in studying public policy issues as they relate to Michigan's economy.

Proposals are due Tuesday, Sept. 30. Contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090 for copies of the RFP.

Academic Research Enhancement Award

AREA provides funding for feasibility studies, pilot studies and small-scale research projects in health-related areas. Projects should have relevance to National Institutes of Health programs.

Up to $50,000 in direct cost per project is available. Submission date is Monday, Sept. 22. Contact Rick Howard at 7-3090 for guidelines.

Regents Summary

The EMU Board of Regents acted on the following agenda items at its August meeting:

—Received the annual report of the Office of Research Development for fiscal year 1986.

During the fiscal year, between July 1, 1985 and June 30, 1986, the University received $3,801,128 from grants and contracts. Of the 261 grant proposals submitted, 149 or 67.4 percent were funded.

Of the grant dollars received, $1,448,526 or 38.1 percent was awarded from the federal government, $599,856 or 15.8 percent was awarded from state government, $1,391,267 or 36.6 percent was awarded by business and industry and $361,479 or 9.5 percent was granted from other sources including professional associations, educational institutions, local government and miscellaneous sources.

Although the University has experienced a significant increase in business and industry grant activity during the last four years, the 1986 figures show a 4.4 percent drop in this growth. Also, there are trends toward the funding of more interdisciplinary projects, toward contract versus grant awards, toward more shared financial participation by the University and toward more basic research being done on campus, as reflected by the successful securing of grants from the National Institute of Education, the National Institute of Health and the National Science Foundation.

Although the total dollar amount of grants awarded in 1986 was down from the previous year, from approximately $4.4 million to the current $3.8 million, the number of grants received increased by six, from 143 in fiscal year 1985 to 149 in 1986. In addition, the drop in grant money received was largely due to the completion of EMU's Swaziland project, which was funded by the Agency for International Development from 1982 through last year.

—Accepted 26 educational grants totaling $535,872. The largest of the grants, a $200,512 continuing grant from the U.S. Department of Education, was awarded to the Department of Interdisciplinary Technology for the Bilingual Vocational Instructor Training Program. Directed by Dr. Paul Kuwik, head of the Interdisciplinary Technology Department, the program is for persons of Arabic, Spanish and Vietnamese bilingual backgrounds who have had some vocational training and related work experience. Its objective is to provide Michigan teacher-certified, bilingual vocational instructors to teach in high schools, vocational education centers, community colleges and in adult education training programs in Michigan and the Midwest.

The regents also accepted six grants totaling $121,100 for EMU's Technology Services Center for various projects. Dr. William Loeffler, director of the center, is head of the projects which mostly deal with statistical process control procedures, training and consulting. Five of the six projects totaling $115,400 are/were funded by the Ford Motor Co. Electrical and Electronics Division or its Climate Control Division. The other project was funded by a $5,700 grant from Imperial Cleveite for a statistical process control seminar.

Appointments, promotions approved

Gary W. Strickland, assistant trainer in Intercollegiate Athletics was promoted to coordinator of athletic training in that same department. He received his bachelor's degree from Wayne State College in Wayne, Neb., in 1964. He earned certification in physical therapy from the University of Iowa in 1969 and was awarded a master's degree from Western Illinois University in 1970.

Strickland began his professional career as a teacher and coach at Fort Dodge Junior High School in Iowa before serving for two years in the U.S. Army. He later worked as a staff physical therapist at WIU for one year and joined the staff here as an instructor and assistant athletic trainer in 1970.

Sandra Tanner

Sandra L. Tanner, secretary in the Technology Services Center, was promoted to administrative assistant in the center. She has been employed at EMU since 1974 and also has attended classes here.

M. Patricia Woodard, contracted nurse clinician in Eastern's Snow Health Center, was appointed nurse practitioner in the center. She replaces Mary Kay Hopkins who left the University.

Woodard holds a bachelor's degree in biology from Seton Hill College, a bachelor's degree in nursing from Case Western Reserve University and a master's degree in primary care—community health nursing from the University of Michigan.

Prior to working at EMU on a contractual basis in 1985, Woodard worked as a nurse clinician at Summit Medical Center in Ann Arbor for two years, was a staff nurse for Kelly Home Care and was a team leader and staff nurse for the Visiting Nurse Association. In addition, she was team leader and staff nurse at Lakeside Hospital and University Hospital at Case Western, was a laboratory instructor at Seton Hill and was a laboratory assistant at Seton Hill and the University of Pittsburgh.

All appointments and promotions are effective immediately.
