

WEMU to co-sponsor annual Heritage Festival jazz event

WEMU-FM (89.1) and the Ypsilanti Depot Town Association will co-sponsor their annual Jazz Competition the weekend of Aug. 16-18 in connection with the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival.

The competition gives aspiring jazz musicians and vocalists the opportunity to perform in front of a live audience in the WEMU jazz tent, which will be located near the Ypsilanti Farmer's Market building in Depot Town. The competitive performances also will be broadcast live over WEMU.

This year, 18 acts, chosen on the basis of tapes they submitted, will perform for first place honors in the following categories: solo or duo, trio or quartet, quintet or larger, high school ensemble, vocalist and individual musician. The winners will receive prizes ranging from three free hours of studio time at Ann Arbor's Solid Sound to the opportunity to headline an EMU concert through the Office of Campus Life. Runners up will receive a collection of compact discs.

"This is a fairly high-profile event and this year's competitors are hot," said WEMU Program Manager Linda Yohn. "We give them superb exposure both on the station and in the tent."

Each day's competition will conclude with a free dance party featuring top-flight area bands, including The Conquerroots Blues Band on Friday, the Howling Diablos Saturday and Impacto Nuevo, a 12-piece salsa-jazz band from Cleveland, Ohio, on Sunday.

The Jazz Competition will begin at 3 p.m. Friday and conclude at 9:35 p.m. with that evening's headliner taking the stage at 10 p.m. Saturday's competition will get underway at noon and run until 9:40 p.m., followed by the Howling Diablos at 10 p.m. Sunday, the competition winners will perform a winners' showcase from noon to 4 p.m. when Impacto Nuevo takes the stage until 6 p.m.

The Conquerroots Blues Band, formed in 1987, grew out of the blues jam sessions at Ann Arbor's Blind Pig. It includes vocalist Pete Ferguson, guitarist Dave Kaftan, keyboardist Jim Neal, bassist Chris Georke, saxophonist Mark Hynes and drummer Hugh Huntley.

The Howling Diablos, a Detroit blues band, features Michael Hollis on bass, Spencer Hirsch on drums, Mr. ? Phantom on lead guitar, Showtime Johnny on vocals and tenor sax and Little Tino on guitar and vocals. Though the band shrouds itself in secrecy, local blues fans know Little Tino as "Martino D. Lorenzo," host of WEMU's "Big City Blues Cruise" heard Sundays from 3 to 6 p.m.

Sunday's headliner, Impacto Nuevo (new impact), is a Latin-jazz band specializing in the Cuban style known as "salsa." It's led by Nelson Orta and includes vocalist

EMU and McAuley to open Alzheimer's center

By Susan Bairley

EMU and Catherine McAuley Health System are preparing to open and jointly operate an Alzheimer's Care and Training Center this September.

The center, which has been in the planning stages for almost two years, will be housed in one wing of the Huron Oaks Building on Catherine McAuley's campus on East Huron River Drive in Ann Arbor.

The center will have three components: a 13-bed Special Care Unit for people with Alzheimer's Disease and related illnesses; education and training programs for health care professionals, families and college-level gerontology students; and clinical research in the cognitive behavioral aspects of dementia.

The Special Care Unit will provide a supportive home-like environment with opportunities for those with dementia to use their remaining abilities as long as possible. Residents will be encouraged to take part in everyday activities such as performing household tasks, baking, gardening, playing music and taking walks.

The center also will provide training workshops for family members, administrators, health care professionals and direct care staff from nursing homes, hospitals and other community organizations.

Helen Berg, vice president of patient care and human resources at Catherine McAuley, said the joint program was a natural step for the two organizations. "This is a critical area, in terms of service needs, and it's an opportunity for our two organizations to provide needed leadership and service," she said.

Dr. Elizabeth King, dean of EMU's College of Health and Human Services, agrees. "Our partnership with Catherine McAuley is very complementary. With EMU's experience in education and training in dementia and Catherine McAuley's excellent

Host Families Sought For Exchange Students

Student Travel Schools, a Washington D.C.-based exchange student organization, is seeking area host families to house foreign exchange students for the upcoming year.

STS brings primarily high-school-age students from Western Europe, Australia, New Zealand and Canada to the United States for a variety of exchange programs which typically last from August through the following June or July.

For information on hosting a student, call 1-800-522-HOST or area STS representative Maria Bayne at 729-7945.

Speaker To Discuss 'Creativity' Aug. 9

The Greater Ann Arbor Quilt Guild will host a presentation by Doreen Speckman titled "Creativity: There's a Little in All of Us" Friday, Aug. 9, beginning at 7 p.m. in the McKenny Union Ballroom.

Using slides and samples, Speckman will illustrate how ideas progress into quilts and how one quilt progresses into another.

Tickets are $18 per person and include dinner.

For ticket information, call Carol Spaly at 769-3511.

Residence Hall Space Still Available for 1991-92

Space in EMU's residence halls is still available for the 1991-92 year. To ensure the best selection of room and/or hall, students should contact Colleen Tompkins at 7-1300.

Students interested in living in a residence hall but concerned about the cost can receive room and board in exchange for working 20 to 25 hours per week for Dining Services. For more information, contact Karen Briones at 7-0418.

EMU Alumni To Participate In 'MAC At Meadow Brook'

The Alumni Relations Office will sponsor a trip to the Meadow Brook Music Center in Rochester for a concert by Dionne Warwick Sunday, Aug. 18, as part of the second Mid-American Conference "MAC at Meadow Brook" outing.

EMU alumni and friends will join alumni from the other MAC schools for the evening, which will include cocktails in a MAC tent at Meadow Brook and a barbecue dinner.

The event will begin at 6:15 p.m. at the MAC tent, followed by the Warwick concert at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $17.50 per person, which includes dinner. Lawn seats have been reserved, so participants should bring lawn chairs or blankets.

Because tickets are limited, reservations must be made by Tuesday, July 30.

For reservation information, call Alumni Relations at 7-0250.

Summer Course In Consumer Economics To Be Offered

A one-week graduate course in consumer economics will be offered for teachers this summer by the Michigan Consumer Education Center at EMU and the Division of Continuing Education.

The course will be held Monday through Friday, Aug. 12-16, from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City. Topics will include the consumer movement, consumers in the marketplace, analyzing financial issues, consumer protection, and health care and housing.

The course is designed to update teachers' knowledge and skills in their respective areas. It will feature discussions of teaching methods and materials for secondary and adult students and will provide an opportunity for teaching-unit development.

Tuition and fees will be according to the regular EMU tuition and fee schedule. Northwestern Michigan College residence hall accommodations are available for students and families through the college's Housing Office at (616) 922-1405.

For more information, call the Michigan Consumer Education Center at 7-2282.

Clerical/Secretarial Union Reaches Tentative Agreement

EMU's clerical/secretarial union, United Auto Workers/Technical, Office and Professional, Local 1975, reached a tentative agreement with the University on a three-year pact Tuesday, July 23.

The union membership, which consists of approximately 380 clerical and secretarial employees, ratified the agreement at a meeting Wednesday, July 31, with 88 percent of those who voted voting to ratify.

Negotiations for the contract began in early June.

Details of the new contract will not be made public until after the contract's approval by the EMU Board of Regents, which is expected to meet this month.

Parking To Begin Sending Out 1991-92 Campus Decals

The Parking Department soon will begin distributing parking decals for the 1991-92 year.

Blue billing cards will be sent to offices and departments and distributed among faculty and staff. To receive a new decal, you must submit to the Parking Department a copy of your vehicle registration along with the blue card. Those may either be sent through campus mail or taken to the Parking office, temporarily located on the first floor of Pierce Hall.

Faculty/staff members who have two vehicles may receive two decals, but an orange billing card must be submitted along with the second vehicle registration.

If you use a windshield pouch and need the decal placed on plastic, please notify the Parking Department.

For more information, call 7-3450.

EMU Alumni Golf Outing At West Branch CC Aug. 12

The Office of Alumni Relations will host a Scotch doubles golf outing for alumni and friends Monday, Aug. 12, beginning at 12:30 p.m. at West Branch Country Club in West Branch.

Featured at the outing will be golfing professional John Thibault, former EMU golf coach and EMU alumnus.

Scotch doubles places two-person teams in alternate shot play. Prizes for the best scorers in several divisions and for special competitions will be awarded.

The cost of the outing is $40 per person and includes golf, cart, prizes and a steak cookout.

The deadline for reservations is Wednesday, Aug. 7.

To register or for more information, call 7-0250.

Phone registration planned

The registration lines will be longer—but they'll be telephone lines instead of lines of people when EMU begins a new telephone class registration system this fall.

The new system, which will allow students to register for, or drop and add classes using any touch-tone telephone, will be tested by selected students as part of pilot program during the upcoming fall semester's drop/add period which begins in mid-August. However, the system will not be fully operational until October when registration for the 1992 winter semester begins.

According to Marianne Westhead, interim assistant director of administrative information services in University Computing, 64 telephone lines will be installed which will allow students to communicate directly with the computer.

Benefits of the system will be "students will no longer have to stand in lines and they'll know right away what classes they've got," she said.

Perhaps most importantly, the new system will provide service access to eight times as many students at any one time than those that currently can be accommodated by EMU's existing bank of eight terminals.

"Students will still be able to come in (to the Registration Office), but we're going to try to discourage that," added Interim Registrar Ann Kettles. "Eventually, we'd like to get rid of all the terminals."

Once on-line registration is at every student's fingertips, the mail-in registration option, which many students previously utilized, will be dropped.

2 residence halls get needed study room/bathroom facelifts

By Susan Bairley

Picture the work required to renovate your home's bathroom. Now, imagine doing that 320 times.

That's exactly what's happening in Downing and Buell Residence Halls this summer.

In addition, 25 study lounges were renovated in Hill, Hoyt and Pittman Halls as part of scheduled maintenance and improvements in EMU's Housing and Dining Services.

Although the renovations are part of "scheduled maintenance", Facilities Manager Neil Belitsky emphasized the projects were incorporated into the plan because of identified student needs. "The projects are in response to students' requests," he said. "Through surveys, focus groups and personal interviews, we obtained their opinions and then worked their suggestions into our maintenance plans. It was a direct response to students' needs."

Both renovation projects were aided by former student designer

Carrie Painter Richardson, who conducted needs analyses which led to changes in furniture, lighting and finishes in the study areas; and new lighting, paint, mirrors, plumbing fixtures and increased storage space in the bathrooms.

Richardson, a former Ypsilanti resident who now lives in Dayton, Ohio, graduated in April from EMU's interior design program and had worked as a designer in EMU's Housing Office while a student here.

To formulate her designs, Richardson used the survey data and random interviews with students to help determine the renovation needs. "For example, we found three different needs for the study areas," she said. "Students wanted areas for individual, heavy studying; places for study groups; and casual, lounge-type settings. So, I came up with eight to 10 prototypes from which we chose three basic designs."

For the bathrooms, Richardson said lighting was the biggest issue and she worked with Belitsky and her father, EMU journeyman electrician Barry Painter, in finding the best lighting to install.

Looking for cabinetry that would withstand lots of moisture and wear and tear, Richardson eventually chose laboratory cabinets. And in response to student concerns about lacking kitchen-style sinks for making Kool-aid and other drink mixes, she recommended gooseneck faucets be installed.

For Richardson, the projects provided a "wonderful" experience. "I was very happy to participate in these projects," she said. "I did the research, developed the concepts and served as project manager, so I got to see that everything I designed actually went in. It was busy, hustle bustle, but a great experience."

In addition, Belitsky said Putnam Hall is being converted into an upper-level-students-only dorm this summer and will have added amenities when the students return. "We rewired the building, and where students in suites formerly shared a common telephone, we'll now have individual room phones with call-waiting. Also, each room will have cable TV, with basic service provided by the University and we're installing a data network in the building that will give students computer access in the fall," he said.

Although Belitsky said many renovations reflect needed updating, others are driven by today's more sophisticated student population. "Students are expecting more these days. They want what they have at home," he said, noting that, eventually, the same amenities added in Putnam this summer will be in all of the University's residence halls.

Members of MAC news media pick EMU football to finish 6th

By Jim Streeter
Sports Information Director

The EMU football team was selected to finish sixth in the Mid-American Conference in 1991 by the MAC News Media Association.

Defending MAC champion Central Michigan was chosen to win the '91 race by the 52 voters of the association. Central received 30 of the 52 first-place votes and tallied 475 points in the voting. Western Michigan was second with 416 points and 11 first-place votes. Ball State was third with 414 points and eight firsts while Toledo was fourth with 381 points and three firsts. Miami was selected fifth with 347 points with EMU sixth at 255, Bowling Green seventh with 224, Kent eighth at 165 and Ohio ninth with 131.

The University of Akron, the MAC's newest member school, is not eligible for football competition in 1991.

The winner of the Mid-American Conference gains an automatic berth in the California Raisin Bowl against the champion of the Big West Conference. The California Raisin Bowl and the Rose Bowl are the only postseason games that are "closed," meaning only the champions of two conferences may play in the game. Eastern Michigan appeared in California Bowl VII in 1987 and recorded one of the most memorable MAC wins in history

The Mid-American Conference News Media Association's 1991 preseason football predictions are listed below, with total first place votes (out of 52) in parentheses followed by total points received in the voting.

1. Central Michigan (30) 475
2. Western Michigan (11) 416
3. Ball State (8) 414
4. Toledo (3) 381
5. Miami 347
6. Eastern Michigan 255
7. Bowling Green 224
8. Kent State 165
9. Ohio University 131

with a 30-27 decision over a highly favored San Jose State team.

"We are going to be a 'new' football team this year," Head Coach Jim Harkema said. "We have a new field to play on (Rynearson Stadium has switched to a synthetic turf), a new name and a new direction (the squad was 2-9 in 1990). We're looking forward to proving ourselves in the 1991 season."

Eastern Michigan opens the season with three consecutive road games before returning home. The squad plays at Bowling Green on Aug. 31, at Purdue on Sept. 7 and a Miami on Sept. 14 before the home opener Sept. 21 against Louisiana Tech at 6 p.m. in Rynearson Stadium. EMU then hits the road to play at Wisconsin on Sept. 28 and at Kent on Oct. 5. EMU returns home for three straight games, hosting Ball State on Oct. 12 at 6 p.m., Western Michigan on Homecoming/Parents' Night at 6 p.m. on Oct. 19 and Central Michigan at 4 p.m. on Nov. 2 in the "MAC Television Game of the Week." EMU then heads to Ohio for a Nov. 9 meeting before closing out the 1991 campaign at home Nov. 16 against Toledo in a 4 p.m. start that also will be a "MAC Television Game of the Week."

The televised games of the week will be carried locally on PASS-TV.

Five state students win full-ride scholarships

Five academically superior students from Michigan recently were awarded four-year, full-ride scholarships to EMU.

As recipients of EMU's Presidential Scholarships, the University's most prestigious award, the students will have their full tuition, room, board, books and supplies paid for four years. The scholarships are valued at $26,000 each.

Presidential Scholarships went to: Amber Clark, daughter of Robert and Andrea Clark of Saline who graduated first in her class from Saline High School last June; Theodore (Ted) Emch, son of Don and Donna Emch of Brighton and a 1991 Brighton High School graduate; John LaVere, son of Daniel and Jean LaVere of Marine City and a 1991 Saint Lawrence Seminary graduate; Andrew Shier, son of Barbara A. Emerson of Grandville and Robert Shier of Brutus who graduated first in his class from Grandville High School in June; and Julie Waterloo, daughter of Ronald and Mary Waterloo of Ann Arbor and a 1991 Huron High School graduate.

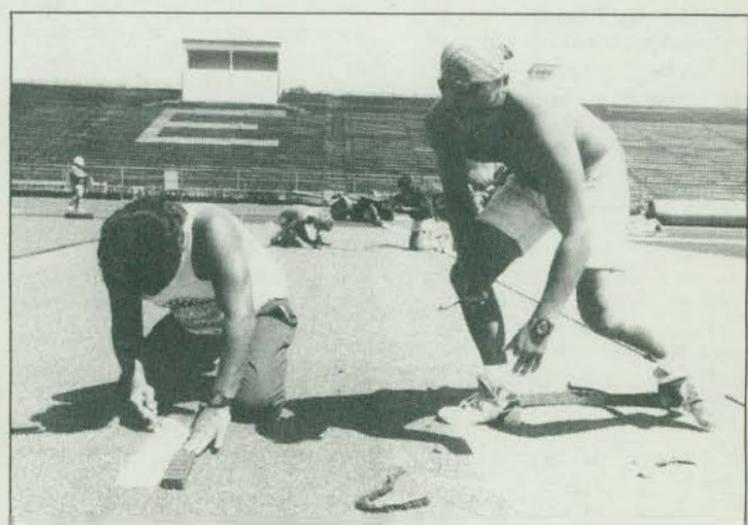

All five students have been accepted into EMU's Honors Program, a specialized and rigorous course of study for academically talented students.

High school seniors are invited to compete for the EMU scholarships based on their grade point averages and scores on the American College Test. Approximately 300 students took a faculty-designed examination at EMU last December in competition for the awards.

Next year, EMU will double its number of full-ride academic awards and offer 10 Presidential Scholarships.

"These kinds of scholarships help us compete with schools like the University of Michigan and Michigan State University to get the best and most talented students into Eastern and to keep them here," said Cynthia Van Pelt, senior adviser for upperclass scholarships in EMU's Financial Aid Office. "With 10 scholarships next year, we'll be in strict competition with those schools."

The next competitive exam will be given in December.

HECR's Ward writes 'coffee-table' book on American horses

By Susan Bairley

Kathleen Rauschl Ward isn't what you'd consider a typical author. Nor is she a typical secretary.

However, Ward's sheer determination and atypical knowledge about horses, when paired with her ability to research and organize, bring the best from both career worlds to work for her.

"(The book) turned into a major project. It took over my life is what it did!"

When Ward, a longtime horse enthusiast and senior secretary in EMU's Department of Human, Environmental and Consumer Resources, discovered most general books on the American horse were published long ago, she decided to research and write an up-to-date one. And when she couldn't find a publisher to turn her manuscript into the book she envisioned, she and her husband, Larry, who also works at EMU, published it themselves.

The result is "The American Horse: From Conquistadors to the 21st Century," a $50 coffee-table book published by Maple Yard Publications in Belleville.

"I started this project about three years ago—maybe in my mind it goes back a lot further than that, but I was tired of sitting around and waiting for a book like this to come out," Ward said. "The last one was 25 years ago and I've got it on my bookshelf. I dearly love that book, but I thought, this is old; this stuff is really old! So I (told myself), 'Quit sitting around and waiting for it and take a shot at it!'"

Ward promptly devised a questionnaire, had it duplicated at University Publications and started sending it to advertisers in national horse magazines, inquiring as to their willingness to participate in her project. Of the 150 surveys sent, Ward received about 75 responses.

"Not all of them, as it turned out, actually went beyond that part of saying, 'Hey, this is great; I'd like to be involved,' and some dropped out along the way, but the majority stuck with me," she said.

With those committed to help her, Ward exchanged information via letters, telephone calls and cassette tapes. She made one trip to an Indiana horse farm and two trips, with her husband, to Lexington, Ky., horse farms. She took photographs, did interviews and gathered other people's horse photos.

"It turned into a major project," she said. "It took over my life is what it did! Then, it started coming together, but it got to the point where I had so much done, and there were so many people involved in it and I was having a heck of a time finding a publisher."

Although Ward had written magazine articles on horses and horse-related issues, she was basically an unknown writer, which made for an especially difficult sell to potential publishers. However, even being rebuffed was encouraging to her. "I had rejection letters before, but these were the kind of rejection letters that said, 'This is really a beautiful project, but our house can't take this on at this time. Good luck with it and here's a couple of names of other people. . . . That's not your common, ordinary rejection letter and I thought, this has real possibilities, but I just can't get anybody to stick their neck out far enough to pick it up,'" she said.

With her husband's urging, the two finally decided to publish Ward's book themselves. "We made the publishing company, Maple Yard Publications, and we published it ourselves. It cost us an arm and a leg and another arm—$15,000, and that was the scariest part of all," Ward said. "Then we had major problems with the printer. . . . I went through some very, very rough moments there, but it got to be something I couldn't set aside. It was like one of my children."

Ward's book chronicles the history of 17 breeds of horses which she deems as American born and bred, but she also looks at their contemporary status. "I wanted to show the history of each one of these breeds and then show how the breeds are being used today by highlighting some farms or training centers where people who said they'd contribute to the book were from," she said.

Kathleen Rauschl Ward, pictured here with "Featured," may be a senior secretary in the Department of Human, Environmental and Consumer Resources by day, but by night, she's a writer who recently published a 344-page book on the history of American horses.

As a result, the 344-page book the Wards produced is an entertaining combination of fact and anecdote, more than 80 black and white photographs and a center section composed of 16 full-page, color photographs.

Having been published in June, the Wards' marketing efforts for the book have just begun. They've already sold "quite a few" and are intending to advertise the book in horse journals and magazines.

So what's the connection between this "city slicker" and horses? Ward said her love of horses began when she was about 4 years old and living in the Wausau, Wisc., area. "I nagged and I begged and I whined and I cried for a horse, but we lived in the city," she said. "When I was 16 (and living in Davison, Mich.), they finally bought me a horse, but from that point, they said it was up to me (to care for it). So I babysat and did yard work to take care of that horse on my own, and since we still lived in the city, I had to board it."

From then on, Ward had horses most of her life and, at one point, lived on a farm in Owosso and owned eight. But in the 1980s, when she moved to Southeastern Michigan, she sold the horses, and while here, bought and gave away another. "We bought Cammie, but I had a ruptured disk in my back and was in terrible pain, laying on my back for the better part of four months. After that, and knowing (Cammie) is hotter than a two-dollar pistol to ride, I said, 'Do I want to put my body on this horse?' The answer was 'no.'"

Although she truly misses owning a horse, Ward's schedule makes having a horse impossible. "I'm working full time, and I'm going to school part time (pursuing a bachelor's degree in public relations and writing at EMU) and I'm trying to write. . . . and I don't have time for a horse right now."

Like any author, Ward is especially proud of her book and is optimistic the 500 copies she and her husband published will go quickly, requiring a second printing to occur. "I'm going to look for a publisher to pick up a reprint. . . . I think when people hear about the book, know about the book and see the book, 500 isn't going to be enough to go around—at least that's what I'm hoping," she said.

"I've had nothing but great comments from people, and 'horse people,' who have seen it," Ward added. "When horse people tell me that it's good and, 'I read that chapter and that was some of the best stuff I've ever read on my breed,' that's when I know I've done well. It's not just a beautiful book, but I got it factually correct."

WEMU record/CD sale includes 10,000 recordings

WEMU-FM will hold a "one-time-only" used record and compact disc sale the weekend of Aug. 16-18 in the Ypsilanti Farmer's Market Building in Depot Town in connection with that city's annual Heritage Festival.

The sale will feature more than 10,000 albums and CDs covering pop, rock, jazz, classical, comedy, country-western, rap, dance and new age music. There also will be 78 rpm recordings for sale.

It will be held from 4 to 11 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday and noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

All albums and CDs will be priced at $4 when the sale begins and lowered throughout the weekend. On Sunday, the final day of the sale, albums will be sold at two for $1.

Although WEMU (89.1 FM) now features a blues and jazz format, the station once aired classical music, pop, rock and Broadway show tunes. The rock collection of albums available ranges from Mott the Hoople and The Grateful Dead to Genesis. The classical collection includes works by Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn and others.

For more information, call 7-2229.

reputation and clinical expertise in geriatric care, our partnership is a natural," she said.

The center will be directed by Anne Robinson of EMU's Gerontology Program and former director of the Wesley Hall Project, a residential unit for individuals with dementia at the United Methodist Retirement Home in Chelsea. "We want to create an accepting environment in the Special Care Unit which supports and stimulates the person with dementia," she said.

Dr. Alan Dengiz, physician and medical director for the Special Care Unit, also said the center will provide a needed "continuum of service" for those with dementia and their families. "This unit will expand the options available to families. We (at CMHS) already do a fine job of diagnosing Alzheimer's Disease, and now we'll have another service to assist families in coping with the devastating effects of this illness," he said.

For more information about the Alzheimer's Care and Training Center, call Robinson at 572-4334.

ORD Office to Close

The Office of Research Development will be closed Aug. 14-16 because of maintenance work in Goddard Hall. On Aug. 14, the staff will accept phone calls, but will not be able to schedule appointments or provide grant and contract assistance. On Aug. 15 and 16, the building will be closed completely and the staff unavailable. Matters of extreme emergency that require immediate attention can be referred to the Graduate School at 7-0042.

The ORD office will reopen at 8 a.m., Monday, Aug. 19.

Music Program

The National Endowment for the Arts assists creative and performing artists of exceptional talent and music performing, presenting and service organizations of the highest artistic level and of national or regional significance. During 1992, the following five competitions will be funded: (1) Music Professional Training (due Oct. 24, 1991); (2) Career Development Organizations for Solo Music Artists (due Sept. 27, 1991); (3) Music Recording (due Sept. 27, 1991); (4) Services to Composers (due Sept. 27, 1991); and (5) Special Projects (due Feb. 14, 1992).

For application materials, contact Cheryl Kozell at 7-3090.

Anorexia and Bulimia Studies

The National Institute of Mental Health is inviting applications for basic brain, behavioral and clinical studies relevant to the epidemiology, etiology, treatment and prevention of anorexia and bulimia.

Eligible for funding is research on basic neurobiological, endocrinological and behavioral factors associated with ingestive behaviors and eating disorders, and on sociological variables in the development of the disorders.

Proposals will be accepted Oct. 1, 1991, and Feb. 1 and June 1, 1992. Contact Michelle Barnes at 7-3090 for further information.

Citizen Exchanges Discretionary Grant Program

The Office of Citizen Exchanges of the U.S. Information Agency has announced a discretionary grant program in support of projects that link international exchange interests with counterpart institutions/groups in other countries. The Office of Citizen Exchanges works with U.S. private sector nonprofit organizations on cooperative international group projects that introduce American and foreign participants to each others' cultural and artistic traditions; social, economic and political structures; and international interests. The office supports international projects in the U.S. and overseas involving leaders or potential leaders in the following fields and professions: leaders of cultural institutions, urban planners, jurists, specialized journalists, business professionals, environmental specialists, parliamentarians, educators, economic planning and other government officials.

In addition, the Office of Citizen Exchanges offers a Creative Arts Grant Program, which supports exchanges of professionals in the fields of music, dance, theater, literature, visual arts, architecture, folk arts, crafts and folklore, museum exchanges and historical/cultural conservation/preservation.

Proposals are due Aug. 30, 1991. For further information and application materials, contact Jay Weinstein at 7-3090.
