Modern Dutch Revival- side gable with side facade to the street and 3/4 shed dormers on front and rear sides. A colonial revival arch is cut in the side under the upper window alinement to form a porch/stoop of this period. A stoop is found over the side doorway as well. Double-hung 6/1 windows are arranged as sets in the upper facade and as a large window below on the clapboard building which has an outside chimney on the north side. The single garage is of the same image.

Historical Significance

- Assoc. with lives of significant persons
- Assoc. with significant historical events
- Assoc. with development of a locality
- Other:

Williamsburg house type with two shed dormers in the side gable one and a half story house with an outside chimney on the north side. A gable vestibule cuts into the roofline with a short platform concrete porch surrounded with iron railing. A single 6/1 double-hung window is found on each side of the vestibule.

A lean-to addition is added onto the back.

Historical Significance:

- Assoc. with lives of significant persons
- Assoc. with significant historical events
- Assoc. with development of a locality
- Other: None

Historical Statement:

This house type named after the Williamsburg Tidewater prototypes was introduced in the late 1920s. Many mail-order catalog companies offered this model until the 1950s.

This house is just a good example of a modest working class home for this neighborhood with a small garage set in the back.

Architectural Statement:

Modern Dutch Revival - Historic type - has a steep flaring roofline that ends in a room on the west side and creates a portico with square piers on the east side, full shed dormers are found on each side of the gable. The windows have 4/4 panes and arranged in singles and pairs around the house. Awnings are over the front entrance and picture looking-like window. Trellises are placed against the facade and a flower box is beneath the large window.

Historical Statement:

This style appeared in the late 1920s, based on the Albany Brick house of colonial days. The arched garden or in this case driveway entrance creates an attractive front facade by the extension of the front facade. Many times this model would have the chimney in front where this one is flush with the side wall.

This could be a mail-order house for several companies offered this style.

- Is a visual landmark in the area
- Other:

Architectural Statement:

This Modern Tudor Revival—Elizabethan-side gable facade house has a dormer cut into the roofline besides a multi-gabled ending into annexed enclosed vestibule. There is a variety of window types on the facade from tiny windows to tall narrow windows with eight Mullions and plain banded windows to almost a hooded window in the upper gable facade. The entire house is clapboard. An attached enclosed sunporch is on the east side of the house. A single one-car gable garage in back.

Historical Significance:

- Assoc. with lives of significant persons
- Assoc. with significant historical events
- Assoc. with development of a locality
- Other:

Historical Statement:

Early examples of Modern Tudor Revival are of wood clapping and tall narrow windows with multi-pane glazing. Because the porch is on the right side the house may have been built as late as 1930s, even though the house shows earlier characteristics.

- Other:

Historical Statement:

This house, Cape Cod, had universal appeal which replaced the Bungalow in the 1930s.

In its plan the dining room was omitted. An economical house, a house affordable for the times in a working neighborhood. Prototype houses of the clapboard cottages of Nantucket and designed that way with little panes of glass and shutters.

Architectural Statement:

The most Arts and Crafts motif house in Old West Side besides the high-pitched roofs, small-panes of glass and rustic looking motifs, of the decorative bands, trellises with a circle in them, and the one-car garage is an image of the separate portico and big house roof design. This house is a Sears 1926 mail-order house, representing the Arts and Craft movement. The house is a Sears 1926 mail-order house, representing the Arts and Craft movement.

Historical Statement:

The Arts and Crafts movement of the early 20th century made use of smooth walls and unadorned window moldings. The separate hipped entry is another recognizable feature of this style. Its style is noticeable on the block. Modest house of the neighborhood. This is a Modern Tudor Revival house representing the Arts and Craft movement.

Architectural Statement:

Historical Statement:

The American Tudor Revival adopted various English, Elizabethan motifs and put them in large houses. This is a large house for this working class neighborhood but it is very modest to the real prototypes of Detroit.

The house has the same concept of the neighborhood of big house and little garage in the back of the lot. The house and garage match in style.
