VICTORY WAS CELEBRATED WITH A BONFIRE.

The football eleven of the Michigan School for the Deaf was defeated on its own gridiron at Flint, last Saturday in a hotly contested battle, by a score of 18 to 11. The M. S. D. team was "light but gritty," as one of the Normal eleven related on his return, and this fact accounts for the rather close score.

Though it seemed hardly possible for a football eleven to again shape itself into perfect condition after such a bruising contest as the Normals engaged in at Albion, with a team averaging thirty pounds more to the man, yet this was done, and the squad of fifteen men, which left the gymnasium last Saturday morning, were in the pink of physical condition, and in readiness to engage in another battle. The squad consisting of the regular eleven and substitutes: Rutherford, Ger­ eau, Webster and Harrison, were accompanied by Manager O'Brien, and Professor W. P. Bowen. In spite of the early hour, 6:30, at which the team departed a crowd of loyal Normalites gathered, to send them off with rousing cheers.

The story of the game is in itself a short one. The halves were twenty-five minutes each.

In the first half the Normals by superior team work, line plays, and hurdling, rolled up 12 points, two touchdowns being made, Braley kicking both goals. The half closed with the ball in M. S. D. territory, where it had been during the entire half.

The second half did not prove so easy for the Normals. The silent players took a brace and instead of merely holding the Normals down as in the first half, played a brilliant defensive and offensive game, securing two touchdowns themselves and kicking one goal. Six points were made by the Normals in this half, another touchdown being made and quarter back Braley spun the oval squarely between the goal posts.

The game was won much the same as was the first game of the season with the Detroit Business University; by good consistent, clean play, and the outcome clearly demonstrated that in a battle with a team averaging somewhere near the Normals' avoirdupois, the eleven would show its form and class. Each man on the eleven played

CLASS SPIRIT RAN HIGH

LONE SENIOR FARED BADLY BUT PROVED LOYAL.

"Rah, Rah, Rah, Juniors," was the cry which echoed from one portion of the Normal building to the other, Monday afternoon of last week, raising the spirits of both juniors and seniors to a high mark. The seniors held their first class meeting that night and though the time and place of the gathering were known to the junior body, nothing more than an attempt to bar the door, during the meeting, was done. A day or two later word was quietly passed around to the under-classmen to meet in room 51, on Thursday evening. However, becoming more valorous each day, the juniors postponed their meeting until Monday evening and bravely heralded its approach with signs and notices on the neighboring walks, billboards and buildings.

On Monday evening, as early as 4:30 o'clock, the members of the class straggled into the classroom in groups of twos and threes, and by 5 o'clock, when Howard Prine, president of last year's sophomore class, rapped for order, the large room was filled with a noisy, enthusiastic crowd.

The juniors had anticipated a visit from the doughty seniors, and in order to repel such a visitation, should it prove too obnoxious, boys stationed themselves at the door. After the first bustle of excitement was over and the words of acting chairman Prine could be heard, a motion was passed, making Mr. Prine chairman of the meeting. Hardly had this amount of business been transacted, when the looked for assault from the upper-classmen was made in the shape of a shower of water through the transom, above the closed door, throughly dousing the masculine members of the class, who had expected a rather different form of attack. The sudden dousing was followed by cheering and shouting and a rush on the door, which, however, did not open for the seniors to enter. Undismayed by the racket, and rather humid interruptions, the meeting went rapidly on and in the interval between the violent attack on the door and the cheers for the seniors, I. F. King was elected president of the class with the help of senior girls who had taken advantage of the unsuspecting juniors by attending their meeting and stuffing their ballot.

Earl Schoolcraft, Guy Smith, G. C. Brown and the Misses Bliss and Wellington, were appointed
The boys on their return home were lavish in their praise of the treatment accorded them at Flint, which they say was truly royal. Two years ago M. S. D. put it over the Normals 40 to 0. They come here November 12 to play the return game. The team are planning to give them a royal welcome in every way.

The condition of the men was shown by the fact that little time was taken out for normal players. The regular eleven finished the game with the exception of Cooby at left tackle, he being relieved by Rutherford, toward the end of the last half.

As soon as the news of the victory reached the city, about 5:30 o’clock, preparations were at once started for the annual bonfire to celebrate the event. At the close of the supper-hour a band of students, scoured the city for brush and old rubbish, which was carried to the Normal campus, making a pile which vied with the trees in height. Several hours were spent in gathering material and the crowd of students which had gathered, about 500 strong, waited patiently in the cold north wind for the team. As the hours passed and the eleven did not put in an appearance, 10:30 o’clock it was decided to ignite the great heap. Several good-sized paillots of oil were thrown on the rubbish and inside of a second the pile was a blazing mass, each flame seeming desirous of reaching higher into the cold night air, than its companions. As the fire mounted higher and higher, after each member of the eleven had been roundly cheered, the merry throng sang the college songs and gave the college yells with a right good will. In fact the Normalites seemed to have become insensible to the chill of the evening and no one left the campus until the great blazing mass was but a few glowing embers, though the memory of the celebration and of the team in whose honor it was given, will linger long in the minds of the loyal student body, who believe that where merit is shown, it should have recognition.

The Normals go to Ann Arbor to-day to play the U. of M. Freshmen, and a hard contest is expected as this eleven held Albion to a tie score earlier in the season.

How Did He Do It?

They thought more of the Legion of Honor in the time of the first Napoleon than now. The Emperor, it is said, one day met an old one-armed soldier, and asked him where he lost his arm? “Sire, at Austerlitz.” “And were you not decorated?” “No, sire.” “Then here is my own cross for you; I make you chevalier. “Your majesty names me chevalier because I have lost one arm! What would your majesty have done if I had lost both?” “Oh, in that case I should have made you officer of the Legion.” Whereupon the soldier immediately drew his sword and cut off his other arm. Now, there is no particular reason to doubt this story. The only question is, how did he do it?” —Ex.

There should be a directory of all the Normal College alumni containing the address, year of graduation, and occupation of each. All changes should then be recorded and such other information concerning each as might be of interest and value. A directory of this kind would require time and labor for its completion, but the benefits to be derived therefrom warrant the undertaking. The News will be glad to receive and file information which will form a nucleus for the work.

INSTITUTES ARE NOT FOR BEGINNERS ONLY

"Teachers' institutes are not for beginners only," says Superintendent Fall. There are some teachers who think themselves above the necessity of attending meetings of this kind. Occasionally we hear of a Normal graduate who has so far overstepped his mark as to imagine that simply because he has had professional training he is above the common herd and that there is nothing more for him to learn about teaching. He has a life certificate and cares nothing about the commissioner or the county board of examiners. He doesn't need to attend an institute. That man has missed his calling. Professional training hasn't made a teacher of him, because he lacks the teacher's spirit. There is no one who knows so much that he cannot know more, and no one so perfect that he cannot be better. If however there should be one, who is so taken up with his work that he feels no need of further inspiration, professional loyalty if nothing else demands his presence at the county institute.

TRAVELING INSTITUTES RECOMMENDED BY SUPERINTENDENT FALL

It might not be out of place to give a short history of teachers' institutes in Michigan. The following extracts give in a brief way the progress of educational thought along the line of teachers' institutes:

In his report of 1846 Superintendent Mayhew first makes mention of teachers' institutes and suggests legislative provision in the following: would it not be well to encourage their establishment in this State by legislative provision? I entertain the opinion that if the State has $25,000 to appropriate annually to the promotion of common school education it would be productive of greater good to apply one or two thousand dollars of even five thousand dollars to assist in defraying the necessary expense of maintaining teachers' institutes in the different counties and the residue to the support of schools, than to apply the whole to the payment of unqualified teachers, or even to those of ordinary attainments." This is the first suggestion made of teachers' institutes. Mr. Mayhew had previously been investigating those in New York and to him is due the credit of instituting the same and making the first suggestion of same.

First Teachers' Association held in Lenawee
In report of 1846 Superintendent Mayhew says that one teachers' institute was held in Jackson, October, 1846, which was the first held in Michigan. Vol. 3, page 3, report of 1846. Under direction of Jackson County Teachers' Association and not under direction of State.

In 1847 Mr. Mayhew states that about a dozen institutes were held. Vol. 36, Michigan Reports, page 273.

In October, 1852, an inspiring institute was held at Lansing under the auspices of the State Board of Education (three weeks in length), which was the immediate cause for awakening an interest in the institutes so that some provisions were made for same by the Legislature of 1855. Vol. 36, page 273, and Vol. 7, page 12.

In 1855 the Legislature passed an act to provide for holding teachers' institutes and the Superintendent of Public Instruction was authorized to draw from the State Treasury not to exceed $1,800.00 for their support. Each institute was not to be less than ten days.

Since that time teachers' institutes have been held under State authority.

In his report of 1855-56 Superintendent Mayhew tells something of how institutes were conducted and says that "during the evenings of several sessions addresses upon education and lectures of a popular character were delivered before the institute."

In 1861 the law was amended so as to reduce the time of each institute to five days and the limit of aid for each to $100.00. But in 1877 this law was amended so that a large share of the support was obtained from fees collected from applicants for certificates; one dollar from each male and fifty cents from each female. The Superintendent was also authorized to draw not to exceed $60.00 for each institute of five days' duration where the local fund proved insufficient. The limit of aid from the State Treasury was placed at $1,800.00 plus $400.00 for a State institute.

This was a meeting of institute workers called to discuss plans for making the institutes more profitable. It resulted in infusing much more enthusiasm into institutes and institute workers and brought about the so-called "inspiration institutes."

This conference also discussed class plans for institute work and recommended among other things that the institute worker be sure to prepare a program for real work and carefully follow the same. In 1899 the Legislature increased the amount of funds which the State Superintendent might draw from the State Treasury to $3,000.00.

INSTITUTE OUTLINE.

In 1898 this Department prepared and published an outline for the work of the institutes of the State.

This outline was the first of its kind ever published in this country, and its use has resulted in increasing the efficiency of teachers' institutes by making the work more searching and systematic. Revised editions have been prepared during the years 1900, 1901, and 1902. For the year 1904 an entirely new plan will be followed in the preparation of the outline and we hope for still better results than have yet been attained.

INSTITUTES OF 1903.

From the foregoing extracts it will be seen that the idea of teachers' institutes has been constantly in the minds of our leading educators, and there is really but one purpose of the teachers' institute and that is for professional training.

During the year 1903 one hundred and fifteen teachers' institutes have been held in the State. I am pleased to say that the character of the work done has in general been worthy of the cause. The persons employed as institute instructors have entered into the spirit of the work, and no one can measure the influence that has been exerted for good.

When we consider that of the sixteen thousand teachers employed in the State, less than five per cent have had special training to fit them for their great and important work, it needs no demonstration to show that the teachers' institute has an important place in our school economy.

Of one hundred and fifteen teachers' institutes, thirty-six covered a period of five days or more, the majority of them being eight-day institutes. The remaining seventy-nine institutes have been of from one to three days' duration, and I desire to repeat what was said in a former report, that the teachers' institute is a normal school for the great body of our young teachers, and the only means whereby they secure any professional instruction.

In view of this fact I want to say that in my judgment it is unwise to use the institute fund year after year for short term institutes. The average young person who expects to teach possesses sufficient enthusiasm, and it is not "inspiration" he needs, but "PROFESSIONAL INFORMATION."

It is almost a crime to permit persons who have not had any special training for the work of teaching to enter the schoolroom and attempt to instruct children. It is absolutely impossible for us to secure proper results so long as this practice is permitted. While there are exceptions, still the procedure often results in the blind attempting to lead the blind, to the great detriment of our rising generation.

While we should not expend the institute funds simply for the

we can easily provide an occasional meeting for experienced teachers and those who have had some special training. Such meetings should be in the line of general lectures, but we must not neglect those who under the present system do not and can not at an inspiration institute receive such help as the teachers' institute ought to afford.

In some of our counties the records show that all the institutes that have been held for the past ten years have been those of not to exceed three days' duration. This I consider an error in judgment on the part of the county commissioner of schools, whose duty it is to advise with the State Superintendent as to the needs of his county. It is my opinion that the State Superintendent should, in such cases, insist on a change of plan.

THE TRAVELING INSTITUTE.

A new feature of our institute work is what we call the "Traveling Institute." For this a lecturer is appointed who goes into a county and spends a week with the commissioner of schools. During the day they visit schools and patrons and in the evening the teachers and patrons meet for a lecture on some proper school subject.

These have been tried in several counties and the reports show that they are productive of great good. Such institutes result in drawing the home and the school closer together and in cultivating a proper appreciation of our schools. Our schools do not suffer for want of financial support as much as for a proper appreciation of their requirements and their possibilities.

PRIZES IN ORATORY.

This week there have been placed on exhibition two very desirable prizes in oratory. The contest for these prizes is open to any student in the college and already several have declared their intention of competing for them.

The first prize consists of a set of ten volumes of the "World's Best Orations." This work is edited by the famous jurist, Justice Brewer, of the U. S. Supreme Court. It covers the whole field of oratory from Demosthenes and Cicero down to our own generation and is a mine of valuable information and delightful reading. It is edited with rare good taste and judgment and constitutes not only an excellent collection of literary masterpieces, but is as well one of the most valuable history reference works ever published.

The set would make a splendid addition to any school or private library, and every student should examine it, whether he is able to win it or not.

The contest is open to any student of the Normal College who is carrying three fourths full work. Orations are not to exceed two thousand words in length and may be upon any subject the writer chooses. The first of the preliminary contests will probably be held this term. Those wishing for further information should inquire of Mr. Mace Andress, president of the Oratorical Association, or of Prof. Lathers at room 51.

THE LIBRARY

A peculiar interest attaches to three volumes recently acquired by the Library.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Charles King, we have an old book from the library of John D. Pierce, to whom education in Michigan owes so great a debt of gratitude. It is the Report on the State of public instruction in Prussia with plans of school houses, by Victor Cousin, translated and published in New York in 1835.

The other volumes are two text books by Prof. August Lodeman. The first German conversation tables, published in 1871 when he was teacher of German and French in the Grand Rapids High School. The other, Student's manual of exercises for translating into German, published in 1885, when Professor in the Normal School.

Such books, in the library have a value far greater than their mere intrinsic worth, because of personal association and sincere personal regard.

Bessie McIntyre spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Mt. Clemens.

Instead of chapel hour this week, fourth hour classes were dismissed Tuesday that the students might hear Senator Fairbanks, who spoke at the Michigan Central depot.

The Calhoun County Teachers' Association is held at Homer to-day. Professor S. B. Laird will give two talks, one on School Discipline, the other on the “Scope and Value of Modern Education.”

Dr. C. O. Hoyt is also spending Thursday, Friday and to-day at Harrison, doing institute work.

The first number of the music and lecture course given in Normal Hall Monday evening was a rare treat. Signor Campanari and his company of musical artists: Miss Dorothy Hoyle, violinist; Mme. Ruby Cutter Savage, soprano, and Mr. Ward Stephens, pianist were very enthusiastically received. Each number was deservedly encored. The Toreador song completely won the audience and showed, at its best, the rare quality and power of Campanari's voice.
